FIRST STEP TAKEN TOWARD A-TEST BAN

GENEVA (AP)—The United States, Britain and Russia today approved the first article of a treaty to suspend nuclear tests.

The article lays down the three nations' agreement to stop nuclear weapons tests. But it will have no effect until the treaty as a whole is approved and ratified.

The second article of the treaty which ties the suspension of tests inseparately to an international control organization, still is under discussion.

The two Western powers have repeatedly told Russia they will not subscribe to any treaty unless it spells out in detail a control and inspection system to prevent violations of a test ban.

Army Fails
With First
Space Shot

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The U.S. Army fired its first space probe thousands of miles into the sky today but hours later calculated that the gold-plated vehicle would travel barely a quarter of the distance to the moon.

Space scientists predicted the rocket will reach a height of 64,830 miles, then fall back and burn up in the earth's atmosphere Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Werhner von Braun, the army's missile expert, estimated that the probe would remain in flight for about 38 hours from the time it was launched at 12:45 a.m. EST (9:45 p.m., PST) at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Pioneer III had been equipped to send back a signal when it passed the moon. Had it been completely successful it would have gone on to slip into orbit around the sun.

Instead the Jupiter rocket that was the first stage of the launching vehicle cut out 3.7 seconds prematurely, and the probe failed by about 1,000 miles an hour to attain the 24,900 miles an hour velocity required to reach or go past the moon.

WEIGHS 13 POUNDS

The army's Jet Propulsion Laboratory built the instrument-filled space cone, a 13-pound forerunner to future satellites. It was only 23 inches high, weighed 13 pounds, and was 10 inches in diameter at the base.

No one was wishing the army bad luck, but since its first space shot was less than perfect some air force officers could not conceal their relief that Pioneer III had not outperformed Pioneer I.

Meanwhile, space scientists also said today the air force's Oct. 11 moon probe reached only 71,300 miles into space instead of the previously announced 79,000 miles.

This recalculation means that the army's Pioneer III is expected to come within 6,470 miles of the air force effort instead of 14,170.

Von Braun guessed that the probe would re-enter the earth's atmosphere near Madagascar off the east coast of Africa Sunday afternoon, and he said it would disintegrate from air friction.

"No solid parts will hit the earth," Von Braun said.

Von Braun blamed a faulty setting of a small fuel valve in the first stage for the improper mixture that produced the shortened burning time.

At Cape Canaveral Dr. John Froehlich, an associate of Picking at JPL, said the next army space launching vehicle would have to have some "improvements" including better propellants.

West Wins
All-Star Football

HAMILTON — The West, sparked by Frank Tripucka, Jackie Parker and Kenny Ploen, defeated the East 9-3 today in the fourth annual Shrine all-star football clash.

The freezing weather and the fact that the game was on television kept the crowd down to 5,000, although more than 10,000 tickets were reported sold for the charity affair.

Tripucka, passing ace from Saskatchewan Roughriders, tossed a nine-yard touchdown pass to Ploen, Winnipeg Blue Bombers' halfback, to wipe out a 3-0 lead the east had taken in the first quarter, leaving the West in front 6-3 at half-time.

In the third quarter Vic Chapman of the B.C. Lions kicked two singles for the West.

East got two points in the first quarter on a safety touch by Parker and Cam Fraser's kick to touch.

DRY FIELD

For the first time in the history of the all-star game, weather conditions were fairly decent. Although it was bitterly cold and windy with the temperature around 20 degrees, the field was dry and firm and the sun was shining in a near cloudless sky.

East and West are all even in these post-season games. The first meeting ended in a 6-6 tie. The West won 35-0 in 1956 and the East deadlocked the series with a 20-2 victory in 1957.

Chapman kicked the final point for the West in the fourth quarter.

FIRST QUARTER

VARS, Ont. (CP)—At least two persons were injured and others shaken up today when the CNR's passenger train No. 47 from Montreal to Ottawa was derailed about 1 1/2 miles east of here. Vars is 15 miles southeast of Ottawa.

A broken rail apparently caused all six cars to leave the track. The first of two diesel units did not leave the rails.

"He will be contacting the meeting by telephone later and we will discuss some matters with him," Mr. Kennedy said.

The council, meeting in camera, was to discuss Mr. Low's resignation as party leader, place and date of a national leadership convention and the question of party organization.

Snow, Cold
Extend Visit

First snowfall of the winter hit Victoria today, and more is promised for tonight and Sunday.

It was the first snow here since the winter of 1956-57, and left an inch of wet, soggy slush on the ground. There were minor flurries during the night, but until early this morning it melted when it reached the ground.

Although streets were sloppy, Greater Victoria police reported traffic was normal, and no accidents were blamed on either the weather or slippery streets.

The Malahat gave trouble at midnight, when a minor traffic jam developed, but it was cleared shortly after by highways department crews.

Later today travellers noted a three-car collision near the summit of the Malahat, and a car turned over near the Mill Bay cutoff, Duncan ambulance attended.

Other snowfalls reported on the island were four inches at Duncan, three inches at Nanaimo, four inches at Port Alberni, and anything from two to eight inches at isolated points along the highways.

Vancouver Island Coach Lines officials said bus drivers on all Island routes found road conditions to be good.

"The highways are covered with slush in places, but it is soft and the tires cut right through to the pavement," a company spokesman said.

CAUTION ADVISED

Police suggested drivers should remain alert and show caution during the remainder of the poor weather.

Weatherman William Mackie predicted more snow for tonight because the city is in the middle of a battle between two weather systems.

Cold air is pressing westward from the mainland, he said, and disturbances from the Pacific Ocean are causing warm air to roll in from the west.

He said the snow will be wet, and mixed with rain, but that at night and at higher levels, with temperatures lower, it will be drier and more inclined to stay when it hits the ground.

Temperatures will range between 32 degrees tonight and 37 degrees Sunday.

Ottawa Says
Priority Should Go to Columbia

Power-conscious British Columbia feasted today on federal-provincial announcements indicating that the rush is on to supply low-cost hydro power to the lush B.C. and Pacific Northwest markets.

In Ottawa, Acting Prime Minister Howard Green said "steps are to be taken at once to complete an agreement with the United States which will make possible development of the giant Columbia River."

In Prince George, Lands and Forest Minister Ray Williston said the provincial government plans to build two dams on the upper Fraser to provide power to be fed into the proposed Wenner-Gren hydro system.

Mr. Green said Columbia power could be provided to the Vancouver area at less than four mills a kilowatt hour — "far cheaper than power available in B.C. in similar large quantities."

In Kelowna Premier W. A. C. Bennett said that development of the Columbia river would not mean cancellation of the Peace River plan.

"We want them both and the sooner the better," he said. "The more power we have in

Power Commission May Get Columbia

"The B.C. Power Commission will run it unless there are complications over downstream benefits," the premier said. "If there are complications, I will set up a separate authority to handle Columbia power."

Mr. Mainwaring, former vice-president of the B.C. Electric, and company president A. E. Grauer both claimed the Peace can produce power as cheaply as the Columbia.

While no cost-per-kilowatt had been worked out for the Peace River power, "we have no fears of a price battle," said Mr. Mainwaring.

He claimed Mr. Green's announcement means Columbia power wouldn't be available for at least 10 years since downstream benefits still have to be negotiated.

Mr. Grauer said Peace power will still be needed even

'We Want to Get Ahead Quickly'

Mr. Green told reporters that a lot of groundwork had already been covered by lower-echelon working groups on both sides.

"We are very keen on this project and want to get ahead with this as quickly as possible," he said.

Whatever agreement is reached with the Americans it would stipulate that any projects built on the Canadian side of the river would be owned and controlled by Canadians.

MILK FOR HUNGRY CHILDREN

Christmas Spirit Shows

Generous Victorians are tangibly showing that the approaching Christmas season is the time for blessed giving.

Contributions of the "Milk for Hungry Children" fund, which has climbed past the $1,000 mark, will be used to help ward off starvation for thousands of "little ones" in Korea, India and Hong Kong.

A donation, signed merely "J.E.W." had the following attached, exemplifying the spirit of charity in an often crass and cold world:

That fills the heart with joy to live.
It's what we do, not what we say
That adds a blessing to each day.

THIS WORLD OF OURS

People and Things

TORQUAY, Eng.—A bachelor vicar complained in court Friday that a middle-aged spinster spent her time in church "either staring or grinning at me."

Rev. Anthony Rouse, 41, said Miss Isabel Tanner sat near the front of his St. John's church here—"taking no part in the services."

The vicar also charged she wrote him letters and called him up to say "something of an intimate nature."

The judge ordered her to restrain from phoning, writing or otherwise communicating with the vicar and awarded him £5 damages.

TAIPEI, Formosa — The hula hoop craze, introduced to Formosa three weeks ago, took a new Oriental twist Friday.

Two readers of a Taipei newspaper accused the hoop of having Communist leanings.

Liu Hui Ju wrote to the Central Daily News that the whirling hoop "reminds me of the yank (seed-sowing dance) of the Communist bandits."

Another reader, Wang Tsai Chun, asserted: "Hula hoops are many times worse than the yank."

FORT WORTH, Tex.—That traffic ticket B. P. Bludworth

got near here the other day has him up in arms.

Bludworth, operator of a Brownwood, Tex., outdoor advertising firm, says police in the southwest Fort Worth suburb of Benbrook have ticketed 200 motorists from his home county in the last month.

Consequently he has ordered full-size posters for 10 of his billboards beside U.S. Highway 377 between here and Stephenville, 66 miles southwest, bearing this message:

"Going to Dallas or Fort Worth? Follow U.S. 67 through Cleburne. Avoid vicious Benbrook speed traps."

BALTIMORE.—The visitor from Georgia, found in a somewhat hazy condition on a street corner, was fined $35 for drunkenness.

When Magistrate James Farnsee announced his guilty verdict and imposed the fine, Christian J. Thomas, 35, of Danielsville, Ga., said:

"Aw, come on, judge have a heart. Give me a break so I can get to Baltimore."

MANSLAUGHTER

ter, or not guilty by reason of insanity.

"There is a stage of drunkenness," he said, "when a person can't form the intent (to kill). Then the proper verdict is manslaughter."

Earlier evidence had disclosed, the justice said in his review of the nine-day trial, that the accused had consumed about 26 ounces of liquor the day Mudge was shot. His father-in-law, John Brand, 69, was also slain at the Mudge home, 3460 Metchisin Road, on Sept. 13.

On the witness stand Thursday, Till had said he remembered nothing about the tragic events.

"PECULIAR SAVAGERY"

Mr. Justice Ruttan pointed out that the only evidence of a "blackout" was given by Till himself, and it was up to the jury to either accept or reject his testimony.

He indicated also there was grounds for an insanity verdict, due to the "peculiar savagery of the act..." and "...the lack of provocation for it."

Evidence pointed, he maintained, to a "savage" crime impelled probably by some desire to have relations with Mrs. Mudge.

Mrs. Phyllis Mudge, 36, was beaten by Till the same terror-filled afternoon.

DRINK AT 6 WEEKS

Crown prosecutor Lloyd McKenzie said that Mudge was guilty of an error in judgment by allowing the youth to persuade the couple to give him alcohol in any quantity.

"Till," he said, "had been drinking for a long, long time. We heard the astonishing report that he had his first drink when he was six weeks old. That, we were told by his mother, was given him by his father."

No one, he maintained, would ever know exactly what happened that day, so an attempt only could be made to reconstruct.

"The boy formed an intention of being intimate with Mrs. Mudge. He could not accomplish this with any medium of persuasion. There were no intimate relations in a romantic sense..."

MEN 'IN WAY'

"I suggest Till picked up a metal bar, went upstairs and hit Mrs. Mudge over the head from the back, causing a four-inch wound. This was the first of many wounds caused that afternoon."

Then, he continued, Mrs. Mudge either fell down the basement stairs or was dragged.

"He had a desire for the woman, but there were two men in the house sure to be opposed to that desire."

"I suggest Mudge came in from the garden and just as he was outside the doorway Till shot him with the .303 rifle through the breast. Either he fell inside or Johnny pulled him in, then shut the door."

"Johnny then went upstairs, picking up another rifle. The old man (Brand) may have been aroused from his sleep by the first shot. The accused stood in the den door, and fired."

"IT'S OKAY"

"Johnny then went back to Mrs. Mudge, finding her coming back to some early stage of consciousness. The boy did not want her conscious in the basement, so she came to with him holding her by the arm, and beating her."

"It was then she heard groans and saw Johnny walk over and fire into the prone body of Mudge with a shotgun."

The accused's actions Mr. McKenzie termed "an impulse to eliminate opposition."

Till's mother, immediately after the trial ended, was asked what she thought of the manslaughter verdict.

"It's okay, I guess," she said.

SIDNEY—Funeral services for Rev. Roy Melville, 65, who died suddenly at his home Thursday night, will be held here Monday at 2:30 p.m. in St. Andrew's Anglican Church.

BARRACK-ROOM MURDER TRIAL OPENS MONDAY

Crown prosecutor will be Lloyd McKenzie and defence counsel George Gregory.

The preliminary hearing of the murder charge which opened in Esquimalt police court Oct. 6 was held in camera.

Mantha is being held in Oakalla jail.

9 Audition For the 'Met' Here Sunday

Nine candidates will audition Sunday in the Victoria area competition arranged by the Northwest Regional Auditions Committee for National Council of the Metropolitan Opera.

Local singers will be heard by a panel consisting of Stanley Hoban, Hans Gruber, Boyce Gaddes and Mrs. Margaret Abbott. Auditions will be held at Holyrood House and will start at 7:30 p.m.

Candidates selected as finalists by the adjudicators will go to Seattle Jan. 10 and 11 for semi-finals, and finals.

There, John Gutman, assistant to Rudolph Bing, director of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will select a Pacific Northwest Regional winner to compete in the finals in New York, all expenses paid. First prize will be a one-year Metropolitan Opera contract.

Runners-up in each region will be awarded the John S. Newberry Jr. $200 second prize and the singer gaining honorable mention, the Newberry third prize of $100.

$100,000 Asked in Zoo Death

VANCOUVER (UPI)—Relatives of 2½-year-old Julie Ann Voght of Chilliwack, B.C., who was mauled to death by a lion in a Washington, D.C., zoo last May, have claimed $100,000 damages from the United States government.

The little girl was snatched by a lion and pulled into the cage when she visited the zoo with her grandfather.

A complaint for "wrongful death" was filed in a Washington district court by the victim's great aunt, Margaret Rhinehart Hood of Washington, D.C.

The claim said the girl's death was caused by neglect by zoo officials to provide adequate safeguards around the cage of the African lions.

The zoo is operated by the Smithsonian Institute, a U.S. government agency.

Offer of Land For Fair Refused

The Intermunicipal committee Friday decided it was not prepared to recommend that Greater Victoria councils accept an offer of 10 free acres at Sandown Park for exhibition ground purposes.

Mayor Percy Scurreh said the land was "too small and too far out" and pointed out 100 acres had been leased by an agricultural association at Colwood for an exhibition development.

ing report is ready March 1, the U.S. will be happy to oblige, he said.

Mr. Green said development of the Columbia will mean tremendous expansion

'Greatest Industrial Area'

In his familiar sweeping fashion, Premier Bennett predicted that B.C. will eventually become the "greatest industrial area in North America."

"We will entice new industry into B.C., both in the Kootenays and central B.C. from eastern Canada, U.S., England and continental Europe."

B.C. has the key location—south is the U.S., north is the Yukon, and north of that is the new U.S. state, Alaska. The mighty Columbia rises in B.C. and flows through the power-hungry northwestern U.S. to the Pacific. The big issue is the splitting of downstream power between the two countries.

What Canadian authorities

Estimates of Canada-U.S. expenditures on the Columbia, run as high as $200,000,000 or more.

may suggest is that B.C. get half the additional electricity developed on the U.S. side in return for Canadian payment for administration and regulation of the year-round water flow.

This possibly would entail construction of a number of Canadian dams, with the federal government helping B.C. financially in the huge construction job. In addition, lower B.C. would also get power from the proposed Mica Creek project.

The scheme to build dams on the Upper Fraser was drawn following a report by the Fraser River Flood Control Board. The report will be published within 10 days.

Fraser Dams To Be Above Fish

Lands and Forests Minister Williston told a public meeting the dams will be beyond runs of "merchantable" fish and will produce two large lakes.

He said the main dam will be at the confluence of the McGregor River, east of Prince George. The second will be at the head of the Roche Valley, near McBride. The McGregor dam would back water up to Dome Creek and bring a flood plane to Aleza and Eagle Lakes.

Mr. Williston said the government proposes to put the program into high gear to ensure the dams are completed before recurrence of spring floods of 1894 and 1948.

Hydro power produced would be fed into the proposed Wenner-Gren transmission system to the lower mainland, he said.

The minister also said negotiations have been started by the Wenner-Gren organization for purchase of land north of Prince George as the site of a transformer to be used in transmitting power from its planned Peace River development.

The Peace River power would be converted to direct current for transmission to the lower mainland and also would go into Alberta and communities west of Prince George, he said.

Mrs. McGill Rejoins School Board

Appointment of Mrs. W. W. McGill to the Greater Victoria School Board was announced by the provincial government Friday.

Mrs. McGill, chairman of the board, this year didn't submit nomination papers Monday as Saanich representative on the board.

She had decided to retire because she felt she had too many other activities.

But, she said today, she had been strongly urged to reconsider and had been able to drop some of her other activities.

The appointment was announced by Education Minister Leslie Peterson. It is for 1959 and 1960.

City Man Accepts $70,000 For Wife's Death in Crash

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—The attorney for Charles Horace (Pete) Stoneham, son of the owner of the San Francisco Giants baseball club, has asked that misdemeanor manslaughter charges against his client be dismissed.

The motion for dismissal was made Friday after Stoneham's attorney announced a $70,000 out-of-court settlement had been made with William Leach, 63, of 686 Island Road, Victoria, whose wife was killed in an auto accident in which Stoneham was involved last Feb. 4 near here.

Earlier, the charge, was reduced from felony to misdemeanor manslaughter when Stoneham agreed to plead guilty to the lesser count.

Judge E. R. Thurman took the motion for dismissal under advisement.

HEAD-ON CRASH

Leach abandoned a civil suit for $250,000 after he made the settlement.

The accident took place while Mr. and Mrs. Leach were on holidays.

According to evidence, Mr. Stoneham crossed a middle line in the highway and plowed head-on into the Leach car. Mrs. Leach, a well-known golfer, was killed and Mr. Leach hospitalized for some time.

From Soup to Nuts, Prices Will Jump for Freight Hike

Recent freight rate increases granted by the federal government to Canada's two national railways will cost British Columbians an extra $8.50 at least in their family budget next year, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Friday.

"The figure will be at least doubled if the railways are successful in securing a further increase," he said.

Mr. Bonner said the best estimates the provincial bureau of economics and statistics could arrive at showed that under the recent increase:

A tin of soup from eastern Canada will cost one cent more than it does now.

A tin of apple juice shipped from Vancouver to Prince George will cost 1/5 cent more.

A television set from eastern Canada will cost $1.50 more.

A white shirt will cost five cents more.

BATTLE PROMISED

A refrigerator, washing machine, range, or other major appliances will cost an extra $2.

Tinned tobacco will cost five cents more.

Mr. Bonner said these were typical applications as the freight rate situation appears now. He said the government of B.C. will fight the increase on "all possible fronts."

He urged that all Canadian provinces join to present a case which the federal government cannot ignore.

Mr. Bonner predicted the railway companies will ask for another 17 per cent increase during the first quarter of 1959.

Giant-Killer Tooting Beats Northampton

LONDON (AP)—Tooting and Mitcham, a little-known squad of amateurs, today defeated professionals Northampton Town and joined the list of giant-killers thrown up every year by the English Soccer Cup competition.

Tooting's team bank clerks, factory workers and bricklayers qualified for the third round with a goal in the 70th minute by centre forward Phil Hasty.

Now the amateurs go into Monday's draw with the country's big guns — with teams like Arsenal, Wolverhampton and Bolton Wanderers. Teams in the First and Second Divisions of the English League are exempt from the cup competition until the third round. The amateurs and other professional teams are called on to meet in earlier knockout play.

BEAT ARSENAL

Northampton, who knocked Arsenal out of the cup competition last season, is in the Fourth Division of the English League. Another cup giant killer today was part-time professional team Worcester who defeated Fourth Division Millwall 5-2.

Meanwhile, a goal six minutes after the start by right winger Gordon Nutt gave Arsenal a 1-0 victory at Portsmouth and put the London squad into a one-point lead in the English League standings over three other teams — defending champions Wolverhampton, Preston North End and Bolton Wanderers — each one point behind with 26 points.

Butt's goal brought a protest from Portsmouth's players, who claimed the winger was offside. But the referee turned down all appeals.

BOLTON TIED

Bolton tied 1-1 at Blackburn, Preston North End won 2-1 at Tottenham and Wolverhampton edged Everton 1-0.

Bolton faltered in the championship struggle by getting only one point at Blackburn after scoring the first goal.

More Wage Talks Set for Engineers

Further wage talks will be held within the next two weeks in a dispute between 150 stationary engineers employed by the provincial government and the public works department.

The men want a 9 per cent increase.

Ed O'Connor, secretary of the B.C. Government Employees' Association, said results of a strike vote tabulated Friday would be withheld pending outcome of the new talks.

WHAT DO YOUR SYMPTOMS SAY ABOUT YOU?

● Diabetes
Q. How can you tell when you have diabetes?
A. You can't. Diabetes, or any other disease, can be diagnosed only by a physician. Don't fall for mail-order rackets. One big-city "analytic bureau" will test your urine every three months for the bargain price of $12.00 a year. One subscriber to this "service" sent the "bureau" a bottle of colored salt water. Back came a faked report: the salt water, according to the report, contained uric acid and epithelial cells! The sucker complained and got his money back but the bureau remained in business. You can't go wrong by putting your health in capable medical hands. You can go wrong by trying to do-it-yourself methods.

Q. A large brain and high intelligence go hand in hand. True or false?
A. Mainly false. A professor of zoology at the University of Copenhagen says that within limits the weight of the brain does not seem to have a bearing on intelligence. However, mental deficiency does occur when the number of brain cells are below a certain limit. No one knows for sure what this limit is.

Material in MEDICAL MIRROR is based on various scientific publications and does not necessarily reflect the opinion of all doctors. The diagnosis and treatment of disease requires the skill and knowledge which only a physician can apply by personally attending the patient.

MARLER NAMED, CONSTITUTION REVIEWED

Liberals Start to Reorganize

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal party took two major steps Friday to strengthen its national organization and put some drive behind its 48-member opposition group in the Commons.

The National Liberal Federation, the party's organizational arm, acquired George Marler, 58, former cabinet minister, as its executive vice-president, a new full-time post. It also set up a 13-member committee to review the federation's constitution, framed 25 years ago and amended in minor details a half-dozen times since then.

The moves were announced by Bruce Matthews, of Toronto, newly-elected federation president, who said they are the first steps in implementing a program of party reorganization recommended three weeks ago by the federation's national advisory council.

ASIA MUST PROSPER —JOHN D.

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today whether the Commonwealth can live and expand and develop depends on the success of its attempt to achieve economic prosperity among its Asian members.

"This Commonwealth cannot survive half-prosperous and half-starving," he told a luncheon gathering of leading citizens sponsored by the New South Wales government.

Boy Claims Beating By Teacher

CALGARY (CP)—A 15-year-old school boy told police Friday a teacher beat him on the hands and wrists 50 times with a leather strap as punishment for talking and giggling in class.

Don Tocher, a grade 8 student at St. Anne's School, said the incident occurred Thursday at St. Joseph's School.

He said the teacher, not identified, also strapped two other boys but stopped after 15 strokes when they started to cry. He said he received extra beatings because he refused to cry.

The boy's mother, Mrs. A. M. Tocher, said her son's hands are swollen and have lumps on them. Mr. Tocher is employed as a caretaker for the Calgary separate school board.

No formal complaint has been lodged to the school by the parents.

Adenauer Urges Russia To Drop Note on Berlin

BERLIN (CP)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer called on the Soviet Union on Friday night to withdraw its note on Berlin.

He told a West Berlin political rally that withdrawal of the note, which proposed a "free city" plan for West Berlin, would be proof that the Soviet Union was ready to talk reasonably about other questions in the interests of general pacification.

"Let it (Russia) drop this note and the rest will come," Adenauer said, "but the note must go first."

He said Soviet Premier Khrushchev "should not have sent that note—it is against all law." The chancellor charged the Russians were "acting like Stalin."

BERLIN COMES FIRST

Adenauer declared the West and the Soviet Union should settle the Berlin problem before they tackle the over-all problem of Germany.

"It is impossible for us to allow the Berlin question to hang in the air and negotiate on other questions," he said.

This statement appeared to make Adenauer's position differ somewhat from that of some American, British and French officials. Many of them have suggested recently that the West, in order to solve the Berlin question, must come up with concrete suggestions on the entire problem of German unification.

Adenauer told a cheering crowd of 16,000 West Berliners they should not be forced to endure the trials of long negotiations. He said the first step to relieve tension would be made at the NATO council conference opening in Paris on Dec. 15.

"Very clear words should be spoken immediately," Adenauer said. "Khrushchev," he said, "wants to shoot us out of the row of free peoples because he knows precisely that if West Germany gets out of NATO, NATO will fall apart. The U.S.A. then would have no interest in Europe and thus all of Western Europe would fall into the hands of the Soviets."

Wise and Foolish

PREMIER T. C. DOUGLAS, OF Saskatchewan, among the ablest politicians in Canada, said some wise and foolish things the other day. Wisely he identified the erosion of the Canadian dollar as the nation's gravest domestic problem, from which many other evils flow. Foolishly, he proposed to save the dollar by imposing price controls on a selected list of commodities and raw materials.

Since we shall doubtless hear much more about the virtue of price controls as the inflationary spiral proceeds at accelerated speed, Mr. Douglas' remedy can be usefully considered now, before it is attempted. And if this is considered as only the thinking of a left-wing socialist it will be useful to remember that over and over again, in opposition, the Conservative Party proposed price controls when prices were far lower than they are today.

The first thing to understand about price controls is that they cannot possibly work without wage controls, wages being the largest component of prices. If the Government is to control the price of selected articles, as Mr. Douglas proposes, it must control the wages of all the workers producing them.

But that will not be enough. As the prices of uncontrolled articles continue to rise, and the workers with fixed wages have to pay them, these victims will soon demand protection. The state will then be forced to extend its control over the remaining prices, and hence over the remaining wages.

As we found in wartime it is impossible to control any sector of prices without controlling them all. As the economists say, half a pregnancy is impossible. Mr. Douglas, however, says nothing about wage controls.

Even total wage and price controls cannot work if the currency is being perpetually expanded, as it has been expanded by about 13 per cent in the last year. The pressure of excessive money must quickly break the tissue-paper dam of state regulation. For a time, in the last war, that pressure was held back by almost confiscatory taxation, forced saving and rationing. All these would be needed again to control prices so long as the state was expanding the money supply too fast.

Without the control of the monetary system there can be no control of prices. Mr. Douglas sees that and his method of monetary control is a drastic increase in taxes on business and higher incomes. Here he falls into two errors.

First, increased business taxes will only discourage the increased production of wealth which Mr. Douglas desires, which will cure the recession and help to moderate the inflationary pressure.

Second, business profits and the higher personal income brackets do not contain anything like the amount of money that Mr. Douglas wishes to spend. The necessary wealth simply isn't there, at any tax rate.

It is quite true, as Mr. Douglas evidently realizes, that the Canadian Government is now in a ghastly financial mess, partly its own fault, partly the result of events outside its control; and quite true that the Government's huge budgetary deficit is the core of this problem, the generating mechanism of monetary inflation.

But Mr. Douglas' solution—a partial control of prices without wage control—is little better than the Government's total lack of a solution.

Nevertheless, there has been some advance in the thinking of the CCF, as represented by Mr. Douglas. For he sees, as he said in his recent broadcast, that the chief victim of inflation is not the rich but the poor man, not the great corporation but the humble household.

The painful solution now required if this process is to be arrested—the curb on Government spending and quite probably increased taxes to reduce the budgetary deficit—is mainly needed not for the fortunate in society but for the unfortunate.

Professor Lower Explores an Unmapped Region

WHEN three books of Canadian history, each a classic in its own field, appeared recently at the same moment this triple event must have meant something. Its meaning seems to deny the pessimistic thesis of Professor Arthur Lower, one of the three authors, that Canadians have little sense of their own identity. At any rate, it is an amusing irony that Professor Lower, having written what I take to be the greatest book ever written about Canada, and having deplored the Canadian people's lack of interest in such things, finds his work everywhere applauded and eagerly read.

Perhaps we are more Canadian than our ablest historians imagine. If there were not a good deal of Canadianism knocking about these days there would be no such audience for Lower's work. Indeed, there would be no Lower, the intellectual apex of a strong native force.

THIS is not the place to review his masterpiece, "Canadians in the Making," the first serious and entirely successful attempt to explore the genesis of the Canadian mind; the late MacGregor Dawson's first volume of the Mackenzie King biography; and Margaret Ormsby's splendid history of British Columbia.

I would guess, though, that never before, in one literary season, have three such major works on Canada appeared simultaneously—a little Canadian Renaissance.

Some people may say that the event is of little importance because only a small fraction of the public will read any of these books. This is to misunderstand completely the effect of great books. They don't have to be read by many people to affect the mind of the whole people by a sure process of osmosis and talk telepathy.

TO take the supreme example, how many actually read Shakespeare? Yet he has conditioned the mind of the entire English-speaking community of the world. The clown and loutish fellow on the street may hardly have heard of Hamlet, may read only comic strips and look at television, but Shakespeare is inside him nevertheless, inhabiting his very genes.

That sort of person may also say that the study of Canadian history is not very important, that our only practical business is to study the problems facing us today. The truth, on the contrary, is that we cannot begin to study today's problems until we understand their origin in the past, as a doctor can cure no disease without knowing its cause. And our failure to cure most of our current social diseases is due mainly to our ignorance of their cause.

FOR illustration, the career, the policies and the growing crisis of Mr. Diefenbaker are not understandable without a knowledge of his predecessor, King, who more than any man conditioned the society with which the present prime minister is grappling; just as King cannot be understood without a knowledge of Laurier and Macdonald, nor they without a knowledge of many things before their time.

The present convulsions in British Columbia politics may seem accidental but in Miss Ormsby's definitive history they are seen as a culmination of a long process, as the latest phase in a revolution of the western mind.

Until this year we had no intimate knowledge of King, no modern history of British Columbia and, worst of all, no attempt to explore the makings of the Canadian character and race. When, after a lifetime of labor, both in libraries and among the people, Professor Lower, analyzes the Canadian mind with brilliance, humor, pessimism and finally a ray of hope, we have at last a basic anatomy of our civilization, its organs, its strength and weakness, its healthy and its diseased parts.

THE surgeons of politics, long working in the dark and often hacking away recklessly at vital parts, may now see better what they are doing. If the anatomy had been available earlier we might have avoided many grave surgical errors and the excessive use of various habit-forming economic drugs.

No Passengers

By TOM MERRIMAN

THIS is really a pitiful little incident but a memory of old-time Victoria. It happened in the days when from the Parliament Building to Government Street was paved with wooden blocks and an East Indian driving a one load truck of wood was not an unusual sight.

I was with Rebel Mowat and I have half an idea we were carrying an Armistice celebration into the afternoon. Along came the dignified, white-bearded, handsome old East Indian with his empty truck.

I got excited, "You know," I said to Rebel, "that old chap delivered wood to me at 350 Robertson from the time we were first married. Two years ago he stopped, disappeared, I haven't seen him since. I owe him $2.75."

"Then pay the man," says Rebel. "Come on." And with a yell and a whoop, he shouts to the Indian, jumps into the truck and waves me to enter.

Impassively and with dignity that made us feel like hoodlums the wood dealer greeted us. He had been to India for two years he said. He recalled the $2.75.

"Please leave my truck," he said, "I sell wood again but I do not carry passengers." The dignity of that venerable old grey-beard had made us feel so small and subdued that even Rebel hadn't a word to say.

So we dropped into the "Bucket of Blood" for a couple to change the mood.

When, after a lifetime of labor, both in libraries and among the people, Professor Lower, analyzes the Canadian mind with brilliance, humor, pessimism and finally a ray of hope, we have at last a basic anatomy of our civilization, its organs, its strength and weakness, its healthy and its diseased parts.

THE surgeons of politics, long working in the dark and often hacking away recklessly at vital parts, may now see better what they are doing. If the anatomy had been available earlier we might have avoided many grave surgical errors and the excessive use of various habit-forming economic drugs.

These three books remind us of another fact: The Canadian people know less about their own history than any literate people in the world. This is due, no doubt, to our distraction from the past by the urgency of the present in a new land, partly to an education system which concentrates the child mind on such matters as the love life of Henry VIII, and partly to the lack of the necessary books. These obstacles are being overcome. We now have plenty of time for study, more than we know what to do with, our education system, I am told, is being reformed and we are getting the necessary books.

IT is still true, however, that in relation to our problems we know far less than our ignorant grandfathers in a simpler age. Macdonald, for instance, had more control over events than Laurier did later on, because events had become increasingly uncontrollable, as King had more than Mr. Diefenbaker.

Real control has perpetually diminished as government assumed more power and pretended to greater wisdom. No real control will ever be possible until we understand the events as we can never understand them in the day's headlines. And no event today can be understood without a knowledge of its origins yesterday. Hence writers like Lower, Dawson and Ormsby are doing us a great service (with less reward) than most of our statesmen.

Welcome Visitors

ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE proposed plans for the visit of the Queen and Prince Philip has caused the usual stir of interest in Victoria. Still fresh in memory is the visit of Princess Margaret last summer and the earlier occasion, in 1951, when as Princess the present Queen visited the city with her husband.

Apparently profiting by the experience of previous royal tours, those in charge of next summer's journey will make a special effort to permit the royal couple to see Canadians at work and at play, rather than the usual ranks of officialdom. This visit, we are told, will "set a precedent in informality."

By all accounts such arrangements will be as welcome to the Queen and her consort as they will be to the public at large, and it is to be hoped that needless protocol will be dispensed with wherever possible.

Lack of stiff formality does not connote lack of respect; a simple, friendly greeting to Her Majesty will mean more than hours of boring officialese. There may, indeed, be much to support the view that the Queen could come to look upon her Canadian visits as an escape from the rigors of court procedure at home, and a happy opportunity to relax in an atmosphere of sincere and affectionate hospitality.

The Good Citizen

THIS COMMUNITY HAS RECORDED with deep regret the passing of Mr. Walter Jeune—a man whose contribution to Greater Victoria is measured in the countless good deeds he performed for the city he had made his home.

In recent years, Mr. Jeune had faced frankly the probability that his days might end suddenly. The condition of his heart was uncertain, its warmth never-failing.

Happiest when he was doing something for the younger people,

Walter Jeune gave yeoman service to school boards of Saanich and Greater Victoria. He was a familiar figure to students and teachers, a friendly man with an enthusiastic confidence in youth.

He counted the day profitable when it gave him the opportunity to give cheer to someone else and a succession of such days bestowed upon him a wealth of affection and respect.

Those who knew him remember him today as the cheerful spirit and the good citizen.

Symbol for One World

THE READING PUBLIC, familiar enough with the "two world" concept of East and West, has been given an inspiring symbol of a possible one world.

Dr. Hugh Odishaw, executive director of the United States International Geophysical Year committee, has reported on spectacular advances during the official observance of this period of scientific achievement.

"We are on the verge of many new and radical developments. Another renaissance can be ours," he says.

This is the informed prediction of a man who has noted the work of 60,000 scientists, technicians and volunteers from 66 countries working in 8,000 stations in every part of the globe.

The International Geophysical Year has been a success, it seems obvious, because those participating were not hived apart by political ideologies to a degree which frustrated their combined efforts in certain fields.

Science rose above state in many instances to provide mutual effort toward desired objectives. It is true that the two worlds commonly recognized in this day prevented a complete sharing of discoveries. Those of military importance were kept secret from rivals on either side.

But, in broad principles, the Year was significant because it proved what progress could be made when the top brains of all nations were combined to probe the mysteries of nature and the universe.

DON'T SELL YOUR YOUNG PEOPLE SHORT

They Filled Many an Older Heart With Admiration

WHAT a very exciting world we live in. Until I read certain letters to the newspapers I had no idea that a meeting I attended recently was such an orgy of bad manners and boorishness.

My views on the matter are doubtless not to be relied upon, since, unlike our moralising correspondents, I was present at the affair, and so am obviously a prejudiced witness. If it will do any good, however, I will give you my opinion of the meeting.

It was a large assembly of Victoria College undergraduates, aggressively partisan in political sympathy, ebullient, noisy and good-humoured. Placards were flourished, effigies dangled and loud remarks were made from time to time; but all the placards were witty; the effigy was just an effigy; and most of the remarks were "fair comment in a matter of public interest," as the lawyers say.

In short, it was a political meeting, composed almost entirely of young people for whom politics is not just a matter of roads and bridges, rebates on property tax, and promises of great things the day after tomorrow.

Politics, for the intelligent young, is a matter of principle, of ideas—and they do not accept expediency or admit of compromise. They do not understand the cynicism or the complacency or the pre-occupation with naked self-interest displayed by their elders.

They may be young; they may be "unrealistic"; but at least they have some positive political ideas which they are not afraid to express.

Stormy Passage

The Premier was not paying a formal visit to the College. Had this been the case, the atmosphere would have been quite different. He came to address an audience which he must have known would be both hostile and outspoken, since he had a stormy passage with the student body of the University of British Columbia not long ago.

And it must be said at once that he earned a genuine, if grudging, respect from his audience before the meeting was over.

"You gotta hand it to him," said a student, whose diction betrayed excitement and a certain disregard for the niceties of spoken English. "He keeps coming back with an answer, even if it isn't the answer to the question."

The Attorney General, alas, has clearly led a very sheltered political life. Not for him the hurly-burly of the hustings, the cut and thrust of the political arena. After a few ineffectual passes with the cape, his verbal verities failed to please the crowd, who evidently felt that the Premier was better fitted to handle the bull. Luckily there were no manzafilla bottles at hand in this arena, though for a while it rained lunchbags.

As a temperamental anarchist, with no party affiliations, I feel quite qualified to give a dispassionate judgment in this matter, and I have no hesitation in finding the accused "Not Guilty." In fact, after spending half a decade among people who would rather be caught in their underwear than reveal what party they vote for, I was delighted to discover a group who don't mind letting their right wing know what their left wing is doing.

Youth, on the whole, is much stricter in matters of honour than the more accommodating middle-aged. Young people boil over more easily at injustice, chicanery, corruption and fraud, and the very suspicion, however unfounded, that these things exist in their society is quite enough to make them take steps to bring about reform.

As Our Readers See It

Hurray for Barron!

Will you please convey to Mr. Barron my sincere appreciation of his most recent cartoon relating to the election in Oak Bay.

This cartoon, particularly, has caused many chuckles in Oak Bay, and I have no doubt, among Oak Bay councillors in particular.

I only hope that one of us can persuade the Council to authorise the serving of tea on election day. At least it might have the effect of getting the voters out!

Very Grey Cup

For quite a few years every time "the Grey Cup" came round I have been wanting to make a protest. This year I am going to attempt to do so, although I know anything like an attack on this event will be looked upon as sacrilege or something like it by many people.

This game is called "Canadian Football" but is actually with very slight alterations—a wholesale importation from the States with all the adjuncts such as "cheer leaders" and "Majorities." Why the supporters of a football team should need "cheer-leaders"

Whether they are motivated by envy or malice, I know not, but some people there are who delight in seizing any stick wherewith they may belabour the young people of our community. I often wonder whether these indefatigable Mrs. Partingtons and Mr. Mordstones know anybody under the age of twenty-five. I cannot believe that they do, or they would not take such a very gloomy and unflattering view of our young men and women.

I am very glad that I took the opportunity to grow up elsewhere, where the grown-ups were more interested in writing to the Times about the first cuckoo than about the latest manifestation of juvenile irresponsibility. The custom of the universities in the land where I was bred is to extend all the privileges of adult life to the undergraduate, insisting merely on these being exercised with discretion.

Their sense of proportion at these places may seem eccentric to you, but the authorities feel that a young person may come to more harm and cause more damage behind the wheel of a car than beneath the roof of a tavern. Undergraduates are expected to behave to tell them when to applaud I don't know, neither do I know what "majorities" have got to do with football. When I go to see football I go to see the game—not "majorities."

The game, as played, costs altogether too much money—$20,000 for one imported player for the season and apparently no Canadian team would stand a chance against the others without several of these importations. To my mind no sport should be as expensive as this. How much money per season does it cost to run the team?

Then there is the advertising. It would appear that no player can be looked on as a star unless he can be photographed kicking higher than his head, generally with a look of intense ferocity on his face something like an escaped convict who had sworn never to be taken alive. Also the players wear defensive armor which must surely cut down any player's speed by at least ten yards in a hundred.

Finally there is the "hullabaloo." Nothing like as much fuss is made about the Stanley Cup—and that after all is genuinely Canadian and a game that anyone can respect and enjoy watching. To me the whole thing smells of too much money and not deserved reputation.

Admiration

foolishly from time to time, and this is regarded, stupidly or not, as a valuable part of the learning process.

I for one cannot see the logic of a land where a youth may be trusted to control three hundred horsepower at 16 but has to wait until 21 before he can legally sip a quiet beer or a glass of sherry. This is the law, and of course I obey it; but I think it's a damn silly law, and I should like to see us change it.

Are our young folk so different from their British counterparts that they would immediately gallop towards cirrhosis and D.T.'s if they were allowed to drink at 18? Does the law a present really stop any young person from getting a drink when he wants one?

If the law were changed do you think there would be any significant increase in the number of young people charged with "indulging to excess?" Of course not.

Liberal Views

Old Dr. Kettell, who was Master of Trinity College, Oxford, in the early part of the 17th century (that is his lodging next to Blackwell's bookshop), held liberal views about youth, even in a day when most of his students came to him in their middle teens.

"He observed," says John Aubrey who was up at Trinity in Kettell's time, "that the Howses that had the smallest beer had the most drunks, for I forced them to go into the town to comfort their stomachs, wherefore Dr. Kettell always had in his College excellent beer, not better to be had in Oxon, so that we could not go to any other place but for the worse, and we had the fewest drunks of any howse in Oxford."

In the comparatively short time have been in Canada I don't suppose that I have come to know more than a thousand or two young Canadians at all well, but what I have learned of the characters of this sample certainly does not fill me with gloom.

I think they compare more favourably with their elders in many ways, and I think that the future of this province will be in hands at least as trustworthy as those that guide it now.

Don't sell your young people short. When the chips were down in Budapest who took the lead against tyranny and injustice? Your cosy clubman? Your maiden aunt? Your inveterate newspaper correspondent? Not on your life. It was the "irresponsible young student," who "treated his rulers with disrespect," who behaved in a "rowdy and boisterous manner," whose "hooliganism" filled many an older heart with admiration, envy and respect.

Piper Must Be Paid

THERE are times when Dame Justice, with all her sternness, permits a slight relaxing of the facial muscles. And there are times, so rare and far between as to pass unnoticed in the hustle and bustle of daily living, when the old gal leans back in her high red chair and laris fit to bust.

SILENUS

You've got to keep a sharp ear to the ground to catch these diversions, these Protean rumbles of mirth which ever and anon go quivering through the undercurrents of the world. They are rare, and usually well covered. But somehow they get through.

An acquaintance of this column directed its attention not long ago to a short report well hidden in a miscellany of news items in the rearward pages of one of our large national dailies. It was a report of a trial (in England, naturally) which arose out of a wedding reception.

Such trials are common enough, to be sure. But this was no divorce. The happy pair were not, so far as is known, even slightly involved. The ruckus was raised by their parents.

It seems that the mother of the bridegroom had taken it upon herself to make all the arrangements for the wedding. She had even gone so far as to lay on the reception which followed the marriage ceremony, and had provided thereat provender and general catering to the extent of 65 pounds. The parents of the bride must have been delighted to be thus absolved from a traditional obligation. At any rate, they turned up and ate hearty. No sooner had the cake been cut and the merrymaking got well under way than the good lady whose bounty had provided the wherewithal handed the bill to the father of the bride. Just when he was beginning to relax and enjoy himself she did it. Sixty-five quid.

There was a ghastly hush, broken by a startled "Wot the 'ell?" It was as effective as the loud bassoon to get the wedding guests beating their breasts. Against a background of cheers and jeers from the rival factions in the crowd, an animated altercation ensued.

When order was finally restored, the police, good natured fellows that they were, decided not to lay charges and thereby add to the difficulties of the happy pair. Instead, the matter was carried into the County Court. Bridegroom's mother sued bride's father for the 65 pounds she had spent on his daughter. Bride's father defended himself stoutly, and the judge agreed with him.

Said His Honor: "In holding as I do that the obligation was not incurred by the defendant, and that it remains where it arose, with the plaintiff, I am not unmindful of the chaos which may well be the consequence of this decision. There will in all likelihood be considerable trepidation on the part of those hitherto have never hesitated to launch their offspring into the turbulent seas of matrimony, knowing that the expenses incidental thereto may fall elsewhere than where tradition has hitherto decreed."

"But tradition is no concern of the law, at least so far as catering bills are concerned. The piper must be paid, and by her who calls the tune. That is the law, and I am obliged to apply it. But in view of the circumstances of this case, which have considerably lightened an otherwise tedious calendar, I make no order as to costs."

Marriages, no doubt, are made in Heaven. But it is certain that lawsuits are also made at the reception.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Winners Take Less

LONDON—Have you ever heard of any sort of contest for which you get a bigger prize for coming fourth than for coming third?

It has happened last week on the football pools. The fourth dividend winners got twice as much as those who put up a better showing and succeeded in rating the third dividend.

How can this topsy-turvy situation arise?

It seems that it is not unique. It has happened before on the pools. On one occasion those who got the second dividend got much more money than those who copped first prize!

For those of you not familiar with how the pools work, here's the explanation of how this can happen.

Without going into a lot of complicated detail, the basic idea of the pools is to forecast eight draws (ties) out of the 52 games listed. That wins you the first dividend and the other dividends are paid out depending on whether you forecast seven draws, six draws, etc.

The money allocated by the pools company for each dividend is divided among those who win it, so that quite obviously the more winners there are the lower it is. Record win on the pools was the recent £250,000 first dividend. Reason it was so high was that on that Saturday only eight of the 52 games ended in draws. Only one contestant was lucky enough (the odds are millions to one) to pick the right eight and he scooped all the money allocated for the first dividend.

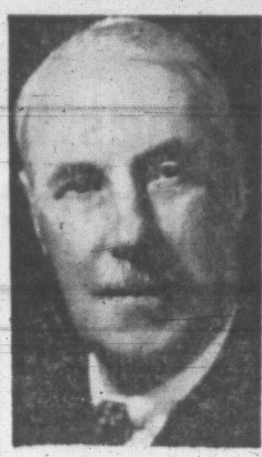

Last week 20 of the 52 games were draws. That was too easy. Thousands of people managed to forecast eight draws and dividing the loot among them all pulled the first dividend down with a bump to £18. Low—but not the lowest ever. One Saturday a few years ago no fewer than half the 52 games ended in draws and the first dividend winners got a mere £2 each.

Last week, with the first dividend only £18 for your twopenny, the second dividend was similarly sad—only £1, and the third dividend a mere 4 shillings. And then a peculiar thing happened. The fourth dividend jumped to 8 shillings.

It was so easy to win the pools last week that if you were a duffer and couldn't forecast a whole batch of draws it paid a premium. So few people were bad enough to rate the fourth dividend that each received a bigger share-out than the smarter ones who got into the third divvy!

I mentioned not long ago the likelihood of North American style drugstores cropping up here. Well, they've started. The first has made its appearance in the London suburb of Streatham, one of a chain which will be springing up all over the country.

Unless you look closely, it's to all intents and purposes what you'd see in any corner drugstore in Canada—soda fountain, candies, cigarettes, drugs, cosmetics, juke box. But there are differences. The English can't be without their rows of big glass jars of their beloved "boiled sweets." The place closes on the dot of 10 p.m. There are no newspapers and magazines. The distribution of papers and mags is a monopoly in this country (being investigated by the new Monopolies Commission) and the Streatham drugstores just couldn't get a permit to sell them.

TAKE FILMS INDOORS, SAYS TOURIST CHIEF

OTTAWA (CP)—Criticism that Canadian tourist films concentrate too heavily on outdoor subjects found support Friday at closing sessions of the federal-provincial tourist conference.

Stephen Greenlees of the National Film Board said he thinks greater diversity is needed. Films should deal with Canadian cities, restaurants, shows, art attractions, historic spots and churches as well as the outdoors.

E. L. Colby, chief of British Columbia's photography branch, urged that all provinces send prints of their tourist films to the National Film Board, preview library where they would have a wider potential distribution.

Socreds 'Niggardly' On Power Subsidies

CHILLIWACK (CP)—The former general manager of the B.C. Power Commission said Friday night that six British Columbia towns carry the whole cost of rural electrification in the province.

Speaking at a public meeting sponsored by the B.C. Farmers' Union, H. Lee Briggs said Alberni, Duncan, Nanaimo, Campbell River, Courtenay, Vernon and Kamloops carry "the excessive costs of the rural distribution throughout B.C.'s 30 power districts." He said that in Fort St. James, 252 customers contribute $15,000 toward distribution expenses of more than $90,000.

Mr. Briggs added that in Manitoba and Ontario, provincial governments pay 50 per cent of these costs, and "in my opinion... the contributions of the B.C. government in comparison are almost niggardly."

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

Reduce Taxes

COWICHAN LEADER—If possession of purchasing power—money—keeps up demand and maintains employment why does the Diefenbaker government not try cutting some of the many taxes upon Canadians to provide this all-important means?

Tax reductions will come only if the public demands them with a voice loud enough to be heard effectively. Government fights shy of this method of increasing purchasing power, probably for fear it might bring prices down and, therefore, government revenues. These revenues are largely collections, by set percentages, the higher the price of goods the larger the tax paid.

Arrogance

COMOX DISTRICT FREE PRESS—If the loggers' union has a complaint on safety against the use of the electronic whistle punk in the woods then we are quite prepared to listen to it and if the hazard is proved then we should be the first to say eliminate it and go back to the old system of a human whistle punk. But we would not be so ready to side with the workers if the reason for protest against the electronic device is that it puts a man out of work.

Japan Launches First 100,000-Ton Tanker

KURE, Japan (AP)—The world's first tanker in the 100,000-ton class, the Universe Apollo, was launched at the former Japanese naval yard here today to inaugurate a new era of transporting oil.

particularly when the union states that it will not "tolerate" such practices. Then, we think, it is time to say a little about arrogance and investment.

Arrogance has no moral right in this case. It is true a man has a right to work. But he does not have the right to tell the company that invests millions how its business should be run.

No, she didn't have to sell the car

When a man dies, his widow is confronted with the responsibility of looking after the family. There are so many necessary expenses . . . so many good things she's used to, like the family car.

This widow didn't have to sell the car. Her husband took a realistic approach to life insurance protection. He carried enough to cover any eventuality.

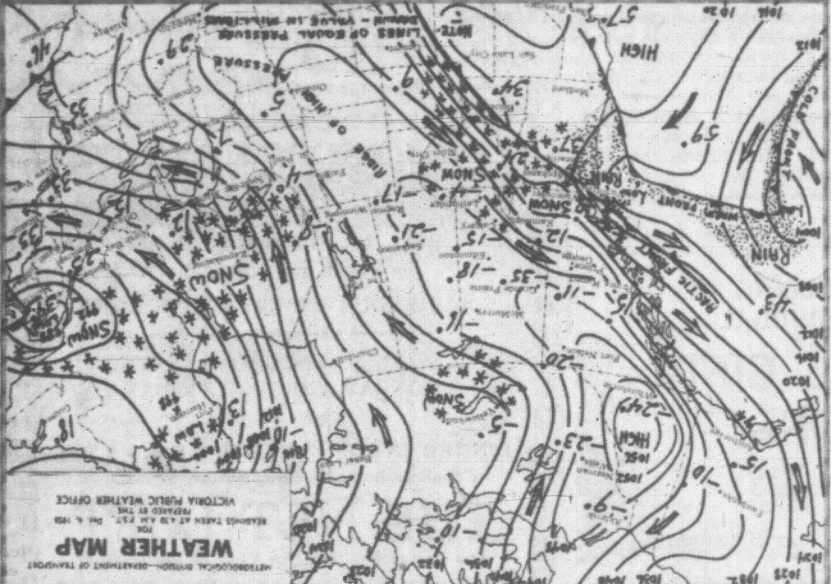

Carrying such protection is not a burden when you select the company that offers family protection at low net cost. That's The Mutual Life of Canada—the company with the outstanding dividend record.

In the northern interior, where skies are mostly clear, night-time temperatures are in the order of 15 below and barely reach zero during the afternoon. From Past to Present ... A Wonderstruck Journey

EAST TO WEST, by Arnold Toynbee. Oxford University Press. $5.

The engagement of Arnold Toynbee upon a world-wide journey promotes a happy marriage of history and geography.

Despite the fact that he is one of the world's foremost historians, before he set out, Prof. Toynbee had by his own admission seen little of the world he analyzed. He also made his journey for pleasure rather than profit.

These two factors, coupled with his academic background, were the recipe for a refreshing series of British newspaper articles, now collected in this book.

JOINED FORCES

It is entrancing to read about a world, the past of which the writer knows so well. In all his observations Prof. Toynbee joins the resources of his intellect with a genuine wonderstruck naïveté. He is able to describe what he sees with more than a dash of poetry, and at the same time to reconstruct the history of his geography.

There is, however, one fundamental of reporting which he cannot apparently attain—"human interest."

Aside from the eloquence with which he meets the world, there is hardly a breath or smell of the humanity that peoples it today.

Perhaps the nature of these articles, written strictly for a tightly-edited newspaper, did not require more than a super-Cook's tour—but viewed as a book, the lack is noticeable.

PAST AND FUTURE

Although Prof. Toynbee saw as much East as West, he did not visit Russia or China. He missed, too, and deliberately, most capital cities, which he regards as stereotyped, and concentrated more on places where history has been made and where it will be made. F.R.

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Critic Teaches Public How to See Artist to Appreciate Own Virtues

Now that the three man-exhibition is on the walls of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, critically speaking it is time for post-mortems.

Partly, this is prompted by a very charming lady who asked me the other evening: "Mr. Williamson, why do you never criticize?"

The answer, of course, is contained in one's own reactions to what constitutes criticism. In these articles which contain, I know too well, a strong undercurrent of critical observation, the tendency is invariably towards commentary.

The articles Williamson comprise a stringing together of generalizations because I am more concerned with the problem of helping people to consider art and artists as a whole exciting world; inviting the readers to plunge for themselves.

Whether they plunge out of their depths or not isn't my concern. I am satisfied if they flounder in the shallows or swim for their own chosen shores.

It's quite enough to know that more and more people are making the effort to see not only with their eyes, but with their minds.

This exhibition provides Victorians with an entirely satisfactory and almost unanswerable conundrum. Which of these three artists, different in character as anyone could wish for, is producing works of art?

Each has a distinct line of approach inviting communication and each is practising what he believes. Inevitably each has faults, and when people ask for criticism they often mean that they wish those faults to be underscored.

Now this, in my opinion, is quite wrong.

Artists, if they are true and proved artists, are only too aware of their "faults"—the majority can spot them far quicker than any newspaper commentator. If an artist can't recognize his own limitations, then it is unfortunate. Where they all fail, invariably, is to understand what they do which is good.

On the whole, the exhibition makes an impression, not always very satisfactory, of desperate experimentation. Too much to say, and not really equipped to say it—at any rate in paint.

Perhaps the next exhibition he sends us will be better digested, considerably smaller and will not leave me with a most uncomfortable post-prandial indigestion.

Two-Way Guide

Where a critic can be of special service is to underscore the good, offering his service as guide both to artist and to spectator.

So on with the post-mortem.

One of three artists, Richard Cicciarrà is the most composed. His is a literary art, skilfully evoking the poetic image; a species of prose-poetry in delightfully colored studies. We look through windows into a patterned world; a sad, despairing world of loneliness. There are distortions (whether all of them intentional or not I would not care to say), making a tendency towards the grotesque which somehow manages to throw these small people into a sharper relief until only their queer, dream-like beauty survives.

If anything, I find them at times rather overcontrived, but not often. Mr. Cicciarrà is an artist who has much to say to us and who should paint a great deal more than he does. In "The Tourist" (2) one sees a suggestion of early de Chirico.

And there is Paul Nash in "Landscape" (3). In the other works, however, Mr. Cicciarrà asserts himself boldly and well. He is an artist whose works should be bought, not only because they are modestly priced, but because such talents should not go unencouraged.

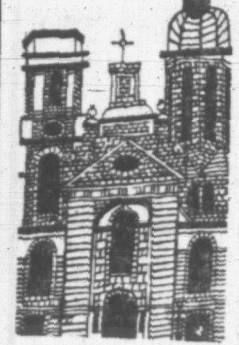

Unfortunate Limbs

Of Mr. Ness, I wrote last week. Seeing the portraits which he has selected for this display of 23 works, I must add a rider to my earlier commentary.

In addition to the hardness in color and composition, a weakness no doubt the result of overconcern with technique, this artist shows that he has clearly not mastered the intricacies of painting arms and

DID YOU KNOW THAT ...

The inspiration for the Chateau Frontenac came from an American lunatic asylum and a sixteenth-century French castle.

For the High Victorians, gaiety was next to godliness.

The Dominion Parliament buildings were laid out on the model of a Baroque palace.

The stonework of the Victoria Parliament Building is more an advertisement of British Columbia's natural resources of andesite, slate and granite than anything else.

Dance Designer Enchants In Words as in Deeds

(Reviewed By Phil Lee)

AND PROMENADE HOME, by Agnes de Mille. Little, Brown & Co. (Canada). 293 Pages.

The author, Agnes de Mille, of course, is the choreographer of the dances that graced such Broadway hits as "Oklahoma!" "Bloomer Girl," "One Touch of Venus," and "Carousel."

Her very name is a trademark in her profession. Even as certain symbols stand for sterling silver or 14kt. gold so de Mille stands for the best in ballet, pinpointing, excitement, enchantment, nostalgia, sadness and most other feelings of emotion as any of those who have had the good fortune to witness her work will gladly attest.

SECOND BOOK

Indeed, it might seem to many that nature has been unfair in visiting so many talents upon one person. For in addition to her very great art of invoking the dance, Miss de Mille can write, as she proved in her first book, "Dance to the Piper."

In this, her second, "And Promenade Home," she demonstrates the same remarkable agility of mood. She possesses the happy knack of making ordinary events of life appear interesting, even provocative.

But she does more than this. She makes her art interesting for those who care little about such things. So, in the end, "And Promenade Home" should win friends from all quarters of the reading public as well as those who are in the theatre and its allied fortresses, television and schools of dance.

NOT FOR FAINT HEARTS

This niece of the famous Hollywood producer Cecil B. de Mille is never more interesting than when she discusses in detail the obstacles, attendant upon a theatrical career. Certainly it is not the life for those of faint heart. For her work in "Oklahoma!" she received a salary of only $50 per week and this after years and years of self sacrifice and disillusionment.

Her interesting sketches cover such internationally famous theatrical figures as Oscar Hammerstein and Richard Rodgers. One gets to know artists of the calibre of the unforgettable Joan McCracken, Sono Osato, Kay Kendall, Celeste Holm and Mary Martin. Her description of Bambi Linn's first night "stop-the-show" performance in "Carousel" is down right thrilling.

They all emerge warm and real, the person showing through the artist. But Miss de Mille writes about none of these more engagingly than she does of herself, her fears, her triumphs, her love for her husband Walter Prude, her mother and father and their home life.

In short, Miss de Mille's latest can be read with delight by all.

AGNES DE MILLE ... agility of mood.

TAKING TO THE AIR as a means of winging her way back into the hearts of London's theatre-goers, Sarah Churchill, who has been in the United States for nine years, will wear tight and invisible wire for her first role since returning to England. She will play Peter Pan in the Barrie classic. Cast as Wendy, and seen here looking happy at the prospect, is Margaret Lockwood's young daughter, Julia.

RODGERS-HAMMERSTEIN AGAIN

Latest Broadway Success Has 'Most' Lovely Music'

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (AP)—A brilliant combination of talents in several fields make Flower Drum Song another intelligent and exciting success for Rodgers and Hammerstein.

The new musical has its Broadway premiere Monday night at the St. James Theatre. Flower Drum Song is a stage picture—painting, entirely separate in mood and story from their previous hits such as Oklahoma and South Pacific.

In this they have taken a story of a family of Orientals who have transplanted themselves in the Chinese section of San Francisco.

BASED ON NOVEL
The story is based on the novel Flower Drum Song by C. Y. Lee, a young newspaperman from China who now lives in San Francisco.

The title is taken from the fact that in San Francisco's Chinatown the lovely girls soothe their more ardent suitors by playing on small drums decorated with flowers.

In this particular family, Wang Chi Yang, a wealthy gentleman who still wears his Oriental robes, is disturbed because his young son, Wang Ta, has become invigorated by American ways. The son isn't sure that he wants his parents to pick out his bride for him. He wants to choose for himself.

STARRED IN SAYONARA

His father has brought over Mei Li, beautifully played by Myoshi Umeki, who won an Oscar for her performance in the film Sayonara.

Wang Ta is lured away by the more sexy Linda Low, as played with zest and exuberant singing by Pat Suzuki, who stopped the show twice with her singing of I Enjoy Being a Girl and Sunday.

But, Mei Li, with her quieter, more circumspect manners, wins back Wang Ta to his family and to herself.

Rodgers and Hammerstein have written in this some of their most lovely music, especially A Hundred Million Miracles and Don't Marry Me, the latter with ribbons of humor.

CAROL SERVICE AT FIRST UNITED

Looked forward to as an annual Christmas treat, First United Church Choir will again present "Carols in the Candlelight" in the week immediately preceding Christmas.

Wednesday, Dec. 17, is the date chosen, and the time, 8.15, at First United Church. Seats may be reserved but none will be held after 8 p.m.

Mary and Roberto Wood will conduct the choral numbers and soloists will be Alice Waddell, Diane Mathison, Sonia Tesluk, Lorna Griffiths, Patricia Wicks, Mrs. Humbert Norbury, Paul Wharf and Allan Husband. Malcolm Hamilton will accompany at the organ.

'Messiah' Soloist Had Early Career

By AUDREY SLD. JOHNSON

Oratorio and folk song—the two genres are poles apart. One, the formal presentation of an epic subject usually religious, in dramatic style; the other, the simple, often naive outpouring of basic human emotions.

Yet Christa Ortlepp, a new Canadian who has called Victoria home for a little over two years, is equally happy in both styles.

Not entirely unusual, certainly; but in Mrs. Ortlepp's case there is an unusual factor.

Those who will hear her sing as soprano soloist in the Victoria Choral Society's presentation of the "Messiah" Wednesday night at the Metropolitan Church will appreciate the exquisite purity of tone that bespeaks in part, her German choral background. They will marvel too at the fluency of her English, of which she spoke not a word when she first came to Canada with her husband, Reinhold, in 1956.

But what is not widely known as yet, is that in folk-song—a realm where word-significance is of prime importance—Mrs. Ortlepp presents vivid interpretations not only in her native tongue, but as well in English as in French or Italian.

With a quartet she made records under Phillips and Paramount labels; just before coming to Canada she placed second out of 700 contestants in a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-sponsored competition.

In Victoria she has started a nursery-baby-sitting service at her home on McGregor Avenue and has, since the birth of her Canadian-born daughter, continued voice study with Graham Steed, choral society conductor of the "Messiah."

She has given recitals at Oak Bay Beach Hotel and been soloist on one or two other occasions as well as appearing successfully in Victoria festivals.

But Mrs. Ortlepp does not intend to extend her field; in fact, she plans to concentrate almost entirely on church music which she feels suits her voice best. So there will be no opera and very little in the way of secular song concerts in the future.

"Yes, I like opera," she admits; "but not light—Wagner, Beethoven—and Mozart, of course."

Still, when she sings on Wednesday night her audience will be hearing her in what she loves most and quite likely in what she really does do best.

I would like to end this column on a Christmas greeting and salutation. A bit early perhaps, but in another sense, disgracefully late.

It is a salutation in three parts: To organist-pianist Richard Proudman who on this occasion of the "Messiah" will be at the organ console; because in the pressure of soloists, chorus and orchestra he will inevitably get elbowed into a small corner and be deprived of his just deserts by the critics, both professional and amateur.

To pianist-accompanist Grace Timp, who created an ideal partnership with baritone Stanley Martin at the Musical Art recital two weeks ago; because her magnificent and artistic pianism went unacknowledged by this reviewer due to a last-minute, unavoidable story cut.

WINNER of many awards and much critical acclamation in world music centres is Canadian baritone James Milligan who will sing for the first time in Victoria when he appears as soloist with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, Dec. 14 and 15 at the Royal Theatre. With the orchestra he will sing Five Mystical Songs by Vaughan Williams, and two arias, Del, viene alla finestra, from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," and Eri tu, from Verdi's "Masked Ball."

Sunday, Dec. 14 at 3 p.m. and Monday, Dec. 15 at 8:30: Victoria Symphony Orchestra; James Milligan, baritone soloist; Clifford Evens conducting. Royal Theatre. Box office, Eaton's music centre.

Wednesday, Dec. 17 at 8:15: "Carols in the Candlelight," annual Christmas musical service by First United Church choir and soloists, under direction of Mary and Roberto Wood. First United Church. Tickets at church office, Western Music, Fort Street, Harmony House, Douglas Street.

Sunday, Dec. 21, Monday, Dec. 22, and Tuesday, Dec. 23, at 7:30 p.m.: St. Luke's Anglican Church AYP presents a Nativity Play. Admission by program obtainable at Kent's Ltd., Fort Street, or at the church, Cedar Hill Crossroad.

(BB PLUS) "HOUSEBOAT" (Royal): Thanks to the varied skills of veteran actor Cary Grant, the eye-filling assets of Sophia Loren and the antics of three engaging moppets Paramount's "Houseboat" manages to splash through as a reasonably entertaining comedy.

In the main, however, whatever bouquets are due the film must be handed to Grant whose adroit handling of rather a depthless role was a joy to watch. Without him the whole would have suffered immeasurably.

Actually the film suffers most from its skimpy plot that at some points rises to the incredible and then descends with the splat of a wet sponge to the humdrum. It offers little for the principles to sink their teeth into and that they do milk the play for all its worth is a credit to their tenacity and their art.

However "Houseboat" has its gay moments. It also has tender, moving scenes such as when Grant tries to explain to his eldest son the meaning of death and life everlasting. Certainly it must be chalked up as a family picture, one that all should enjoy in varying degrees. And this fact alone will recommend it for many who would like movie-going to be a weekly family affair.

The plot in brief: After the death of his wife, from whom he has been estranged for some years, Grant returns to look after the children. One of the children becomes lost and is returned by Miss Lorgn, the rebellious daughter of symphony conductor Eduardo Ciannelli—in America on a tour. Grant, acting on the children's wishes, offers her the job of maid which Loren gaily accepts.

The fact that she can't cook or wash or do anything that domestics should worries Grant for awhile—but only for awhile. Naturally.

"The Doll"
I shouldn't do it... I know it's bad, and all it does is make me sad. But the other day, I got wandering around. In this big store, where "Toys" are found.

I looked up at a doll in a huge pink box. A dimpled blonde... with curly locks. And right away... those "years-ago" flashes, with the same long lashes. And how our eldest... with Christmas glee. Stared back at "her"... propped under the tree. Then picked her up... and felt her curls. "Oh... L-O-O-K, Mummie... the ear-rings, pearls."

Yes... those by-gone days, this new doll, did stir. Till a clerk came up... "May I help you... Sir?" But I just stood... midst the "tears" & turmoil. I was back in those days when we lived in View Royal. "That's a lovely doll," the saleslady said. "With that lace net & veil on her head?" And sensing I was tied... all up in myself. She reached up, & took it off the shelf. Then she tilted it back (inside I did weep). "See-e-e," said the lady, "how she goes to sleep." Then she fluffed up the dress (knew every trick). Then, "Pardon me, Sir, but... do you feel sick?" "Oh... I'm sorry," I replied, from oblivion. "It's just that... 'My Little Girl'... is now 21."

Murder Suspect To Go on Trial

(From CP Dispatches)
NELSON — Leonard E. Matthews, 31, was committed for trial Friday, charged with murder in the shotgun slaying Nov. 24 of George James Alexandria Crate, 43.

Witnesses testified at the preliminary hearing before Magistrate R. S. Nelson that they saw a scuffle in front of the apartment building in which the Crate and Matthews families lived, then heard an explosion. They found Crate lying in the snow, shot in the head.

The dead man's widow testified that she returned home from the hospital at which she worked accompanied by Matthews. She said police told her not to go around alone because her husband had threatened her after she started non-support proceedings against him.

Gary F. Jensen, a boarder at the Matthews' apartment, said Crate earlier took a shot at him with a .22 rifle when he went upstairs and found Crate arguing with his 17-year-old son.

Matthews was committed for trial at the spring Assize here. He was ordered held at Oakalla prison farm.

Woman Killed

VANCOUVER — A 45-year-old mother of six children was killed Friday night when struck by a truck near the university endowment lands here. Police said Mrs. Minnie Point of the Musqueam Indian Reserve was dead on arrival at hospital.

Youth 'Negligent'

KELOWNA — A 16-year-old youth who was said to have been drag racing before his car collided head on with another, was judged by a coroner's jury to have been "driving in a negligent manner." An elderly couple were killed in the crash.

The youth was found delinquent earlier on a criminal negligence charge in juvenile court and was remanded until Dec. 16 for sentence.

HERBERT KENT... founded choir

LIVED HERE 94 YEARS

City Musical Pioneer Dies

Funeral service for Victoria pioneer, musician, and businessman Herbert Kent, who died Friday in St. Joseph's Hospital aged 96, will be held at Christ Church Cathedral Wednesday at 3 p.m.

Dean Brian Whitlow will officiate.

Mr. Kent was taken to hospital Tuesday from his life-long home, 238 Douglas, opposite Beacon Hill Park.

Born in Manchester, England, July 13, 1862, he was one month older than the city he loved. Victoria was incorporated as a city in August that year.

Mr. Kent came here two years later with his parents when the city was still bogged in mud, and water was delivered "door-to-door." He attended the old Angela College, pioneer Victoria school, and this centennial year was honored as a pioneer in public ceremonies.

He was perhaps best known for his musical life, and as the last surviving member of the original Arion men's choir founded in 1892. He retired from active participation in choir activities at the age of 92. Members of the singing group were making arrangements to sing at his funeral.

FIRST JOB

His first job in Victoria was at the age of 10 at the old St. John's "Iron Church," which stood on the site of the present Hudson's Bay Co. store. He was employed to light the fires, gas lamps, and pump the organ.

He married Georgina Waitt in the same church in 1886 and later that year took charge of his father-in-law's music store, forerunner of today's Kent's Music Store.

Mr. Kent made hundreds of appearances in concerts, both as a singer and actor, as well as director and conductor.

ACTIVE IN OPERA

He served as choirmaster at St. John's, at Christ Church Cathedral from 1887 to 1895, and had leading roles in a number of operas and operettas.

Survivors include three sons, Daryn H. Kent, Vancouver; Lt.-Col. M. Aubrey Kent, in Victoria, and one daughter, Mrs. Marjorie Davies, of Victoria; also six grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Burial will be in the family plot in Ross Bay Cemetery. Hayward's are in charge of arrangements.

Alberni Valley Hot Spot With 9 Vote-Bidders

PORT ALBERNI—Hot-test election centre on Vancouver Island this year is the Alberni Valley, where the twin cities of Alberni and Port Alberni are faced with a total of 16 candidates for six council seats.

Nine candidates will contest three vacant seats on the Port Alberni council, and seven men are entered in the race for three council seats in Alberni.

Perhaps the liveliest issue is the Port Alberni plebiscite on fluoridation of the city water supply, with a well-organized group working hard for a negative vote.

In Alberni there are candidates from both sides of a mail service argument, with one demanding delivery, and the other wanting retention of the present service at the post office only.

Labor unions are more active in this election than ever before, with six candidates entered that either hold union posts or have a close association with the labor movement.

FREE RIDE TO POLLS

Junior Chamber of Commerce, which covers the two cities, is offering free transportation in a "get out the vote" campaign, and several individual candidates are offering transportation to the polls on election day-Dec. 11.

Among Alberni candidates are Thomas S. Barnett, former MP for Comox-Alberni, who belongs to the CCF and has labor support, and Ald. Fred Bishop, member of the council for several years, who is sponsored by the Alberni Ratepayers' Association.

In Port Alberni Aldermen Robert Dalton, William Goddard, and Jack Perry, each with at least five years on the council, will attempt to fight off six newcomers.

Backstrom Gains Added Support In Rookie Race

MONTREAL (CP)—A slim, 21-year-old forward who plays with the aplomb of a veteran is making a strong bid to become the third Montreal Canadian to win rookie-of-the-year honors since the National Hockey League established the Calder Trophy 22 seasons ago.

With mid-season voting for the trophy close at hand, Ralph Backstrom looks like the only candidate to whom the selectors will give more than a passing glance.

In 24 games so far, he has scored seven goals and assisted on seven more, Thursday night, playing his first game at centre between Bernie Geoffrion and Ab McDonald, he had his biggest night yet, getting the only two Montreal goals in a 2-2 tie with Toronto.

SHACK ECLIPSED

Before the 1958-59 season opened Backstrom was looked upon as one of the rookies most likely to succeed in sticking in the NHL, but the player scouts were touting as the automatic Calder winner was Eddie Shack of New York Rangers.

Shack has lived up to his advance billing as color guy who liked to throw his weight around and could fight with the toughest, but in the more mundane field of goal-scoring he hasn't been much of a threat.

In 22 games he has managed only four goals and two assists, and his production has tapered off while Backstrom improves as the season progresses.

SHOWED EARLY PROMISE

If Backstrom does not win the Calder it will come as a surprise to some of the men who have watched him grow up in Montreal's farm system, where he has been labelled for future delivery to the NHL since he was in his early teens.

Last season with Ottawa-Hull Canadiens he scored 45 goals and assisted on 53 more in sixty games against junior. A and senior A opposition. Sam Pollack, manager of Montreal's farm system, called him "the best junior prospect in more than five years, maybe 10 years."

Tonight Canadiens are at home to New York and Boston Bruins are in Toronto while Chicago Black Hawks were at Detroit in an afternoon game. Sunday Montreal is in Boston, Toronto is in New York and Chicago in Detroit.

Mount Douglas Takes Title in Final Game

Ricky Blake poured 22 points through the hoops at Oak Bay Friday to pace Mount Douglas to a first-place finish in the Inter-High School "B" Basketball League.

Mount Douglas broke a deadlock with Oak Bay and grabbed the title in the final game of the schedule by defeating the Bays, 39-33.

In Friday night's final game of the "A" league, Victoria High Totems wrapped up second place with a 61-18 triumph over Belmont.

DEFEAT OF A CHAMPION

Condition of battered and bleeding right eye of Virgil Akins is shown dramatically in this close-up taken in 12th round of bout with Don Jordan for world welterweight boxing title

JORDAN NEW WELTER KING

'Honey Bear' Tamed By Young Challenger

By BOB MYERS
LOS ANGELES (AP)—Youthful, unheralded Don Jordan of Los Angeles today reigned as the new welterweight champion of the world. Jordan won a stunning upset Friday night over Virgil Akins of St. Louis, a veteran many astute boxing people felt would give the Californian a horrible beating. But it was the other way around as the two clashed at the Olympic auditorium before 7,344 fans in Akins' first defence of the crown he won in June. The decision was unanimous, by a substantial margin.

Jordan, 24, a 3-to-1 underdog, got off to an early lead and never relinquished it. He never was in serious trouble and wound up giving the 30-year-old champ a bad beating. Referee Lee Grossman under California's 10-points-per-round system gave it to Jordan 145-138; judge Mushy Callahan had it 145-132 and judge Tommy Hart 146-136.

10th ROUND HAMMERING

There were no knockdowns but Akins survived a hectic bombardment late in the 10th round. Jordan hammered him from the Jordan corner to the Akins corner and the crowd roared for a knockout.

Jordan, the boxer, also proved to be Jordan the hitter, and equal to Akins in roughhousing and brawling, which was the main offence of the Honey-Bear Friday night.

Jordan came up with a bad cut over the left eye—he said it was from a butt—and Akins' right eye was slashed and eventually reduced to a swollen mess in the 10th round.

Akins has a contract for a re-match within 60 days. The re-match may be delayed while both fighters' wounds heal.

SURPRISED

Akins, whose headwork and wrestling drew constant boos from the crowd, was humble in defeat. He said Jordan was better than he anticipated. He said he would fight a different style next time.

Jordan said the fight was easier than he had expected. He, too, said he might change his offence next time.

Akins had no alibis and said his condition—a lighter than usual 145½—was no problem. Jordan, at 145, which was high for him, pulled a surprise when he said he'd like to fight Joe Brown for the lightweight title after the rematch with Akins.

WAS SOLID CHOICE

Akins was the solid choice off his smashing knockouts over Tony De Marco and Vince Martinez the past year in his remarkable climb to the heights of the 147-pound division.

It had been a long struggle for Akins after a decade of ham and egg existence. Today, for a while at least, his glory was ended.

For Jordan, one of 13 children in another poor man's family, the glory had just begun.

"It's a great feeling to be champion."

Mel Ott's Widow In Surgery Again

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Mrs. Mel Ott, widow of the former New York Giants baseball star, underwent another major operation Friday.

Her doctor said she should recover, barring any complications during the post-operative period.

Mrs. Ott and her husband were injured in an auto accident Nov. 14 near Bay St. Louis, Miss. Ott died a week later. The driver of the other car was killed in the accident. Mrs. Ott still has not been told of her husband's death.

English Bounce Back

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuters)—Crack bowling on an excellent pitch in sweltering heat forced England back into the game today on the second day of the first cricket test against Australia.

At the end of today's play the score was 156-6 for Australia in reply to England's 134.

Faced with the task of restoring the balance after Friday's cheap dismissal, England succeeded by the excellent work of their five bowlers and by tight and sharp fielding.

Australia was thrown on the four-game schedule. Scorers and league standings follow:

Victoria High—Lorimer 13, Nelson 7, Sadler 10, Black & Barnes 9, Collett 4, Hart 4, Ballouch 4, Hobbs 2, Total—61.
Belmont—B. Spotswood & Porteous 2, Tyndall 6, Floyd 1, Hett 1, Total—18.
Mt. Douglas—Blake 22, K. Greenwood 10, Long 2, Hill 1, Little 4, Total—39.

defensive and at the close was 22 runs on with four wickets in hand.

Trevor Bailey took three for 36. Peter Loader followed with two for 42 and Jim Laker had one for 15. Brian Statham and Tony Lock ended the day with the reward of a wicket—but both bowled with great accuracy and skill. Statham deserved a wicket on several occasions.

Peter May handled his attack skillfully. He was careful to give the bowlers only brief spells to prevent exhaustion in the great heat.

With Matt Around, Rebuilding Won't Take Long

LONDON (CP)—A soccer maxim and a keen eye for talent have made Matt Busby the most successful manager in post-war British football.

When the boss of Manchester United came to the Old Trafford ground in 1945, he inherited a near-bankrupt First Division club with limited resources and a bomb-blitzed stadium that forced the team to play on the neighboring Manchester City field.

His famous motto—"keep playing football and the goals will come," coupled with his ability to spot promising players, has turned Manchester United into a world-famous club.

A record of three Football League championships, three Football Association Cup Final appearances and a league position never below ninth is the measure of Busby's success with United.

His policy at Old Trafford has incorporated a highly successful emphasis on youth, which has been copied by almost all first-class English soccer clubs. His revolutionary plan, started 13 years ago, was to sign promising 15 and 16-year-olds, farm them out to junior leagues, and bring them out to league standard on his own reserve sides.

But Busby has never hesitated to enter the transfer market when seasoned players have been needed. He paid £29,999 to Barnsley for the late Tommy Taylor and £23,000—a record for a goalkeeper—to Doncaster Rovers for Harry Gregg. More recently, he paid £45,000—a British record—to Sheffield Wednesday for inside forward Albert Quixhall.

The Munich plane crash last February came as a tragic blow to the club that was just

Royals Drop No. 14

Vancouver 8, Royals 0

The New Westminster puzzle continues to plague coach Hal Laycoe.

At the start of this Western Hockey League season, the Royals showed enough on paper to prompt the "experts" to pick New Westminster as the team to fight it out with Vancouver Canucks for the Coast Division championship.

And while the ingredients are still there, on paper, it's a different story on the ice.

The in-and-out Royals let go with one of their cold displays at Vancouver Friday night and wound up with an 8-0 beating, their 14th loss in 23 games. The result enabled Canucks to take over undisputed possession of second place.

The shutout was goalie Bruce Gamble's fourth of the year and the third against Royals.

Canuck's scoring spree was led by Gary Blaine, with two, and saw Wally Chevrier pot his first goal in professional hockey. Other scorers were Kent Douglas, Walt Peacock, Ted Hampson, Dan Belisle and Alex Kuzma.

AT PUERTO RICO

Ike Would Appreciate New Course

DORADO BEACH, Puerto Rico (AP)—Stuart Symington, Democratic senator from Missouri, thinks the year-old Dorado Beach course, where the $30,000 invitational golf tourney is being played, is tailored-made to President Eisenhower's game.

And he suggests the chief executive make a visit to this island Commonwealth for both prestige and golf reasons.

Symington, vacationing here, takes his turn on the course when it is not in use by the pros who have reached the halfway mark of their 72-hole extravaganza. Young Tommy Jacobs, Whittier, Calif., leads by a stroke.

Both Jacobs, who leaves the tourney trail temporarily Sunday to go to California to marry his childhood sweetheart, and equally young Wesley Ellis, Aldercrest, N.J., shot 68s Friday. Jacobs had a 71 the first day and Ellis a par 72. Behind them with a 70-71 is Howie Johnson, Glenwood, Ill.

Al Balding, Toronto, was tied in total scoring with Don January, Denver, and Bill Collins, Baltimore, in 32nd place in the 42-man competition. He carded 75-77—152.

Chapman, Hunt Clash For Shuttle Crown

Top-seeded Harvey Hurd tumbled out of the running for the men's singles crown Friday night in the annual badminton tournament of the Victoria Racquets Club.

The former Canadian junior champion dropped a 15-7, 15-10, 18-15 decision to Mel Chapman in semifinal matches at the Amphion Street hall.

The Cougars, who clipped Winnipeg Warriors, 4-3, Thursday, gave it an all-out try at Edmonton Friday night, but lost out when Gerry Melnyk drilled a 15-footer into the Victoria net after almost two minutes of overtime to give the Flyers a 5-4 victory.

George Ford continued his scoring spree and it was his second goal of the game, with less than three minutes remaining, that sent the tussle into overtime. It was Ford's second successive two-goal performance and gave him a total of seven goals in his last four games.

Al Nicholson and Doug Macauley scored the other Victoria goals.

Other Edmonton goal-scorers were Ray Kinasewich, Don Poile, Ed Diachuk, and Gene Achymichuk.

TIE EACH PERIOD

The teams were tied 1-1 at the end of the first period, 2-2 after the second, and 4-4 in regulation time.

Melnyk's winning goal caught an outside corner on a foot-high shot after he took a pass from Brian Smith just inside the Victoria blue line.

Midway through the first period, Kinasewich put Edmonton ahead when sent into the clear on Melnyk's pass. Kinasewich fooled Victoria netminder Marcel Pelletier with a 10-foot backhand.

Seven minutes later, Ford tied the count. Parked at the crease, he steered Nicholson's long screened slider past Edmonton's Ed Johnston.

In the second period, Johnston blocked a shot and was out of position when Macauley's long shot caught the open side.

DEFLECTED SHOT

Flyers tied the count at 2-2 when Poile, at the crease, deflected into the net Frank Roggeveen's drive.

Six minutes after the third period started, Diachuk on a lone rush split the Cougar defence but still had to tap in the puck from a scramble at the crease. Victoria made it 3-3 on a goal-mouth scramble when Nicholson batted the puck between Johnston's legs.

Edmonton went ahead again when Achymichuk deflected Dave Amadio's shot from 25 feet out. Ford slapped in a pass-out from the corner to give Cougars the 4-4 tie and force overtime.

JAKE FEELS JULY BEST FOR ALL-STAR CONTEST

HAMILTON (CP)—President Jake Gaudaur of Hamilton Tiger-Cats says he'd like to see the East-West All-Star football game become a permanent fixture in Hamilton. But in July instead of December.

The fourth annual All-Star encounter was played here today.

Gaudaur said the present post-season game suffers from wintry weather and its proximity to the Grey Cup classic. A mid-summer game would give coaches more time to prepare their clubs. The change to July, he said, would also give cities like Edmonton, Regina and Calgary a chance to bid for the annual Shrine-sponsored game.

FLYING TO CALGARY

Cougars to Use Wilson Tonight

Gordie Wilson gets his wish tonight.

The Victoria Cougar centre, late in joining the Western Hockey League team because of a professional graft disagreement with Springfield Indians, has been itching to get back into action.

He can't start firing at rival goalies soon enough.

Wilson remained in Victoria, much to his disappointment, when Cougars left for their second swing through the Prairie division early this week.

Although he reported to Cougars only a fraction over his playing weight of 185 pounds, Victoria coach Pat Egan felt it would be best if Wilson worked himself into better shape.

Although Wilson is still not in "peak" condition, he's ready to play. So he gets his chance tonight in Calgary.

The lanky centre left the city by air this morning to join the team in Calgary.

Added Break For Amateurs At Clambake

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Play in singer Bing Crosby's annual $50,000 pro-amateur golfing clambake has been revised to give amateurs a better shake.

Tournament director Larry Crosby announced that an even 300 golfers will participate in the event Jan. 15-18 at Pebble Beach, Calif., 20 more than heretofore.

Amateurs will play three rounds in as many days, instead of two. The professionals take over for the fourth and final day, as in the past.

For the first time, there will be simultaneous play on all three of the courses in the Monterey-Del Monte area each of the first three days.

Pros Prove Point

By OSCAR FRALEY

BROOKLYN NAVY YARD, N.Y. (UPI)—The U.S. Navy called on four golf pros this week to prove that it had the biggest war canoe in the world.

This is the U.S.S. Independence, the 1,046-foot aircraft carrier which will be commissioned early in January. The idea was to demonstrate to the civilian mind just how far 1,046 feet stretches when laid end to end.

It succeeded admirably. The four pros, "Light Horse Harry" Cooper, Al Brosch, Mike Turnesa and women's champion Marilyn Smith, toted their fairway luggage all the way up to the flight deck. Then, standing at one end, they were supposed to knock a golf ball over the other end and into the East River on the fly.

IT IS BIG! They were doomed to disappointment from the start. In the first place, that flight deck of some four and one-tenth acres looks when standing on it about the size of Idlewild airport even though a by-standing fly-boy insisted that from the air it resembles a postage stamp.

To add to their tribulations, a raw wind was flicking snowflakes into their faces from off the river and the thermometer was advertising for Eskimos. Cooper, asked to pose at the top of his backswing, never did get the club back down until they took him to the boiler room.

They all finally gave it a go but, as noted, 1,046 feet is an awful lot of carry. Even to a fellow who failed algebra three times, and still can't spell it, it comes out to about 350 yards. And despite all reports to the contrary, not even big George Bayer can belt a ball that far on the fly and into the wind.

235-YARD BELT Turnesa got off the best belt, a 235-yard effort, and every tooth-chattering soul aboard uttered a prayer that none of the Independence's complement of 85 planes would ever even come that close to the edge.

"I can see," said Capt. Robert V. McElroy, who will skipper the $180,000,000 Independence, "that we will have plenty of room on the flight deck for a pitch and putt course." Modesty has made me wait until now to advise you that one person did knock a ball clean over the ship on the fly. Old Fearless, naturally. Of course it was cross-wise, which is a matter of 252 very large feet.

Some detractors will tell you that's only 84 yards but I got credit for 168 yards. It hit the bridge and bounced clean back over the other side. After all, somebody had to prove that the windows on the bridge were bullet proof.

RON WILSON

Keglers Keep Ron at Post

By GRAHAM COX

Only the oldest old-timers can remember back to the days when Ron Wilson wasn't around Victoria's tenpin lanes.

Ever since he arrived from Edmonton 27 years ago, Ron has been quietly active in city kegling circles. And nobody has worked harder to help the pin-busting sport grow.

Even before the current Victoria Tenpin Association was formed in 1933, he was secretary of the Senior Tenpin League at the old Arcade Alley in what is now the Yarrow Building.

Wilson played a major part in the organization of the tenpin association and this week started on his 20th successive year as secretary-treasurer of the group. He is the only person to hold the position.

Ron held the high season's average of the Arcade League in the mid-30's with a 202 mark and even today, bowling in senior leagues at Gibson's and Strathcona, he has 180 and 178 averages, respectively.

A tribute to his standing in the pin fraternity was indicated Wednesday night. When nominations for secretary-treasurer were called, his was the only name suggested.

Also named at the meeting were president Andy Palmer, vice-president Wilbur Webb and committee members Bill Walker, Lloyd Chow, Charlie Marks and Norm Gamble.

Individual honors for the tenpin week rest with Lloyd Chow in the Senior League at Gibson's where he marked up a 620 (203, 230) series ahead of Chuck Bennett 612 (215, 216), Wilf Johnston 597 (203, 230), Bob Bysted 583 (200, 233), Jack Lim 584 (235) and Alex McKeachie 584 (212).

In the Mixed Leagues, Len Murrant rolled tops with 611 (213, 245) to shade Bill Holness who came in with a 585 series.

Commercial tenpinners had Wilbur Webb in the lead with 595 (214, 222) followed by Bill Coates 582 (213), E. Simmons 582 (213) and Roy Begg 580 (246).

At Strathcona, the top tenpin series was bowled by Ian Donaldson in the Senior League with 606 (246).

Young, 18-year-old Stan Bell Jr. stole all the thunder among the fivepinners, even showing up his father, one of the best-known fivepin names in town, when he bowled a sizzling 903 (316, 353) at Capital City.

Father, also Stan, rated next at the Yates Street house with an 843 series ahead of Sam Smitherman 813 (309), Reg Waggoner 802, Harry Smith 812, Emil Liska 838 and Roy Jago 815.

In the Commercial League at Gibson's the top fivepin series was registered at 817 by Stan Gallop.

Top mark among the Esquimalt keglers was registered by Jack Frampton at 813 ahead of Bert Copp with 802. In all 47 bowlers scored better than 700 series there, a new alley record.

In the women's division, where 64 are fighting for 15 final berths, Jere Price, a 26-year-old bowling instructor, moved into the lead with 1,705 pins for eight games.

Mrs. Price displaced the first-day leader, Shirley Garmes of Palatine, Ill., who fell to third with 1,646. U.S. all-star champion Merle Matthews of Long Beach, Cal., was runner-up with 1,690 pins, just 15 behind Mrs. Price.

Ed Lubanski of Detroit rolled the day's best series with a 1,387 on games of 225, 226, 245, 244, 201 and 246. This moved Lubanski into 12th place with a 2,516. The 128 men are also fighting for 15 places in the finals which open next Tuesday.

It was Longden's first mount since he broke his leg Sept. 7 when a horse named Gallant Royal dropped dead while working out.

The 48-year-old English-born rider, the world's winningest jockey with 5,230, said after the race he felt fine and would finish out the season here this month, then ride at Santa Anita in southern California.

"I'll keep going because I love it," said Johnny—a grande un—when someone suggested that he probably still would be riding 10 years from now.

Then he flew back to his home in Arcadia, site of Santa Anita.

Ball Is Most Important

This is the fourth of an instructional booklet, written for N.E.A. Service and The Daily Times by champions.

By LEE JOUGLARD
ABC All-Events Record-Holder

Choose your ball with great care.

It is the most important part of the equipment. Select a ball from the rack at the local bowling centre the first few times you bowl. Then, if possible, purchase your own.

Considering what weight to choose—most men and many women are able to control a 16-pounder, the maximum. If your hands are not strong enough for this weight, through trial and error, however, pick one out somewhat lighter. They are made as light as 10 pounds.

Test the thumb and finger holes, making certain that they fit snugly, yet loose enough to allow you to withdraw the fingers freely.

Check for proper span. Bury the thumb in the thumb hole and wrap the rest of the hand around the ball. If the ball fits, the first joints of the middle and fourth fingers should extend a quarter-inch past the inner edge of the finger holes.

Special bowling shoes may be rented or purchased. For right-handers, the left sole is made of leather to allow for the fourth or sliding step and the right sole of rubber to insure a good, firm pushaway.

NEXT: Grips.

SLIDING STEP is provided by leather sole. Rubber insures a good, firm pushaway.

CBC's CHANGE OF HEART BREAK FOR FIGHT FANS

TORONTO (CP)—The CBC says it will carry next Wednesday's light-heavyweight title bout in Montreal on its full English language television network with the Montreal and Sherbrooke, Que., areas blacked out.

The fight, between champion Archie Moore and Yvon Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., will not be carried on the CBC's French language TV network and there will be no radio coverage.

Earlier this week, the CBC said it would not televise the fight.

Taylor Field now seats 12,860. City council agreed in principle Thursday to a recommendation that the concrete stand between the 25-yard lines be lengthened and that movable steel stands on the east side of the stadium be improved to provide protection from the weather.

'TOO MUCH WHISKEY'

Not Enough Milk

HOLYOKE, Mass. (AP)—Former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis believes the current crop of young boxers doesn't like road work and "they like to drink whisky instead of milk."

Criticizing young boxers' lack of training, Louis says, "condition and rest are the prime essentials of boxing."

Louis, now only 18 pounds above his best boxing weight, said Floyd Patterson, the heavyweight champ, and other division champs are injuring the sport because they don't fight often enough. State boxing commissions and boxing associations were at fault for not enforcing title defence deadlines.

"I think interest in boxing will come up again, but Patterson and the other champions have to box more often to keep the fans interested. You know it's the heavyweight division that really keeps up the fans' interest."

Louis, now only 18 pounds above his best boxing weight, said Floyd Patterson, the heavyweight champ, and other division champs are injuring the sport because they don't

'The Sweet One' Feels Restless

MONTREAL (CP)—Down around Moncton they call Yvon Durelle "Doux"—French for "the sweet one."

But get the free-swinging fisherman into a boxing ring and he's anything but "doux." Ask the 39 opponents he's knocked out in 76 professional fights.

"Everybody down home has a nickname and everybody goes by that name, that's all," said Durelle, who meets world light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore in a title fight here Wednesday.

Evan Pat Colavito, Durelle's roly-poly trainer, a New Yorker with 28 years experience, calls him "doux" but with a Bronx accent.

KNOCKOUT IN SECOND

Durelle, described most frequently as a brawler—champion Moore is known as a crafty boxer—started his professional boxing career in 1948 with a second-round knockout over Sonny Ramsey in Chatham, N.B.

He started boxing because "I needed the extra money and I wanted to fight, that's all."

When would he give up the ring and return to full-time fishing? "I don't know, depends on our wealth. My manager's poor and I'm poor."

What did he do when not training, eating, sleeping, giving interviews or going on television?

"I play cards with the boys, sometimes I cheat a little." "Cheat! Steal! He'd steal the eyes off you," chortled his brother Placid who travels with him.

Durelle said he uses the money from boxing to improve his three-boat fishing fleet that works out of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., a 350-family village on the Northumberland Strait. In season he fishes for salmon, lobster, cod, mackerel, herring and sometimes smelt through the ice in winter.

At 29, he has four youngsters ranging in age from three months to seven years. He is in good physical condition and is becoming restless.

Anti-Socred Pact Urged By Briggs in Trail Ad

By PETE LOUDON
(Times Political Reporter)

TRAIL—The Rossland-Trail by-election battle took a new twist today when former B.C. Power Commission manager H. Lee Briggs intervened in an attempt to marshal a solid anti-Social Credit vote.

In a two-column advertisement in the Trail Times, he called on Liberal, Conservative and CCF candidates to choose a single champion, and make the fight a two-way contest.

Other developments included:

- Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi drew a crowd of 200 while less than 70 turned out at Rossland for a four-candidate forum. Gagliardi said a call Friday for tenders for a long-sought $250,000 underpass here was not election bait, but a coincidence.

- CCF candidate F. E. DeVito said Labor Minister Lyle Wicks is to blame for two years of industrial chaos because he has not set up a full-time labor relations board.

- Liberal candidate Dr. M. E. Krause, a surgeon, said Eric Martin has "disqualified himself as minister of health and welfare."

- Tory party leader Deane Finlayson pulled the Sommers scandal into the open in a radio broadcast.

- The riding braced itself for a final week of campaigning which features a cabinet minister speaker every night between now and Premier Bennett's big rally in Cominco's 1,100-seat arena Dec. 13.

DIVIDE AND RULE

The volley fired here today by Mr. Briggs came as a surprise in view of his earlier decision to avoid the by-election. He still hadn't appeared in person, but his advertisement which, though it is not expected to win candidate cooperation, reminded voters of the importance of their decision.

Part of the ad said: "Long ago, it was said, divide and rule. That principle is being applied today with marked success by Mr. Bennett. He relies upon it to produce a minority vote Social Credit member from Rossland-Trail constituency in the forthcoming by-election.

He urged a single opposition candidate to beat out a "dictator who dominates his government so that they are not allowed to think for themselves."

Highways Minister Gagliardi got some lively heckling here. The minister said the fact that his department had placed a legal notice in the papers that same day, calling for tenders on a new railway underpass on the Trail-Rossland highway, was not a "speeding-up of public works because of the election."

The work had been planned when cabinet met in Trail last August, he said. That went too far for his promise of a new bridge from downtown to East Trail over the Columbia, and the removal of unsightly railway tracks which bisect the "Gulch" as soon as the CPR gives approval.

I DON'T KNOW

Hecklers asked what the government was doing about giving civil servants the right to arbitrate.

"A judge has been appointed to look into it," said the minister. The questioner wanted to know who the judge was.

"I don't know," Mr. Gagliardi replied. (In fact UBC Professor Dr. F. E. Carrothers is heading an inquiry.)

The minister asked a question himself: "What's the good of sending us a member who will speak continually against the government, then come to the highways department asking road considerations?"

He suggested a Social Credit should be sent to Victoria. "We did send one down," said someone, in vague reference to Robert Sommers.

At Rossland's Chamber of Commerce all-candidate rally in the huge modern Senior Junior High School, a crowd of 70 was almost lost in the giant, pie-shaped auditorium.

CCF's DeVito barely mentioned the Sommers case. "I have no thought of mudslinging tonight or casting aspersions on the government, but you know their records and surely there is a principle here."

He plugged for a return of a full-time labor relations board in B.C., charging Labor Minister Wicks must bear "responsibility for industrial chaos of the past two years."

Dr. Krause said the government was hindering hospital and mental institutions by its policy of cost-cutting.

He blamed Health Minister Martin: "He has continually exhibited a defeatist attitude in matters of health and welfare service and in my opinion, he has disqualified himself."

He ended with a mention of political morality.

"We've had denials in high places, we've had betrayals of confidence by Bennett and Bonner. You know what I'm talking about, I don't have to mention names."

Social-Creditor Don Brothers arrived late, having appeared at the Trail meeting with Mr. Gagliardi. He was subjected to immediate heckling, the only candidate so treated.

LAUGHTER, BOOS

"You've had things so good since 1952 you've forgotten what it was like," he said amid laughter and booing.

He criticized the Tory government at Ottawa as "so busy paying off its election debts to Ontario and Quebec, they have no money left to spend in the west." There were several cries of "shame."

CAMPAIGN SIDELIGHTS

The medical profession is torn apart in Trail. Dr. H. E. Krause, the Liberal candidate, has an associate, Dr. James Endicott, cousin to the Peace Council Endicott. Trail's Dr. Endicott is a hard-working member of the CCF campaign.

To further complicate the picture he has been treating Tory leader Leane Finlayson for several days. Mr. Finlayson had an attack of flu and has been fighting his candidate's campaign from his bed, with the doctor's assistance.

Esquimalt MLA Herb Bruch commented on the election: "If Bob Sommers were running in this by-election, he'd sweep in with a bigger majority than ever."

One of the town barbers is laying odds on a Liberal victory. The reason: Dr. Krause has been in every home during his 25 years here and is highly respected as a surgeon as well as a family doctor. As a speaker, however, a press poll puts him behind the other three candidates. The reporters say Conservative candidate Norman Broken-shire has most natural platform style. CCF's F. E. DeVito is most intense. Socred Don Brothers so far has been fairly reticent. But each has ability and each a strong following.

Liberal campaign workers surveyed a neighborhood in Rossland last week and came up with the following statistics: Out of 47 homes, one was Socred in its sympathies, one was Tory, 35 were Liberal and the other 10 CCF.

Victoria insuranceman Waldo Skillings was here earlier this week to assist the Socreds and is expected back before Premier Bennett's wind-up Dec. 13. Vancouver public relations man Bill Clancy is also expected Tuesday. He has been advance guard for the premier on several major occasions this year, including the ceremonial openings of the new Malahat Highway, the Royal Tour visit to Kelowna and the PGE inaugural to Fort St. John and Dawson Creek.

ner-Gren development and supported early development of Columbia hydro. He said he should be elected because "We should have someone in Victoria in the same party as the federal government, to see that Social Credit stops playing footsie."

He too mentioned the Sommers case, indirectly:

"The political morals and political integrity of the provincial government are in question. We in Rossland-Trail are judge and jury. The question being asked everywhere is whether we want promises ahead of honesty and integrity?"

Dr. M. E. Krause, Liberal candidate, criticized what he called Mr. Gagliardi's "clowning" because "we are already the laughing stock of all Canada and we don't need any more clowning in our affairs here."

Dr. Krause said the government was hindering hospital and mental institutions by its policy of cost-cutting.

He blamed Health Minister Martin: "He has continually exhibited a defeatist attitude in matters of health and welfare service and in my opinion, he has disqualified himself."

He ended with a mention of political morality.

"We've had denials in high places, we've had betrayals of confidence by Bennett and Bonner. You know what I'm talking about, I don't have to mention names."

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By MICHAEL ROSE

Question: What percentage of the Greater Victoria electorate do you think will go to the polls in the municipal elections Thursday, and what do you think could be done to get more out?

Mrs. Helen Oden, 3237 Carmen:

"I think I would be right in saying not more than about 40 per cent and that may be too high. I think you could boost this figure to 60 per cent if there was a way of advertising the date better."

Oden Prevost

Mrs. Martha Prevost, 824 Hampshire:

"I should think well under 50 per cent. Municipal elections are the worst attended but there seems to be a general lack of interest all over. There don't seem to be enough meetings for the public."

Bill Berger, 1878 Carnarvon:

"There isn't much at stake this time so I think maybe 43 per cent will turn out. I really don't know what can be done. You can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink."

Berger Whitcomb

Hector Whitcomb, 2566 Prior:

"I don't think it will reach more than half of the people. What we want is more people to go and talk to the voters that know what they are talking about."

Don MacGillivray, Duncan:

"I believe the total turnout will be greater than 50 per cent this time; people seem to be more serious about it. You would get a better turnout if the candidates got out and gave the voters a clear picture of what is going on. Nowadays it seems that all they want to do is put up a haze between themselves and the people."

MacGillivray Barrett

Mrs. Violet Barrett, 869 Darwin:

"If they are lucky they could get 55 per cent. I don't think they stress the importance of getting in front of the people by using newspapers, radio, public meetings and old-fashioned door-to-door campaigning."

Rail Companies Support Compulsory Arbitration

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada's major railways have suggested compulsory arbitration as a means of staving off nation-crippling rail strikes when other methods fail.

They proposed to the federal government that whenever a major rail strike threatens, an arbitration board should be set up for "final determination" of the dispute.

In a brief submitted to Labor Minister Starr Sept. 30 and made public Friday, the railways said the cabinet should name a Supreme Court of Canada judge and two other high-ranking judges to the special board.

The 13-page submission was handed to the minister in response to his call for views on a possible revision to the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act. It was prepared and presented by the Railway Association of Canada.

SETTLEMENT PLAN

The brief proposes that when rail-labor disputes develop, a labor expert should make mediation attempts. If his efforts fail and he reports that a strike appears likely, it says, the cabinet should appoint the special board.

Following board hearings, the parties would have a 11-day period for further negotiations. If all efforts failed to produce a settlement, the board would issue its binding report.

"There is an imperative need to bring to an end what tends to become a national crisis each time there is a major railway labor dispute," the railways told the government.

Little for Taxpayer If Teachers Sliced

City manager C. C. Wyatt told intermunicipal committee Friday that Greater Victoria school board could cut its teaching staff by 30 if it implemented a teacher-pupil ratio suggested by Education Minister Leslie Peterson.

Mr. Wyatt estimated the reduction would cut salary costs by at least $150,000.

But the catch, he said, was that the provincial department of education would be the major beneficiary under the saving.

Municipal taxpayers would save only the relatively small sum that teachers were paid over and above the wage level approved by the department, he said.

Mr. Wyatt made his estimates on the basis of a new formula suggested by Mr. Peterson in a speech to this year's school trustees convention.

By increasing the number of pupils per teacher, the teacher shortage in B.C. secondary schools would be overcome, the minister said.

Mr. Wyatt pointed out that the local school board's staff of 327 teachers was eight below the present maximum number set by the department.

But, if Mr. Peterson's suggestion was carried out, it could be reduced by 30.

Saanich Reeve George Chatterton said he felt classrooms were overcrowded now and the number of pupils in a class should not be increased.

He added that Mr. Peterson's suggestion was designed to relieve a teacher shortage in other areas of B.C. There is no shortage of teachers in the Greater Victoria school district, he said.

The committee voted to request that the school board allow school inspector John Gough to attend the next intermunicipal meeting to discuss the subject.

QUIZZING the GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. Will you please tell me if a strawberry bed may be mulched at this time with chicken manure instead of cow manure, which I am unable to obtain?—R. M. F., Burnside.

A. Cow manure usually contains either straw, wood shavings or similar bulky material which protects the roots as a mulch. Chicken manure is more concentrated and lacks the bulk which is useful as a winter mulch. However, use the chicken manure in early spring as a tonic.

Q. When is the best time to move a holly tree six feet high? K.R.S., Gordon Head.

A. Late April will be the best time. Dig the tree with as large a ball of earth as possible. Roll it, on to heavy canvas and wrap it securely if the tree is to be moved any distance. Keep well watered around roots all next summer.

Q. When should I put in asparagus plants, and how many do I need for three people? S.S., Shelbourne.

A. Wait until April before planting asparagus, but if at all possible, dig over the bed now, and incorporate all the rotted compost or old manure you can spare. At least two dozen plants are needed for a family of three.

Experimental injection of hormones by trained veterinarians has enabled cows to give milk without having had calves, a technique which could add to the milk supply by saving thousands of sterile cows that are sent to slaughter annually, notes a Twentieth Century Fund report.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Culture Methods Differ For New Mum Varieties

By JACK BEASTALL

In last Saturday's Work for Week column there was a reminder to cut down outdoor chrysanthemums, dig up the roots and pack them closely into a cold frame for the winter.

Gardeners' reactions to this ranged from strong protests by those who have never dug up their chrysanthemum roots, to mild enquiries as to why such a procedure should be suggested.

Out of this small tempest in a teapot there creeps a growing belief that a large percentage of our gardeners are not, as yet, acquainted with the hardy outdoor chrysanthemums of today.

This useful group of plants has been improved in many ways. Flowering time, for instance, is no longer limited to November when rain and frost spoil the blooms as they open, and mighty winds sprawl the plants over walk and lawn.

Today's favorites display their charms in the summery days of August through the early fall days of September, a period when they can give of their best and be truly appreciated.

COLOR RANGE

Nor is their color limited to the reddish-brown variety so common to gardens in this area. Such a multitude of colors are now available that specialists list them in groups of a predominant shade rather than separately.

In addition to the whites, many of which are weather-proof, we find groups which include shades of bronze, mauve, purple, red, salmon, pink, yellow, a magnificent range of colors to add to the fall garden.

Nor is there monotony in flower form or petal structure. Those with broad petals curving toward the centre make huge balls which contrast with the reflex-petal forms, the looser cactus and quilled-petal blooms, the large daisy-centred singles, and the smaller profusely-blooming spray types.

These early-flowering chrysanthemums are not left in the beds and borders over winter. When most of the blooms are spent, or have been picked, the stems are cut down to within six inches of the soil and the roots are lifted from the beds or borders with a fork.

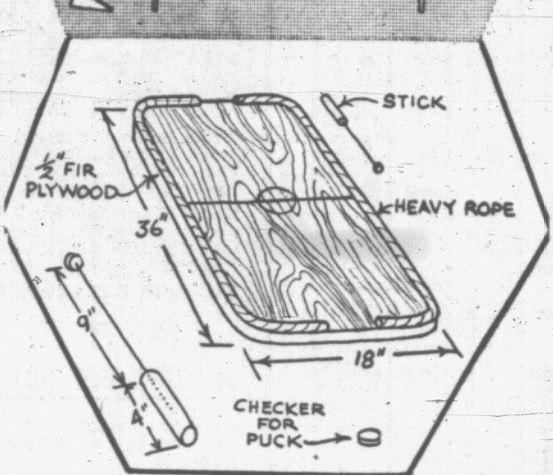

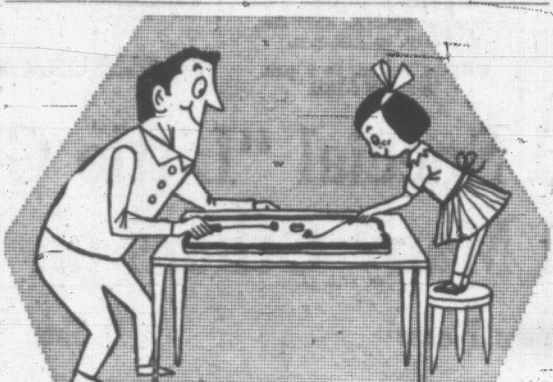

COLD FRAME STORAGE

After excess soil has been removed and an identification label has been attached to each clump, the roots are packed closely together in a cold frame which is freely ventilated but provides protection from drenching rains and severe frosts.

Somewhere between late January and early March the young spring shoots will be seen unfolding their first leaves. When these shoots are three to four inches long they are removed from the parent roots as cuttings and inserted in a sand-soil mixture in shallow boxes, placed indoors and encouraged to form roots of their own within three to four weeks.

Each cutting, when rooted, becomes a new plant which will flower in the fall. When sufficient cuttings have been taken to fill requirements of beds and borders, the old parent roots are consigned to the compost heap.

Plywood Makes Rink For Christmas Fun

Fun for the Christmas party or for any other family get-together can be found in a new game played like hockey.

Best thing about the game is that materials for making the board are already on hand in most basement workshops.

The board is easy to assemble. The playing surface as illustrated here is a piece of fir plywood 36 x 18 inches. It could be larger or smaller depending on individual preference. This "rink" is fenced in with two lengths of heavy rope attached so that openings or "goals" are located at each end of the board.

"Sticks" for playing the game consist of dowel handles 4 inches long and a piece of flexible piano wire to which is attached a slice off a dowel as illustrated. The puck is an ordinary checker.

Object of the game is to push the puck down the rink with the stick and into the opponent's goal.

Two players take part at one time and an exhilarating game ensues. It is hilariously difficult to manoeuvre the puck at the end of the highly flexible piano wire.

Rules are almost non-existent. The players, however, must always stand behind the goal when the game is under way.

The winner can be decided by being first to score a given number of goals, or a time limit can be set with the player who has the highest score, when time is up, declared the winner.

To provide the board with a slippery surface, a good idea is to give the playing area a heavy coat of shellac and sand it lightly when dry. A coat of wax will then provide an excellent surface for the game.

World production of potatoes centres in Europe and the USSR, although this vegetable originated in the Andes, notes a Twentieth Century Fund report.

Hardwood cuttings of many flowering shrubs may be taken now, and rooted outdoors in sandy soil.

Ventilate and water greenhouse plants carefully. The pot plants require individual attention.

Freesias in pots need little water until buds appear. Night temperature of 45 to 50 degrees Fahrenheit suits, and sun warmth and light during day.

Potted azaleas will thrive if syringed with tepid water each day.

Poinsettias and Christmas cherries (Solanum capicastrum) should not be subjected to violent changes of temperature. Both need sunlight and warmth for coloring.

Planting of fruit trees, shrubs and roses should proceed as condition of the soil permits.

Lift and store horseradish. It spreads badly if left in one place indefinitely.

Feeding of house plants should be limited at this time to those which are coming into flower.

By 1975, the magazine estimates, all rooms in houses will be air-conditioned and windows will close automatically if it rains. The front door will be opened by pressing one's thumb on a scanning lock attuned to the resident's fingerprint.

Clues to Safety In Home Wiring

If electrical appliances heat slowly, if lights dim and wires resemble an octopus, the wiring system should be revised. Determine how much load is on a circuit by unscrewing a fuse and adding up the wattage of all appliances affected. For example, a 15-amp fuse will carry up to 1,700 watts. If it carries a heavier load, call an electrical contractor.

'No Vacancies' For Overflow B.C. Engineers

55 Out of Work Convention Told

The "no help wanted" sign is out for professional engineers in B.C., the annual convention of the Association of Professional Engineers of B.C. was told in Empress Hotel Friday.

The two-day convention concludes today, following a luncheon address by Dr. Brock Chisholm.

Friday's session of the 2,000 member association heard a gloomy report from assistant registrar Howard Bennett that 55 engineers are now registered with the group's placement service, seeking work, and that a peak of 108 unemployed engineers was reached last May.

Mr. Bennett said 512 applications for employment were filed from Jan. 1 to Dec. 1 this year. "Of these, 408 were unemployed, or had been given notice," he said.

During the same period, he said, 234 positions became available.

FALSE IMPRESSION

"Letters came in from all over the world," Mr. Bennett told the convention, "and judging by comments in many of them the writers had previously obtained some highly optimistic news about engineering employment in B.C."

"Needless to say, I did my best to correct this false impression."

Mr. Bennett said the decrease in the number of unemployed engineers — from the 108 peak to the present 55 — has not been entirely due to better conditions in B.C.

"For example, several 1958 graduates and a few more senior men have gone to the Boeing plant in Seattle, and other engineers have left the province."

No figures on this exodus are available, he said, "but I believe more engineers have left the province in the last year than have come here."

The contentious question of support for H. Lee Briggs' stand on B.C. Power Commission financing has not come up on the floor of the convention, although it has been a hot subject at closed-door and corridor discussions.

Man Injured, Tree Torn Up By Traffic

A 12-foot tree was uprooted and a pedestrian went to hospital as a result of overnight traffic accidents in Victoria.

Roy Moody, about 25, of YMCA, is in fairly good condition with a head injury at Jubilee Hospital after being in collision with a car on St. Charles near Brooke at 9.30 p.m. Friday.

Police said driver of the car was George R. Payne, 2192 Cubbon, who said Moody was running across the street when the accident happened.

Eighteen minutes earlier a car driven by Walter G. Hanaka, 810 Esquimalt, went out of control in Beacon Hill Park near Simcoe.

Police said the car skidded broadside across 200 feet of park lawn, demolished a bench and finally tore up a tree. Hanaka was uninjured.

CONSULTANTS HIRED TO MAKE REPORT

Experts' Post-Mortem Set on Chest Ailment

Directors of Victoria's Community Chest voted $1,000 out of campaign expenses Friday to hire a firm of consultants to find out whether future Chest drives should be placed in the hands of professional fund-raisers.

The consultants — to be chosen at an executive meeting Dec. 19 — will report the results of their independent survey to a Chest directors' meeting in January.

THE TRAIN WAS EARLY TODAY

An early train nearly caused a late motorist in a level crossing accident at Colwood today.

Driver Harold Gordon Anderson, 43, of 440 Applegate, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital at 7.40 a.m. with shock, a cut lip, abrasions and chest injury after his car was in collision with a CNR diesel locomotive on Sooke Road at Royal Roads.

Anderson remarked at the hospital: "The ... train was early today." Fortunately both the train, consisting of the locomotive and a caboose travelling north, and Anderson's car heading toward Victoria, were going fairly slowly, an estimated 15 miles an hour.

A railway spokesman said the train, driven by engineer Pete Stemo, was an extra which normally would be at Colwood about 9 a.m.

Colwood RCMP said Anderson did not hear the locomotive's warning whistle before reaching the level crossing.

The directors will then decide either to turn the 1959 appeal over to professionals, or hire a full-time, year-round campaign chairman.

It was pointed out that $1,000 was a small sum to spend from Chest funds if it resulted in considerably higher donation levels.

Earlier, campaign manager Justin Harbord described the Community Chest as "big business" that should be conducted on a business basis.

PROFESSIONAL HELP

He recommended the Chest either pay a professional assistant or use professional fund-raisers for the 1959 campaign.

"We'll succeed with properly paid professional help and we can't succeed without it," he told the luncheon meeting held at the YWCA.

Mr. Harbord said there was "no real excuse for us not raising $300,000 in Victoria," adding that a city the size of Victoria should be able to raise $300,000 a year towards the Community Chest.

The campaign, which ended Nov. 31, after two extensions, resulted in about $275,000.

The chairman said another $25,000 could be raised next year with 4,000 volunteer canvassers—a thousand more than were used in the drive just ended.

Mr. Harbord said a major effort must be made in the next few months to attract more charities into the Chest family.

HEALTH FIRM 'CLOSED' TO HIM

Gym Color Bar Slaps Victorian

A Victoria native son had enjoyed every second of his 24 years in Victoria until this week, when he found a door closed to him because he is part Negro.

Richard Wood, 3944 Douglas Street, better known as "Dick" when he was an athlete at Victoria High School, and before that as a Boy Scout, tried to join a commercial physical fitness organization here which runs a chain of studios across the continent.

"Everything was fine until I turned up in person," he told The Times. "Then I was told that it was against policy to have Negroes, in that visitors from the United States might resent a colored man in the same gymnasium."

"It's the first time I've ever run into anything like this," he said.

He attended the YMCA here for four years, he said, and was interested in this new venture because he enjoys physical exercise.

He is employed at Victoria Machinery Depot, where he recently finished his apprenticeship as a machinist, and is a member of the Machinists, Fitters and Helpers' Union, Local 3.

Musical Director Chosen for Opera

Appointment of Stanley Hoban, a recent addition to Victoria music circles, as musical director for the spring production of "Die Fledermaus," by Johann Strauss, is announced by Victoria Gilbert and Sullivan Operatic Society executive.

Stage director is Times music-drama critic Audrey St. Denys Johnson; assistant director is Mrs. Mildred Allen.

There will be a general meeting of the society Monday at 8 p.m. in Studio "A" of radio station CJVI.

Prospective members for both chorus and principal roles will be welcome at this meeting, and it is hoped that former and present members will turn out in force.

Audition dates for principals will be announced at this time.

Mr. Hoban brings to the society the benefit of a distinguished career as baritone soloist, teacher and choir leader; a career which began in England and has taken him to many of the major centres on the North American continent, including Toronto, Winnipeg and Seattle.

He will be soloist at morning service in Metropolitan United Church Sunday accompanied by Mrs. Hoban.

MOTHER OF FIVE SENDS $2

A Sacrifice for Briggs

A mother of five today sent $2 from her family allowance cheque to The Times to help pay the travelling expenses of H. Lee Briggs, former general manager of the B.C. Power Commission.

"It is not much but it is the only way I know to express my thanks for what he is doing for all of us in B.C.," wrote the mother, but did not give her name.

She said the gift was prompted by an editorial in The Times of Monday, Dec. 1, headed "Who Supplies the Money?" and referring to Mr. Briggs' criticisms of the Wenner-Gren development scheme.

"The thought struck me: who supplies the money for the trips which Mr. Briggs is taking to reveal to the people of B.C. the terrible things which are going on in the provincial government."

"I don't think anyone is supplying his fares. I know what it is like to have the income of the breadwinner of the family stopped."

"I am therefore enclosing $2 from my family allowance cheque to give to him ..."

"I would have sent it to his home but there are two H. L. Briggs in the telephone directory."

TIMES CAROL SHEET APPEARS ON TUESDAY

The annual Times Christmas carol and song sheet will be printed in Tuesday's paper next week. Containing the words for 22 tunes, the sheet is useful for Christmas time gatherings and parties as well as for families at home.

A limited number of extra sheets will be printed and will be supplied free to groups who request them from Times circulation, EV 2-3131.

It is suggested that people wanting them for group singing should request only sufficient for 50 per cent of those attending, so that the supply will go around.

Amalgamation Forum

(The big issue to be decided at the Victoria and Saanich elections next week is that of amalgamation. In this column, as they are received, The Times will carry letters from readers pro and con.)

Let's Have Facts, Then Decide

As the one principally responsible, through the Chambers of Commerce, for the 1956 report on amalgamation by the Citizens Research Institute of Canada, which could possibly have sparked the more detailed Deutsch report, my views on this question may be of interest.

I am a native son, I live and pay taxes in Victoria, I call myself a Victorian as I do the people who reside in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt if they are asked where they come from.

What a pity our founding fathers did not open their dividers a few more inches when they placed one point on the city hall and drew a three-mile circle designating the boundaries of Victoria. Would they not have shown greater vision by doing so? Would it not have been better for all concerned if we had grown up within an eight to ten-mile radius rather than being divided four ways?

In 1955, in connection with the C of C report mentioned above, I corresponded with cities such as Hamilton, London, Kingston, etc., who had undergone amalgamation some five to 15 years previously. Toronto was then in the process of a partial amalgamation with, as is usual in such matters, some violent opposition. My correspondence took me also to several cities in the U.S. and as far away as England.

I was seeking "Before and After" opinions which I thought might be useful. In every case I found that while strong objections were quite common before, there was no case of any desire or agitation after amalgamation to return to the divided method. In two instances cities were further extending boundaries. In other words there was opposition before and no evidence of discontent afterwards.

I resent the continued implication by some correspondents to your paper that Victoria, simply because it has always underwritten projects on which the surrounding municipalities suckle, has an axe to grind. Victoria can look forward to being pretty well out of debt in 10 to 15 years. Our services are in and working. In many respects I couldn't care less if Saanich joined us or not. However, I like to think of myself as a Victorian in the more liberal sense. I am willing to underwrite a further effort to provide information as to how joining with Saanich will affect me dollarwise, then I can decide whether it is worth while or not. If part of the final report is surmise, as it is bound to be, I may be willing to take a chance. At least I will have sufficient information to make an intelligent decision.

Without considering material matters my concern extends beyond the three-mile confines of Victoria. Our problems are mutual and should be shared mutually. I can see, I hope, over my back fence which is more than some Victorians (10-mile circle) appear able to do.

Surely none of us can be hurt by obtaining further information, therefore I urge all citizens to give their councils the authority to do just this.

AUBREY KENT, 742 Fort Street.

Accept the Advice of Experts

It is a bold layman who claims he can see both the wood and the trees in all the various amalgamation issues. The mass of statistics alone is intimidating enough. Yet in most public discussions so far, very few of us have admitted, or even referred to, this fact.

We need not automatically bow down to every passing expert. On the other hand, let us not ignore the expert when his qualifications are as impressive as those of the author of the amalgamation report. We know he is impartial. By common consent he has done a thorough job in previous public enquiries. All in all, he is respected as one of the most sound and brilliant men in his field in Canada.

He tells us that amalgamation is in the long-term interests of us all. Surely no one of us, trying to reach a decision on such complex issues as taxation probabilities and municipal debts, could do better than accept his judgment in areas where we are unsure of our own.

HONOR GUARD AT LAUNCHING

Centennial Year Blessing For Latest RCMP Vessel

The spanking new, blue-hulled RCMP patrol vessel Alert slid down the McKay-Cormack ways at 11 a.m. today, with the centennial year blessing of Mrs. Lawrie Wallace, wife of the general chairman of the centennial committee.

As an honor guard of red-coated Mounties stood at stiff attention, the 65-foot, twin-screw vessel slipped into the water in a perfect launch.

After builder's trials, the Alert will join the RCMP's west coast marine division, based at Esquimalt.

HEAD of the University of B.C. department of economics and political science, Dr. John J. Deutsch, who recently completed a survey of amalgamation between Victoria and Saanich, will address the University Extension Association at 8.15 p.m. Monday in Victoria College auditorium on "The Next 100 Years." Admission to the series of lectures is free.

Services to Stress Spiritual Christmas

Carol services, Christmas hymns, and sermons explaining the meaning of the Christmas season will be heard in Greater Victoria churches this Sunday.

Sect Claims Queen Saint of Universe

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (Reuters) — A religious sect that wants to proclaim Britain's Queen Elizabeth "empress-saint of the universe" has been founded here.

The "Arc-en-ciel" rainbow sect bases its doctrine on veneration of Elizabeth as the great sovereign-saint who will inaugurate the thousand years of peace in the world, announced in the apocalypse as "the millennium."

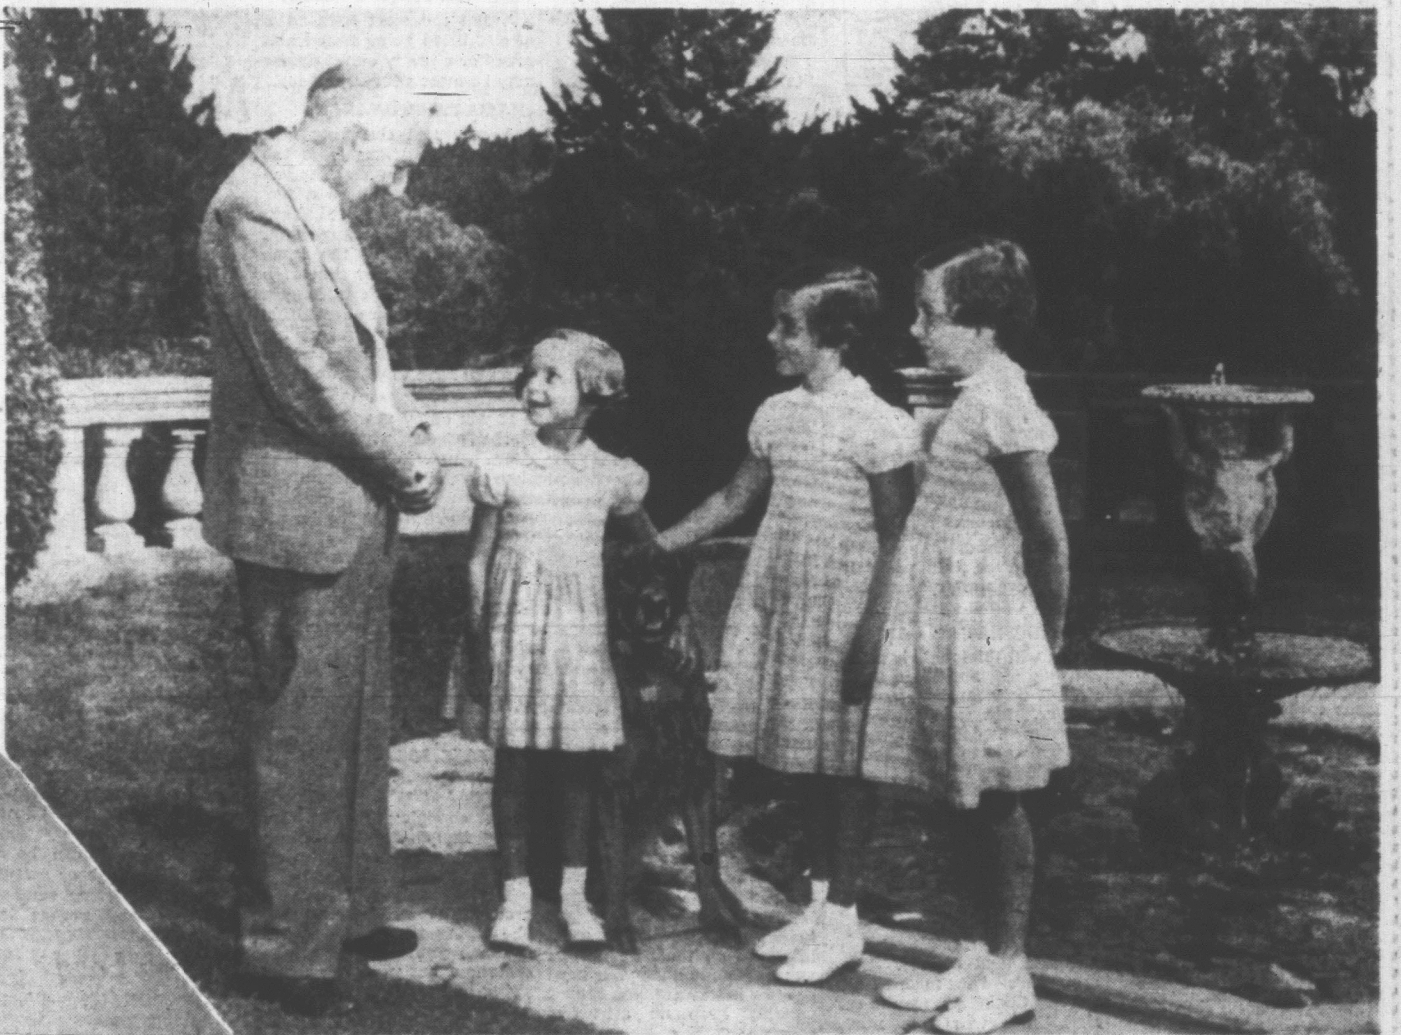

Look Alikes

There's a striking resemblance in these pictures at left, of Queen Elizabeth II, with white fur coat collar, and her sister, Princess Margaret, made as both arrived at the service of the Royal Victorian Order in London last week. Matched pearl necklaces—three strands for the Queen, two for Princess Margaret—were started with one pearl on their first birthdays. A pearl was added on special days and on birthdays until they were grown up.—(AP Wirephoto.)

SHOPPING GUIDE

These Bedroom Slippers
Priced Low for Gifts . . .

By PENNY SAVER

Toasty, warm bedroom slippers are an ideal gift for women at Christmas! Fleece-lined leather moccasins top my list for a smart pair to give and they're only $2.99.

And extremely feminine and dainty are rhinestone-studded velvet mules, also at $2.99. They come in scarlet and black. Another pair of mule slippers are fashioned of terry cloth—simply perfect for after-bath wear. They're $1.99 and are in pastel colors of pink, blue and yellow!

Fashion now calls for neat, headache-bands atop chrysanthemum-like curls! And methinks these patent leather buckle-bands will go over in a big way with the young miss who wears such a bandeau. Stiff, to hold down hair, the band is priced at $1.25.

School girls are all in a fuss about the latest in bobby socks. They're calling them four-way pocket socks. In white cotton, the sock cuffs can be turned down doubly and singly to make a secret little pocket for holding mad money, lipstick or secret notes! A cute idea for only 79 cents.

Any young mother will be pleased as punch to receive this marvelous jingle-bell bottle warmer! It's a fibre glass insulated plastic case for holding the baby's bottle and can be carried anywhere for feeding junior on the spur of the moment!

A bell is attached to sing merrily when you open the case . . . to pacify baby until you give him the bottle! The case is priced at $2.89.

Fur is all the thing this year and these soft neckpieces for wearing over sweaters and wool dresses will be tops with women young or old! In black or white, the long pieces are $4.95 each.

I'm hating myself for reminding you . . . but there are just 15 more shopping days to Christmas! If you're wondering where I shopped today . . . call me at EV 2-3131.

BRIDE-TO-BE LANDS IN HOSPITAL

Our cousin was to have been married three weeks ago. Invitations were issued and most of them were acknowledged with replies and gifts. One week before the wedding day, she became very ill and has been in the hospital ever since. When she is married, it will be a very quiet wedding with only the parents present. How should she word her thank you notes, which she intends to send out before she is married?

Louise

Louise Davis answers:

Your cousin would write her thank you notes just as she would have done had she wedding taken place as scheduled. She can add a sentence or brief paragraph that "We are sorry that we must necessarily have the quietest wedding possible under the circumstances. It would have been so much more wonderful the other way, for we did want our friends to be with us to share our joy." The bride needn't go into explanations of the circumstances, for friends already know and will understand. She has had a rough time, but "will live happily ever after," and that is what counts.

CUTTING ROUND CAKE
You will think this is a foolish question, but I will appreciate it very much if you will answer. My grandson's wife told me I don't know the proper way to cut a round cake. I cut it in a wedge. She says that a piece should be sliced from the side.

Louise Davis Answers:
Keep on cutting your round cake the way you always have—in a wedge. There is nothing incorrect about doing it the other way, but the wedge cut for a round cake is prevalent and correct. Your grandson's wife meant well, for she thinks her way is correct. She was just misinformed!

"So tempting" . . . but the card says . . . "do not open until Christmas." An attractive at-home ensemble of black nylon with snowy white long-sleeved blouse. A bib of gold bangles, a gold vamp band and flat velvet slippers compell the pretty picture.

The man of the house lends a hand with Christmas preparations . . . his comfortable attire is partly responsible for his satisfied smile. Chocolate brown slacks and a slip-on jersey of beige with brown trim and he is all set to welcome friends as they drop in over the holidays.

Women's Lounge-at-Home Duds Glamorous
In Velvets, Silks, Jerseys or Taffetas

Gadding-about clothes were the topic of talk last week. Today—how about some thoughts on stay-at-home duds?

There are so many gorgeous hostess robes, lounging slacks and feminine blouses to talk about.

As these outfits are usually worn in your home you might start by deciding on a color that would blend harmoniously with your interior decorations.

Next you could consider fabric. Are you the chilly type? If so, you might enjoy velvet, velveteen or wool jersey. If you keep your home quite warm—choose taffeta, rayon jersey or silk.

Being comfortable in your clothes is always important but with informal at-home outfits it is the prime requisite.

Do you like to sit on the rug in front of the fireplace and play cribbage, curl your feet up under you when you sit in the big chair, play charades at your parties?

Tapered trousers are fine for all these activities but let's face it, some of us are not proportioned like the girls in Vogue and Harper's Bazaar.

A full felt skirt with rows of silk braid going round and round or a pretty velvet duster may be more your cup of tea.

ULTRA-FASHIONABLE

A new and charming idea for the young hostess is the leotight and trapette. The leotight as we mentioned a few weeks ago is a combined stocking and tights arrangement. The trapette is, as the name implies, a trapeze line top which is mid-thigh in length. The leotights are available here but so far it seems the trapette is something which you will have to whip up yourself.

If you enjoy pretty at-home clothes, and what woman doesn't, now is the very best time of the year to shop for them.

And don't forget the breadwinner of the family when lounging clothes come to the fore.

Presents Best Exercises
For the Face and Neck

Many women have written to me lately asking me to give them a couple of the best exercises for the face and neck.

First let me say that posture, especially the way you hold your head has a great influence on the chin line. If you habitually duck your head or stick it forward, you cannot possibly keep an attractive contour.

Remember, too, that your disposition and attitude toward life affect your facial contour. If you are grim and tense, the corners of your mouth will droop and you will likely develop a strong mouth-to-chin line. In fact your entire facial contour will droop more than it will if you are happy and relaxed.

Now for the exercises! For facial contour. Purse your lips. Draw the corners of your mouth back and up as far as you can. Continue pursing and drawing back. Do this very slowly. Now add the following. While you do the exercise as described, move the lower jaw up and down in a quick chopping motion. Do not let this change the rhythm of the pursing and drawing back of the lips.

You probably will have to practice this. It is something like trying to pat your head and rub your tummy at the same time, but you can get the swing with a little practice. Apply a lubricating cream before beginning the exercise.

For the chin. Lower your head backward as far as comfortable or until you feel the muscles pull. Then lower head and touch it to the chest. Continue, slowly. If you have a double chin, chew in a vigorous and exaggerated way when your head is backward.

If you would like to have my exercises for the face and neck, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 10. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

laid out for the man of the house to change into when he comes home.

The old collar and tie can become pretty tiresome day after day. How about a new Perry Como sweater with balloon sleeves or if he isn't the sweater boy type what about a smart velvet smoking jacket?

A change into something fresh and different will go a long way to perk you up after a busy day. So make your evenings at home something to look forward to with a smart new ensemble.

New Hair Ornament—
'Trembling' Diamond

Both the popularity of the daytime headache band and the increasing vogue for false chignons for evening wear have provided, in Britain, the perfect excuse to resuscitate the strictly feminine fashion of wearing diamonds in the hair.

When Princess Margaret was seen at a ballet performance recently wearing two diamond butterflys in her hair, the seal was set on the new style.

Many brooches can be worn with little adaptation as hair ornaments. There are a number of ways of attaching them firmly to the hair. If the swathe is thick enough, it is often sufficient to pin the brooch firmly into it. If a false chignon is being worn, the brooch can usually be pinned through into the pad underneath.

Alternatively, many jewelers will provide a fitting that will convert a brooch into a hair ornament. Sometimes the jewel can be attached to a comb or screwed into a metal frame equipped with two long prongs that fix securely into the hair. Another, effective way of wearing a single or double clip for a party is to clip it to a black velvet headache band. Worn singly in the centre or in two parts on either side of the band, the jewels make a most effective ornament. A third—and more daring—method is to wear a brooch as a pendant on the middle of the forehead.

Newlyweds Return From California Honeymoon

Recently returned from a three-week honeymoon in California are newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leonard Weinberg.

Couple were wed in First Lutheran Church, Vancouver, by Pastor A. B. H. Hagen.

The bride is the former Miss Gail Truscott, daughter of Mrs. Fred Truscott, Vancouver, and the late Fred Truscott and her groom is the son of Capt. and Mrs. J. L. Weinberg, of Admirals Road, Victoria.

Gold and bronze chrysanthemums and sprays of wheat decorated the church for the attractive evening ceremony.

The petite, fair-haired bride entered the church on the arm of her uncle, William Heycock, Richmond, B.C. She wore a floor-length gown of white organza over taffeta and net, en train. The bodice was enhanced by a lace trimmed neckline and horizontal pleats formed the bodice which extended to a low waistline. Her bouquet was of small white orchids and bronze-toned roses.

For the ceremony, Miss Carol Cote sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Bronze taffeta formed the princess line sleeveless gown worn by Mrs. D. Kirk, matron of honor. Bridesmaids Misses Carol Cote, Sally Atkinson, Sandra Knapp and Glenda Truscott, sister of bride, wore similar dresses in gold shades. All attendants wore bronze and gold feather headpieces and carried bouquets of chrysanthemums and sprigs of wheat.

Ring bearer was Gordon Truscott and best man, James Mawhinney. Ushers were Arthur Williams, Terry Bawn, Donald Gillam and Denis Downman.

Hoyer's Gold Room was setting for a reception following the wedding. Mother of the bride received guests, wearing a green brocade sheath-style dress featuring three-quarter-length sleeves and a wide cummerbund. Turquoise silk was worn by the groom's mother. The princess-line dress was fashioned with a full skirt.

Steven Chahley proposed the bridal toast.

For her honeymoon, the bride donned a royal blue Blin and Blin fitted suit, black patent shoes and purse and off-white hat.

First of 19 debutantes to be presented at United Services Institute Ball in the Empress Hotel on Friday evening was Miss Alexandra Ball whose eyes mirror the excitement of the evening for the young ladies. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. N. Ball of Oliver, B.C., who came to Victoria for the occasion.

DEBUTANTES OF 1958 A CHARMING GROUP

After their presentations, the debutantes joined their escorts and formed a line down each side of the red carpeted aisle. When the last young lady had been received, Len Acre's orchestra played the debutantes' waltz and the 19 couples had the floor for the dance. At the left, with backs to the camera, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. R. D. Travis, wife of the president of the United Services Institute of Vancouver Island, watch the attractive scene.

At the end of the long line of attractive young ladies whose names were called in alphabetical order by Wing Cmdr. J. D. D. Campbell, ADC, was Miss Carolyn Zabel, seen bowing to the Lieutenant-Governor. Mrs. Ross waits at right.

Highway Missionary Works In Alaska; Helps Children

TORONTO (CP) — She's known as "Hasell of the Highway," this elderly woman missionary on 1,000 miles of the Alaska Highway. Brown-eyed Eva Hasell, who shuns lipstick, holds the title in the Anglican Church of Canada of organizer of the Canadian Sunday School Caravan Mission.

Travellers on the Alaska Highway at any time between May and October may see her cooking roadside meals over a portable stove, or changing a tire on her van in three minutes flat, while she moves around teaching children at vacation-time Bible schools.

DEDICATED WORKER
Since 1920, Miss Hasell has worked without pay to take the Bible into the backwoods. Every summer she conducts religious schools in isolated areas, and every winter returns home to England to raise money for the next year's missionary work.

—She graduated from a religious course in England at the beginning of the First World War, and went to France as an ambulance driver. When she came to Canada in 1920, her war work convinced her that a truck was the best method of reaching isolated spots around Qu'Appelle, Sask.

She bought a truck, had the body lengthened, installed a mattress behind the driver's seat and drove it over mud roads. That was the beginning of her caravan mission.

Now, 32 missionary vans operated by 64 women operate in bush areas all over Canada. They visit isolated towns and settlements during the summer, organizing Bible schools for children and holding church services when clergymen are unable to reach the area.

When winter comes, they return to their secular jobs as nurses, students or office workers.

Miss Hasell herself takes the most northerly route, working the Alaska Highway from her base at Whitehorse, Y.T.

IN DAYS GONE BY
Hops Were Socially Right; The Queen a Remote Figure
By MARIE MILBURN

A note in 1898 about the doings of her Majesty Queen Victoria sounds very remote and political. Quite unlike the atmosphere that surrounds our present queen, where we hear the personal side with precious little politics.

In 1861 the Emperor Napoleon was talking about a tunnel under the English Channel. And they still haven't got one.

No doubt we will still be talking about bridges to the mainland 97 years from now. I suspect we all really like living on an island.

Here are the items in question:
"It is said that the Emperor Napoleon has given his sanction to the project of building a railway between Calais and Dover. This undertaking... contemplates the tunneling of the British channel."

"Queen Victoria is disposed to end the discussion as to whether she will pass the spring on the Riviera, in view of the French unpleasantness. Her Majesty will return home through Germany."

Getting people to go to church wasn't the problem 50 years ago, but getting religion into everyday life has bothered ministers for years:
"We are making religion too exclusively an affair of church-going nowadays. The old Christmas carols were written to be sung in the open air or in the halls and kitchens of private houses. They will not bear translation to the quite different atmosphere of the church."

From a November column of Social News, 1898—
"Mrs. Brutus Johnson returned from Florida Sunday evening... it is understood that she will give at least six gossips during the winter. Gossip also has it that she has a new receipt for hair dye which makes an old gold color in one night."

"John Q. Jones, the architect, informed us the other day that he had no less than five orders for stairways... to replace old-fashioned ladders. The day will soon be here when all our best residences will be provided with these conveniences and the ladder relegated to the past."

"Mrs. Jack Thompson arrived here the other day... She speaks three different languages, kills rattlesnakes with a club and is the only woman in the territory who can skin to the top of an 80-foot tree without getting dizzy-headed."

EMPRESS HOTEL?
"Work on plans has actually commenced, and we expect to call for tenders... (on) palatial tourist hotel to be erected on the James Bay reclaimed area... The building will cost $350,000 exclusive of foundations — and immediately following:

"Go to Senate Saloon for oyster cocktail."
Do you suffer from migraines? Have you tried everything? Do the doctors despair?

From 1898 comes the answer!
"The smell of finely scraped horse radish or the skins of boiled potatoes is said to be an effective cure for any kind of headache."

Fund Allocated — Members of Royal Roads Chapter, IOOE, voted $25 for Christmas hampers and tinned foods. Other funds voted were $50 to Provincial Guest House; $25 to education and $7.50 to miscellaneous services. It was reported that clothing valued at $40 has been shipped overseas. Miss H. Rattray gave a talk on Communist China.

DEAR ABBY...

Thanks, for What?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Every Christmas, my husband's boss, who lives out of our province, sends me a huge bouquet of roses. They come from a local florist and do not have to be shipped any great distance. The roses they have sent me every year are the sorriest looking bunch I have ever seen. They are not worth arranging in a vase. I would be ashamed to have anyone see them, so I throw them into the garbage when I open the box. I wrote a nice note thanking this man for his "lovely" flowers. I say we should write this man and tell him the truth about his flowers and my husband says we should skip it and say they are beautiful. What do you say?

DEAD FLOWERS.

DEAR DEAD: I say a rose by any other name would smell—and so would the deal your husband's boss is getting from the local florist. Christmas is an ideal time to talk "turkey." Tell him, by all means.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband. He is a bartender. He stands for eight hours behind the bar, then he takes his apron off and stands for another four hours on the other side. He never calls to tell me whether he's coming home for supper and our children never see him.

He says I'm the best wife and mother a man could want. I get boiling mad at him, but I don't like to show it in front of the children. He says he would like to improve, but he always gets "tied up" with people after work. Can you help me?

BARTENDER'S WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: You can help him by "calling for him" immediately after work, like a mother who goes to school to see her child safely home.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is not another woman, but a pipe! My boyfriend is forever sucking that bloomin' pipe of his and it is driving me out of my mind. The noise it makes clicking against his teeth goes through me like a knife. He is either busy knocking the old tobacco out, or packing the new tobacco in or looking for matches. The aroma (once he gets it going) smells like a rubber boot burning. Am I extra fussy or do you think I have a real problem here?

DEAR ANNOYED: A young man could have worse habits. If you have designs on this man—don't complain, or your dreams could go up in smoke.

DEAR ABBY: I want your advice. I go once a week to visit a friend (lady) in a certain hotel. I sit in the lobby a few hours. There is a gentleman living in that hotel who doesn't take his eyes off me when I come in. He follows me and sits where he can look at me. Should I speak to him or should I wait until he speaks to me? I asked the girl at the cigar counter about him and she said he was "loaded."

ANXIOUS.

DEAR ANXIOUS: Loaded? With money or whisky? If you can't arrange a proper introduction, do not speak to him.

For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

If you want a collection of Abby's best letters and answers in one book, ask your bookdealer to get "DEAR ABBY" for you.

CUT-OUT NOVELTY FOR JUNIORS

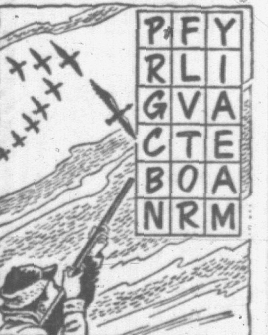

GINGER SNAP?

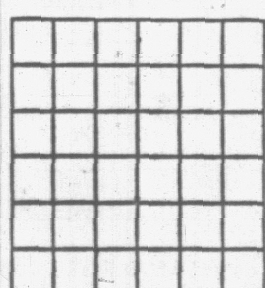

To fashion the cut-out novelty above, use colored pencils or crayons to color the figures appropriately. Paste the diagram to heavy paper or thin cardboard. Press under a book. When dry, carefully cut out around outside lines of diagram. Also cut out hat. Slit hat as indicated and fasten to boy's head. Fold puzzle on dotted lines so that it will stand by itself.

BEADS ON THE BIRDS?

Huntsman Grover Grosbeak thought up this poser while killing time in a duck blind. Grover asks you to bag six birds in the diagram at right by the simple recess of using one letter from each horizontal row. It doesn't matter in which row you begin or end, but only one letter may be used at a time from each. Letters may be used once only per bird. Of course, each bird has six letters in its name. One is a "pigeon." Can you find the other five?

A SPELLING GAME

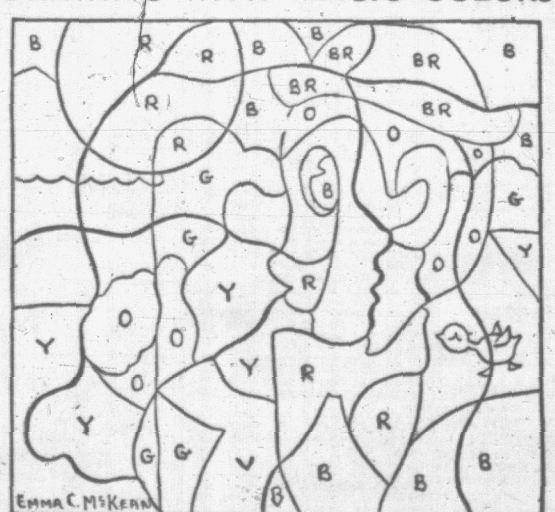

For a spelling game that's fun for a party, try this: Prepare a set of five or six 36-square diagrams as shown above for each player in the group. To play, each player in turn selects a letter of the alphabet. Letters so selected must be inserted by all players. They do so with this objective: to build up as many words as possible across and down as in a crossword puzzle. When all 36 squares have been filled, host or hostess tallies the scores. Each two-letter word formed (either vertically or horizontally) counts two points; three-letter words count three, etc. If two words appear on one line, both words count so long as letters do not overlap. If group agrees, corner to corner diagnosis may also count.

SUBJECT TO THOUGHT
A story of numbers is involved below. Can you substitute numerals for letters so that the "thought" adds up?
WRITE YOUR STORY

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

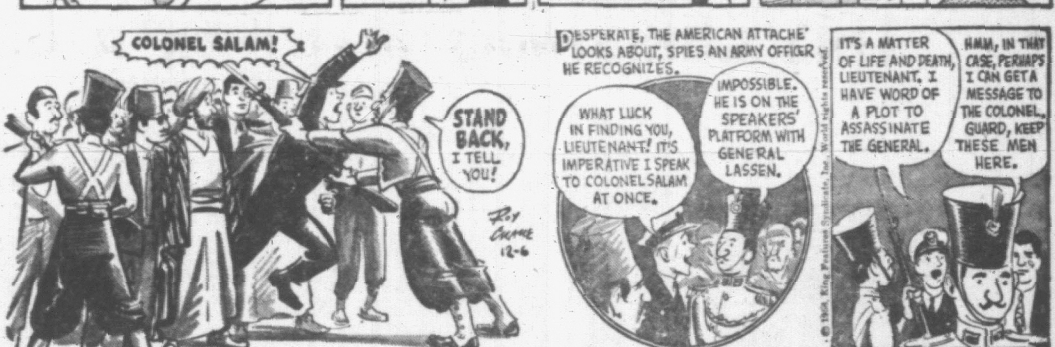

Answer this in nine seconds, please:
A man has to paint numbers on the front doors of all the 100 houses in a street numbering them one to 100. How many times will he have to paint the figure 9?
Beekeeping for honey (apiculture) was an important branch of agriculture in some countries in ancient times, but is only a tiny percentage in the modern economy, notes a Twentieth Century Fund report.

DRAWING WITH MAGIC COLORS

A character sketched here at right is usually viewed in a full array of riotous color—the gaudier the better. To find out who or what the subject is just shade in the segments following the color indicators in the graph: B indi-

Mr. Louise Opta is a permanent resident of Kent's Ltd., and both he and Hy-Edley, as well as their son, look forward to a new life here where they feel they can do their best in community activity—particularly in relation to music. A reception is being held every day in Kent's Ltd. room at 742 Fort Street. Special dress or invitations are not required. All are welcome and the new couple will be glad to offer a gift suggestion.

AROUND THE WORLD

With JOHN MANNING

University student John Manning of 2235 Ripon Rd., has taken a year off from classroom studies to "go around" the world. The 21-year-old Victorian is writing his impressions of the places he is visiting and the things he is seeing.

PARIS—Sometimes on the road thoughts, ideas and memories come to you like visions in an opium dream: it is then that you feel most alone and very much an individual. In these moments your philosophy of life begins to change. You may think of the hundreds of people who have helped you; the little or big things they have done to make things easier for you as a stranger alone and on foot in their land.

There was that boy in the village south of Agra, India; he came up to look at the map. Shyly, mutely, he stood there, his bare feet moving nervously in the dust, the rags he wore hanging limp. His staring black eyes seemed to express something far beyond his years, something of the continual struggle his life was.

FOUR-ROOM HOUSE FOR SALE
SUIT PENSIONER

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned will be received up to 5 p.m. Friday, December 12, 1958, for the purchase of cash of Lot 3, Block A, Victoria District Plan 2214, situated at 3119 Washington Ave., Victoria, B.C. Subject to Charge R.2971-G The Crown.
Each tender must be accompanied by a certified cheque for $100.00 made payable to the undersigned. The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted. Full particulars on application to:—

and would be until death—just to keep his stomach full. How that boy showed you out of the village and walked with you part of the afternoon and when he turned to go back, the grin he gave you.

And from there you think of the times you have shown stupidity and narrow-mindedness. Such lines of thought recall your idle remark to a companion about "the oily looking character in the green suit, sitting over there." This "character" heard and understood what you said, he threatening to knife you and you not understanding his French but understanding his attitude. Then the same man came back to apologize and you ended up talking about his life in Africa, parting good friends but still feeling a fool.

At the end of the road you may find you have learned to keep your mouth shut, eyes open, and mind soaking up those things which, when there are enough of them in your head, you realize you know nothing much about anything.

As another hitch-hiker once said, "I became humble." Or when you found yourself able to help someone else—the old negro woman in the Paris subway, carrying a heavy bag of shopping, back hunched and one thin hand grasping a cane with which she poked along.

And those people of other lands you've met along the way to whom you've talked, exchanged ideas—ideas on every topic. The other travellers, hitch-hikers most of them, you will remember for the rest of your days. They had a typical characteristic—a bit of madness perhaps—but mostly the spirit of adventure.

In these times you wonder if your mother has baked chocolate cake lately, or if the salmon run was good at home. For a moment you might almost hear the sound of that girl's voice, the girl you left behind months ago and you wonder if things will be the same when you get home. This brings the thought that you may not make it home. Fear then enters your mind. To be rid of it you think of other things... you wish you had a dog for a companion; a small yapping one, like the young couple had in Singapore. It used to guard their packs. They had come all the way from Istanbul with him... but then you would have difficulty getting him back to Canada.

You stop for a drink of water. The cork makes a hollow popping sound as you yank it out of the bottle.

FIRST STEP TAKEN TOWARD A-TEST BAN

GENEVA (AP)—The United States, Britain and Russia today approved the first article of a treaty to suspend nuclear tests.

The article lays down the three nations' agreement to stop nuclear weapons tests. But it will have no effect until the treaty as a whole is approved and ratified.

The second article of the treaty which ties the suspension of tests inseparably to an international control organization, still is under discussion.

The two Western powers have repeatedly told Russia they will not subscribe to any treaty unless it spells out in detail a control and inspection system to prevent violations of a test ban.

Army Fails With First Space Shot

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The U.S. Army fired its first space probe thousands of miles into the sky today but hours later calculated that the gold-plated vehicle would travel barely a quarter of the distance to the moon.

Space scientists predicted the rocket will reach a height of 64,830 miles, then fall back and burn up in the earth's atmosphere Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Werhner von Braun, the army's missile expert, estimated that the probe would remain in flight for about 38 hours from the time it was launched at 12:45 a.m., EST (9:45 p.m., PST) at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Pioneer III had been equipped to send back a signal when it passed the moon. Had it been completely successful it would have gone on to slip into orbit around the sun.

Instead the Jupiter rocket that was the first stage of the launching vehicle cut out 3.7 seconds prematurely, and the probe failed by about 1,000 miles an hour to attain the 24,900 miles an hour velocity required to reach or go past the moon.

West Wins All-Star Football

HAMILTON — The West, sparked by Frank Tripucka, Jackie Parker and Kenny Ploen, defeated the East 9-3 today in the fourth annual Shrine all-star football clash.

The freezing weather and the fact that the game was on television kept the crowd down to 3,500, although more than 10,000 tickets were reported sold for the charity affair.

Tripucka, passing ace from Saskatchewan Roughriders, tossed a nine-yard touchdown pass to Ploen, Winnipeg Blue Bombers' halfback, to wipe out a 3-0 lead the east had taken in the first quarter, leaving the West in front 6-3 at half-time.

In the third quarter Vic Chapman of the B.C. Lions kicked two singles for the West.

DRY FIELD

For the first time in the history of the all-star game, weather conditions were fairly decent. Although it was bitterly cold and windy with the temperature around 20 degrees, the field was dry and firm and the sun was shining in a near cloudless sky.

Victory gave the West a 2-1 edge in the series. The first meeting ended in a 6-6 tie. The West won 35-0 in 1956 and the East deadlocked the series with a 20-2 victory in 1957.

Chapman kicked the final point for the West in the fourth quarter.

VARS, Ont. (CP)—At least two persons were injured and others shaken up today when the CNR's passenger train No. 47 from Montreal to Ottawa was derailed about 1 1/2 miles east of here. Vars is 15 miles southeast of Ottawa.

A broken rail apparently caused all six cars to leave the track. The first of two diesel units did not leave the rails.

Low Missing As Socreds Open Parley

WINNIPEG (CP)—A meeting of the Social Credit party's national council started in Winnipeg today without party leader Solon Low.

Orvis Kennedy, president of the Alberta Social Credit League, said Mr. Low had been delayed at Calgary because he could not get a plane to Winnipeg.

"He will be contacting the meeting by telephone later and we will discuss some matters with him," Mr. Kennedy said.

The council, meeting in camera, was to discuss Mr. Low's resignation as party leader, place and date of a national leadership convention and the question of party organization.

Messrs. Snow, Cold Extend Visit

First snowfall of the winter hit Victoria today, and more is promised for tonight and Sunday.

It was the first snow here since the winter of 1957-58, and left an inch of wet, soggy slush on the ground. There were minor flurries during the night, but until early this morning it melted when it reached the ground.

Although streets were sloppy, Greater Victoria police reported traffic was normal, and no accidents were blamed on either the weather or slippery streets.

The Malahat gave trouble at midnight, when a minor traffic jam developed, but it was cleared shortly after by highways department crews.

Later today travellers noted a three-car collision near the summit of the Malahat, and a car turned over near the Mill Bay cutoff. Duncan ambulance attended.

Other snowfalls reported on the island were four inches at Duncan, three inches at Nanaimo, four inches at Port Alberni, and anything from two to eight inches at isolated points along the highways.

Vancouver Island Coach Lines officials said bus drivers on all island routes found road conditions to be good.

"The highways are covered with slush in places, but it is soft and the tires cut right through to the pavement," a company spokesman said.

CAUTION ADVISED

Police suggested drivers should remain alert and show caution during the remainder of the poor weather.

Weatherman William Mackle predicted more snow for tonight because the city is in the middle of a battle between two weather systems.

Cold air is pressing westward from the mainland, he said, and disturbances from the Pacific Ocean are causing warm air to roll in from the west.

He said the snow will be wet, and mixed with rain, but that at night and at higher levels, with temperatures lower, it will be drier and more inclined to stay when it hits the ground.

Temperatures will range between 32 degrees tonight and 37 degrees Sunday.

Ottawa Says Priority Should Go to Columbia

Power-conscious British Columbia feasted today on federal-provincial announcements indicating that the rush is on to supply low-cost hydro power to the lush B.C. and Pacific Northwest markets.

In Ottawa, Acting Prime Minister Howard Green said "steps are to be taken at once to complete an agreement with the United States which will make possible development of the giant Columbia River."

In Prince George, Lands and Forest Minister Ray Williston said the provincial government plans to build two dams on the upper Fraser to provide power to be fed into the proposed Wenner-Gren hydro system.

Mr. Green said Columbia power could be provided to the Vancouver area at less than four mills a kilowatt hour — "far cheaper than power available in B.C. in similar large quantities."

In Kelowna Premier W. A. C. Bennett said that development of the Columbia river would not mean cancellation of the Peace River plan.

"We want them both and the sooner the better," he said. "The more power we have in B.C. the more industries we will attract."

In other developments:

1. W. C. Mainwaring, president of Peace River Power Development, says the Ottawa announcement "adds nothing to what is known about B.C. power."

2. Mr. Green emphasized that the federal government stands ready to help B.C. in the Columbia power development task. He warned: "Postponement of such Columbia development in favor of some other power scheme could well result in making the development of the Columbia River in Canada impossible."

3. Premier Bennett greeted the Ottawa announcement enthusiastically because "we need a power surplus—we'll take the surplus to entire industry." He said the Columbia will be developed "as public power as opposed to private enterprise on the Peace."

Power Commission May Get Columbia

"The B.C. Power Commission will run it unless there are complications over downstream benefits," the premier said.

"If there are complications, I will set up a separate authority to handle Columbia power."

Mr. Mainwaring, former vice-president of the B.C. Electric, and company president A. E. Grauer both claimed the Peace can produce power as cheaply as the Columbia.

While no cost-per-kilowatt had been worked out for the Peace River power, "we have no fears of a price battle," said Mr. Mainwaring.

He claimed Mr. Green's announcement means Columbia power wouldn't be available for at least 10 years since downstream benefits still have to be negotiated.

Mr. Grauer said Peace power will still be needed even if the Columbia is developed as soon as possible.

"By the time Columbia power became available, the electrical demands in the lower mainland and southern Vancouver Island will be rising at the rate of approximately 150,000 to 200,000 kilowatts. With this kind of load growth, B.C.'s share—in which BCE customers have a legitimate interest—would not last long."

He said even if Columbia development started first, "exploratory costs are warranted because if the Peace is feasible it will go ahead at some point."

B.C. Electric is taking part in the surveys. Mr. Grauer said, however, his firm would purchase Columbia power "if the price is satisfactory."

Some estimates of Peace River power range up to seven mills. BCE pays 5.9 mills for its power today.

'We Want to Get Ahead Quickly'

Mr. Green told reporters that a lot of groundwork had already been covered by lower-echelon working groups on both sides.

"We are very keen on this project and want to get ahead with this as quickly as possible," he said.

Whatever agreement is reached with the Americans, it would stipulate that any projects built on the Canadian side of the river would be owned and controlled by Canadians.

MILK FOR HUNGRY CHILDREN

Christmas Spirit Shows

Generous Victorians are tangibly showing that the approaching Christmas season is the time for blessed giving.

Contributions to the "Milk for Hungry Children" fund, which has climbed past the $1,000 mark, will be used to help ward off starvation for thousands of "little ones" in Korea, India and Hong Kong.

A donation, signed merely "J.E.W." had the following attached, exemplifying the spirit of charity in an often crass and cold world:

"It's not what we have, it's what we give"

That fills the heart with joy to live.

It's what we do, not what we say

That adds a blessing to each day."

The Victoria Times is assisting the Unitarian Service Committee drive for $200,000 by Christmas, which will transport dried milk to starving children in a few of the East's hungry areas where the main consciousness among the needy is the overwhelming desire for food.

Money sent either the Times office at 2631 Douglas or the Broad Street office is deductible for income tax purposes.

THIS WORLD OF OURS

People and Things

TORQUAY, Eng.—A bachelor vicar complained in court Friday that a middle-aged spinster spent her time in church "either staring or grinning at me."

Rev. Anthony Rouse, 41, said Miss Isabel Tanner sat near the front of his St. John's church here—"taking no part in the services."

The vicar also charged she wrote him letters and called him up to say "something of an intimate nature."

The judge ordered her to refrain from phoning, writing or otherwise communicating with the vicar and awarded him $5 damages.

TAIPEI, Formosa—The hula hoop craze, introduced to Formosa three weeks ago, took a new Oriental twist Friday.

Two readers of a Taipei newspaper accused the hoop of having Communist leanings.

Liu Hui Ju wrote to the Central Daily News that the whirling hoop "reminds me of the yankos (seed-sowing dance) of the Communist bandits."

Another reader, Wang Tsai Chun, asserted:

"Hula hoops are many times worse than the yankos."

FORT WORTH, Tex.—That traffic ticket B. P. Bludworth

got near here the other day has him up in arms.

Bludworth, operator of a Brownwood, Tex., outdoor advertising firm, says police in the southwest Fort Worth suburb of Benbrook have ticketed 200 motorists from his home county in the last month.

Consequently he has ordered full-size posters for 10 of his billboards beside U.S. Highway 377 between here and Stephenville, 66 miles southwest, bearing this message:

"Going to Dallas or Fort Worth? Follow U.S. 67 through Cleburne. Avoid vicious Benbrook speed traps."

BALTIMORE—The visitor from Georgia, found in a somewhat hazy condition on a street corner, was fined $35 for drunkenness.

When Magistrate James Farnsee announced his guilty verdict and imposed the fine, Christian J. Thomas, 35, of Danielsville, Ga., said:

"Aw, come on, judge have a heart. Give me a break so I can get to Baltimore."

ter, or not guilty by reason of insanity.

"There is a stage of drunkenness," he said, "when a person can't form the intent (to kill). Then the proper verdict is manslaughter."

Earlier evidence had disclosed, the justice said, in his review of the nine-day trial, that the accused had consumed about 26 ounces of liquor the day Mudge was shot. His father-in-law, John Brand, 69, was also slain at the Mudge home, 3460 Metcalen Road, on Sept. 13.

On the witness stand Thursday, Till had said he remembered nothing about the tragic events.

"PECULIAR SAVAGERY"

Mr. Justice Rutland pointed out that the only evidence of a "blackout" was given by Till himself, and it was up to the jury to either accept or reject his testimony.

He indicated also there was grounds for an insanity verdict, due to the "peculiar savagery of the act," and . . . "the lack of provocation for it."

Evidence pointed, he maintained, to a "savage" crime impelled probably "by some desire to have relations with Mrs. Mudge."

Mrs. Phyllis Mudge, 30, was beaten by Till the same terror-filled afternoon.

DRINK AT 6 WEEKS

Crown prosecutor Lloyd McKenzie said that Mudge was guilty of an error in judgment by allowing the youth to persuade the couple to give him alcohol in any quantity.

"Till," he said, "had been drinking for a long, long time. We heard the astonishing report that he had his first drink when he was six weeks old. That, we were told by his father, was given him by his father."

No one, he maintained, would ever know exactly what happened that day, so an attempt only could be made to reconstruct.

"The boy formed an intention of being intimate with Mrs. Mudge. He could not accomplish this with any medium of persuasion. There were no intimate relations in a romantic sense . . ."

MEN IN WAY

"I suggest Till picked up a metal bar, went upstairs and hit Mrs. Mudge over the head from the back, causing a four-inch wound. This was the first of many wounds caused that afternoon."

Then, he continued, Mrs. Mudge either fell down the basement stairs or was dragged.

"He had a desire for the woman, but there were two men in the house sure to be opposed to that desire."

"I suggest Mudge came in from the garden and just as he was outside the doorway Till shot him with the .303 rifle through the breast. Either he fell inside or Johnny pulled him in, then shut the door."

"Johnny then went upstairs, picking up another rifle. The old man (Brand) may have been aroused from his sleep by the first shot. The accused stood in the den door, and fired."

"IT'S OKAY"

"Johnny then went back to Mrs. Mudge, finding her coming back to some early stage of consciousness. The boy did not want her conscious in the basement, so she came to with him holding her by the arm and beating her."

"It was then she heard groans and saw Johnny walk over and fire into the prone body of Mudge with a shotgun."

The accused's actions Mr. McKenzie termed "an impulse to eliminate opposition."

Till's mother, immediately after the trial ended, was asked what she thought of the manslaughter verdict.

"It's okay, I guess," she said.

Funeral Monday

SIDNEY—Funeral services for Rev. Roy Melville, 65, who died suddenly at his home Thursday night, will be held here Monday at 2:30 p.m. in St. Andrew's Anglican Church.

A television set from eastern Canada will cost $1.50 more.

A white shirt will cost five cents more.

BATTLE PROMISED

A refrigerator, washing machine, range, or other major appliances will cost an extra $2.

Wooden caskets will cost five cents more.

Mr. Bonner said these were typical applications as the freight rate situation appears now. He said the government of B.C. will fight the increase on "all possible fronts."

He urged that all Canadian provinces join to present a case which the federal government cannot ignore.

BARRACK-ROOM MURDER TRIAL OPENS MONDAY

Assize Court trial of city tugboatman Leo Anthony Mantha, 31, charged with the Sept. 6 barrack room slaying of AB Aaron H. Jenkins, 23, at HMCS Naden, will open here Monday.

Crown prosecutor will be Lloyd McKenzie and defence counsel George Gregory.

The preliminary hearing of the murder charge which opened in Esquimalt police court Oct. 6 was held in camera.

Mantha is being held in Oakalla jail.

9 Audition For the 'Met' Here Sunday

Nine candidates will audition Sunday in the Victoria area competition arranged by the Northwest Regional Auditions Committee for National Council of the Metropolitan Opera.

Local singers will be heard by a panel consisting of Stanley Hoban, Hans Gruber, Boyce Gaddes and Mrs. Margaret Abbott. Auditions will be held at Holyrood House and will start at 7:30 p.m.

Candidates selected as finalists by the adjudicators will go to Seattle Jan. 10 and 11 for semi-finals and finals.

There, John Gutman, assistant to Rudolph Bing, director of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will select a Pacific Northwest Regional winner to compete in the finals in New York, all expenses paid. First prize will be a one-year Metropolitan Opera contract.

Runners-up in each region will be awarded the John S. Newberry Jr. $200 second prize and the singer gaining honorable mention, the Newberry third prize of $100.

$100,000 Asked in Zoo Death

VANCOUVER (UPI)—Relatives of 2½-year-old Julie Ann Voght of Chilliwack, B.C., who was mauled to death by a lion in a Washington, D.C., zoo last May, have claimed $100,000 damages from the United States government.

The little girl was snatched by a lion and pulled into the cage when she visited the zoo with her grandfather.

A complaint for "wrongful death" was filed in a Washington district court by the victim's great aunt, Margaret Rhinehart Hood of Washington, D.C.

The claim said the girl's death was caused by neglect by zoo officials to provide adequate safeguards around the cage of the African lions.

The zoo is operated by the Smithsonian Institute, a U.S. government agency.

Offer of Land For Fair Refused

The Intermunicipal committee Friday decided it was not prepared to recommend that Greater Victoria councils accept an offer of 10 free acres at Sandown Park for exhibition ground purposes.

Mayor Percy Scourrah said the land was "too small and too far out" and pointed out 100 acres had been leased by an agricultural association at Colwood for an exhibition development.

POWER

ing report is ready March 1, the U.S. will be happy to oblige, he said.

Mr. Green said development of the Columbia will mean tremendous expansion

'Greatest Industrial Area'

In his familiar sweeping fashion, Premier Bennett predicted that B.C. will eventually become the "greatest industrial area in North America."

"We will entice new industry into B.C., both in the Kootenay and central B.C. from eastern Canada, U.S. England and continental Europe."

B.C. has the key location—south is the U.S., north is the Yukon, and north of that is the new U.S. state, Alaska."

The mighty Columbia rises in B.C. and flows through the power-hungry northwestern U.S. to the Pacific. The big issue is the splitting of downstream power between the two countries.

What Canadian authorities

in the Kootenay and Okanagan districts "which could not be equalled or so accelerated otherwise."

Estimates of Canada-U.S. expenditures on the Columbia run as high as $200,000,000 or more.

may suggest is that B.C. get half the additional electricity developed on the U.S. side in return for Canadian payment for administration and regulation of the year-round water flow.

This, possibly, would entail construction of a number of Canadian dams, with the federal government helping B.C. financially in the huge construction job. In addition, lower B.C. would also get power from the proposed Mica Creek project.

The scheme to build dams on the Upper Fraser was drawn following a report by the Fraser River Flood Control Board. The report will be published within 10 days.

Fraser Dams To Be Above Fish

Lands and Forests Minister Williston told a public meeting the dams will be beyond runs of "merchantable" fish and will produce two large lakes.

He said the main dam will be at the confluence of the McGregor River, east of Prince George. The second will be at the head of the Roche Valley, near McBride. The McGregor dam would back water up to Dome Creek and bring a flood plane to Aleza and Eagle Lakes.

Mr. Williston said the government proposes to put the program into high gear to ensure the dams are completed before recurrence of spring floods of 1894 and 1948.

Hydro power produced would be fed into the proposed Wenner-Gren transmission system to the lower mainland, he said.

The minister also said negotiations have been started by the Wenner-Gren organization for purchase of land north of Prince George as the site of a transformer to be used in transmitting power from its planned Peace River development.

The Peace River power would be converted to direct current for transmission to the lower mainland and also would go into Alberta and communities west of Prince George, he said.

Mrs. McGill Rejoins School Board

Appointment of Mrs. W. W. McGill to the Greater Victoria School Board was announced by the provincial government Friday.

Mrs. McGill, chairman of the board, this year didn't submit nomination papers Monday as Saanich representative on the board.

She had decided to retire because she felt she had too many other activities.

But, she said today, she had been strongly urged to reconsider and had been able to drop some of her other activities.

The appointment was announced by Education Minister Leslie Peterson. It is for 1959 and 1960.

From Soup to Nuts, Prices Will Jump for Freight Hike

Recent freight rate increases granted by the federal government to Canada's two national railways will cost British Columbians an extra $8.50 at least in their family budget next year, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Friday.

"The figure will be at least doubled if the railways are successful in securing a further increase," he said.

Mr. Bonner said the best estimates the provincial bureau of economics and statistics could arrive at showed that under the recent increase:

A tin of soup from eastern Canada will cost one cent more than it does now.

A tin of apple juice shipped from Vancouver to Prince George will cost 1/5 cent more.

A television set from eastern Canada will cost $1.50 more.

A white shirt will cost five cents more.

BATTLE PROMISED

A refrigerator, washing machine, range, or other major appliances will cost an extra $2.

Wooden caskets will cost five cents more.

Mr. Bonner said these were typical applications as the freight rate situation appears now. He said the government of B.C. will fight the increase on "all possible fronts."

He urged that all Canadian provinces join to present a case which the federal government cannot ignore.

Mr. Bonner predicted the

City Man Accepts $70,000 For Wife's Death in Crash

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—The attorney for Charles Forace (Pete) Stoneham, son of the owner of the San Francisco Giants baseball club, has asked that misdemeanor manslaughter charges against his client be dismissed.

The motion for dismissal was made Friday after Stoneham's attorney announced a $70,000 out-of-court settlement had been made with William Leach, 63, of 686 Island Road, Victoria, whose wife was killed in an auto accident in which Stoneham was involved last Feb. 4 near here.

Earlier, the charge was reduced from felony to misdemeanor manslaughter when Stoneham agreed to plead guilty to the lesser count.

Judge E. R. Thurman took the motion for dismissal under advisement.

HEAD-ON CRASH

Leach abandoned a civil suit for $250,000 after he made the settlement.

The accident took place while Mr. and Mrs. Leach were on holidays.

According to evidence, Mr. Stoneham crossed a middle line in the highway and plowed head-on into the Leach car. Mrs. Leach, a well-known golfer, was killed and Mr. Leach hospitalized for some time.

THE MOST IMPORTANT DECISION YOU'LL EVER MAKE

When it comes to the future of Victoria, the most important decision you will ever make may well be your vote on December 11th. The Parking By-law vote will decide the entire future of Victoria and your Council feels, therefore, that it has a duty to put the facts squarely before the voters.

Fact No. 1 The downtown area covered by the proposed plan represents 48% of the entire Victoria assessment. This high assessment area may be expanded when a proper plan of downtown Off-Street Parking is put into operation.

Fact No. 2 Experience of other cities shows that either downtown must be revitalized, or residential taxes will increase.

Fact No. 3 The proposed plan will be ENTIRELY PAID FOR BY PARKING FEES. Out-of-town residents who park will pay their share—Victoria residents without cars will pay NOTHING.

Fact No. 4 Now is the time to start the plan—before traffic congestion worsens and business is driven away from the city.

Fact No. 5 No city implementing a plan of this kind has regretted it—cities refusing such plans have had to return to them later, at higher costs.

READ Fact No. 3 again. Your Council feels that this is the fair and sensible way to solve a problem which must be solved if Victoria is to remain a prosperous, beautiful city. Think on these facts—make up your mind, then be sure to

THERE are times when Dame Justice, with all her sternness, permits a slight relaxing of the facial muscles. And there are times, so rare and far between as to pass unnoticed in the hustle and bustle of daily living, when the old gal leans back in her high red chair and larfs fit to bust.

You've got to keep a sharp ear to the ground to catch these diversions, these Protean rumbles of mirth which ever and anon go quivering through the undercurrents of the world. They are rare, and usually well covered. But somehow they get through.

An acquaintance of this column directed its attention not long ago to a short report well hidden in a miscellany of news items in the rearward pages of one of our large national dailies. It was a report of a trial (in England, naturally) which arose out of a wedding reception.

Such trials are common enough, to be sure. But this was no divorce. The happy pair were not, so far as is known, even slightly involved. The ruckus was raised by their parents.

It seems that the mother of the bridegroom had taken it upon herself to make all the arrangements for the wedding. She had even gone so far as to lay on the reception which followed the marriage ceremony, and had provided thereat provender and general catering to the extent of 65 pounds. The parents of the bride must have been delighted to be thus absolved from a traditional obligation. At any rate they turned up and ate hearty.

No sooner had the cake been cut and the merrymaking got well under way than the good lady whose bounty had provided the wherewithal handed the bill to the father of the bride. Just when he was beginning to relax and enjoy himself she did it. Sixty-five quid.

There was a ghastly hush, broken by a startled "Wot the 'ell?" It was as effective as the loud bassoon to get the wedding guests beating their breasts. Against a background of cheers and jeers from the rival factions in the crowd, an animated altercation ensued.

When order was finally restored, the police, good natured fellows that they were, decided not to lay charges and thereby add to the difficulties of the happy pair. Instead, the matter was carried into the County Court, Bridegroom's mother sued bride's father for the 65 pounds she had spent on his daughter. Bride's father defended himself stoutly, and the judge agreed with him.

Said His Honor: "In holding as I do that the obligation was not incurred by the defendant, and that it remains where it arose, with the plaintiff, I am not unmindful of the chaos which may well be the consequence of this decision. There will in all likelihood be considerable trepidation on the part of those hitherto have never hesitated to launch their offspring into the turbulent seas of matrimony, knowing that the expenses incidental thereto may fall elsewhere than where tradition has hitherto decreed.

"But tradition is no concern of the law, at least so far as catering bills are concerned. The piper must be paid, and by her who calls the tune. That is the law, and I am obliged to apply it. But in view of the circumstances of this case, which have considerably lightened an otherwise tedious calendar, I make no order as to costs."

Marriages, no doubt, are made in Heaven. But it is certain that lawsuits are also made at the reception.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Winners Take Less

LONDON—Have you ever heard of any sort of contest for which you get a bigger prize for coming fourth than, for coming third?

It has happened last week on the football pools. The fourth dividend winners got twice as much as those who put up a better showing and succeeded in rating the third dividend.

How can this topsy-turvy situation arise? It seems that it is not unique. It has happened before on the pools. On one occasion those who got the second dividend got much more money than those who copped first prize!

For those of you not familiar with how the pools work, here's the explanation of how this can happen.

Without going into a lot of complicated detail, the basic idea of the pools is to forecast eight draws (ties) out of the 52 games listed. That wins you the first dividend and the other dividends are paid out depending on whether you forecast seven draws, six draws, etc.

The money allocated by the pools company for each dividend is divided among those who win it, so that quite obviously the more winners there are the lower it is. Record win on the pools was the recent £250,000 first dividend. Reason it was so high was that on that Saturday only eight of the 52 games ended in draws. Only one contestant was lucky enough (the odds are millions to one) to pick the right eight and he scooped all the money allocated for the first dividend.

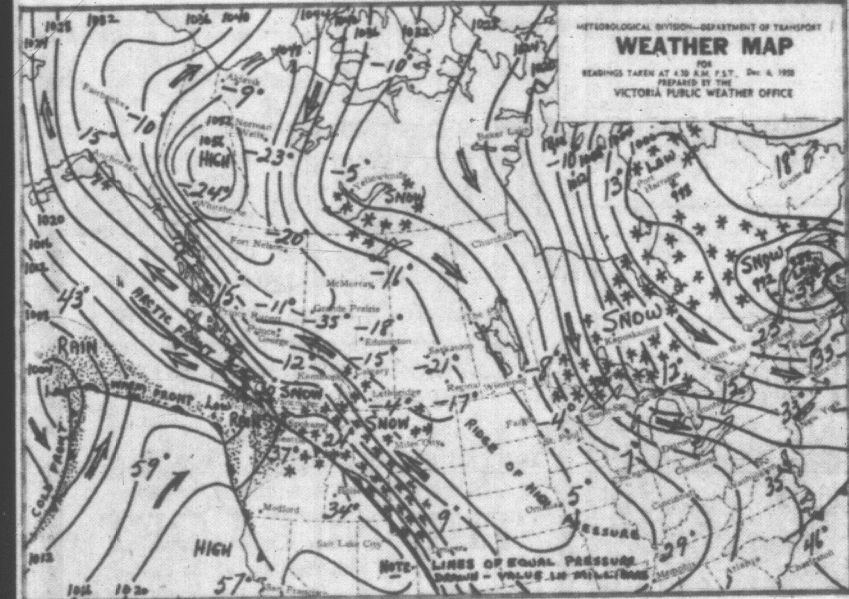

Last week 20 of the 52 games were draws. That was too easy. Thousands of people managed to forecast eight draws and dividing the loot among them all pulled the first dividend down with a bump to £18. Low—but not the lowest ever. One Saturday a few years ago no fewer than half the 52 games ended in draws and the first dividend winners got a mere £2 each.

Last week, with the first dividend only £18 for your twopenny, the second dividend was similarly sad—only £1. And the third dividend a mere 4 shillings. And then a peculiar thing happened. The fourth dividend jumped to 8 shillings.

It was so easy to win the pools last week that if you were a duffer and couldn't forecast a whole batch of draws it paid a premium. So few people were bad enough to rate the fourth dividend that each received a bigger share-out than the smarter ones who got into the third divvy!

I mentioned not long ago the likelihood of North American style drugstores cropping up here. Well, they've started. The first has made its appearance in the London suburb of Streatham, one of a chain which will be springing up all over the country.

Unless you look closely, it's to all intents and purposes what you'd see in any corner drugstore in Canada—soda fountain, candies, cigarets, drugs, cosmetics, juke box. But there are differences. The English can't be without their rows of big glass jars of their beloved "boiled sweets." The place closes on the dot of 10 p.m. There are no newspapers and magazines. The distribution of papers and mags is a monopoly in this country (being investigated by the new Monopolies Commission) and the Streatham drugstores just couldn't get a permit to sell them.

bination of cold Arctic air at low levels and warm Pacific air over-running at higher levels is producing considerable amounts of snowfall. The snowfall should decrease somewhat today but another surge is expected again tonight and may extend into Sunday.

TAKE FILMS INDOORS, SAYS TOURIST CHIEF

OTTAWA (CP) — Criticism that Canadian tourist films concentrate too heavily on outdoor subjects found support Friday at closing sessions of the federal-provincial tourist conference.

Stephen Greenlees of the National Film Board said he thinks greater diversity is needed. Films should deal with Canadian cities, restaurants, shows, art attractions, historic spots and churches as well as the outdoors.

R. L. Colby, chief of British Columbia's photography branch, urged that all provinces send prints of their tourist films to the National Film Board preview library where they would have a wider potential distribution.

Socreds 'Niggardly' On Power Subsidies

CHILLIWACK (CP) — The former general manager of the B.C. Power Commission said Friday night that six British Columbia towns, carry the whole cost of rural electrification in the province.

Speaking at a public meeting sponsored by the B.C. Farmers' Union, H. Lee Briggs said Alberni, Duncan, Nanaimo, Campbell River, Courtenay, Vernon and Kamloops carry "the excessive costs of the rural distribution throughout B.C.'s 30 power districts."

He said that in Fort St. James, 252 customers contribute $15,000 toward distribution expenses of more than $90,000.

Mr. Briggs added that in Manitoba and Ontario, provincial governments pay 50 per cent of these costs, and "in my opinion... the contributions of the B.C. government in comparison are almost niggardly."

Reduce Taxes

COWICHAN LEADER — If possession of purchasing power — money — keeps up demand and maintains employment why does the Diefenbaker government not try cutting some of the many taxes upon Canadians to provide this all-important means?

Tax reductions will come only if the public demands them with a voice loud enough to be heard effectively. Government fights shy of this method of increasing purchasing power, probably for fear it might bring prices down and, therefore, government revenues. These revenues are largely collections by set percentages, the higher the price of goods the larger the tax paid.

Arrogance

COMOX DISTRICT FREE PRESS — If the loggers' union has a complaint on safety against the use of the electronic whistle punk in the woods then we are quite prepared to listen to it and if the hazard is proved then we should be the first to say eliminate it and go back to the old system of a human whistle punk.

But we would not be so ready to side with the workers if the reason for protest against the electronic device is that it puts a man out of work.

particularly when the union states that it will not "tolerate" such practices. Then, we think, it is time to say a little about arrogance and investment.

Arrogance has no moral right in this case. It is true a man has a right to work. But he does not have the right to tell the company that invests millions how its business should be run.

When a man dies, his widow is confronted with the responsibility of looking after the family. There are so many necessary expenses . . . so many good things she's used to, like the family car.

This widow didn't have to sell the car. Her husband took a realistic approach to life insurance protection. He carried enough to cover any eventuality.

From Past to Present ... A Wonderstruck Journey

EAST TO WEST, by Arnold Toynbee. Oxford University Press. $5.

The engagement of Arnold Toynbee upon a worldwide journey promotes a happy marriage of history and geography.

Despite the fact that he is one of the world's foremost historians, before he set out, Prof. Toynbee had by his own admission seen little of the world he analyzed. He also made his journey for pleasure rather than profit.

These two factors, coupled with his academic background,

JOINED FORCES

It is entrancing to read about a world, the past of which the writer knows so well. In all his observations Prof. Toynbee joins the resources of his intellect with a genuine wonderstruck naivete. He is able to describe what he sees with more than a dash of poetry, and at the same time to reconstruct the history of his geography.

There is, however, one fundamental of reportage which he cannot apparently attain—"human interest."

Aside from the eloquence with which he meets the world, there is hardly a breath or smell of the humanity that peoples it today.

Perhaps the nature of these articles, written strictly for a tightly-edited newspaper, did not require more than a super-Cook's tour—but viewed as a book, the lack is noticeable.

PAST AND FUTURE

Although Prof. Toynbee saw as much East as West, he did not visit Russia or China. He missed, too, and deliberately, most capital cities, which he regards as stereotyped, and concentrated more on places where history has been made and where it will be made. F.R.

Now that the three man exhibition is on the walls of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, critically speaking it is time for post-mortems.

Partly, this is prompted by a very charming lady who asked me the other evening: "Mr. Williamson, why do you never criticize?"

The answer, of course, is contained in one's own reactions as to what constitutes criticism. In these articles which contain, I know too well, a strong undercurrent of critical observation, the tendency is invariably to commentary. The articles Williamson comprise a stringing together of generalizations because I am more concerned with the problem of helping people to consider art and artists as a whole exciting world; inviting the readers to plunge for themselves.

Whether they plunge out of their depths or not isn't my concern. I am satisfied if they flounder in the shallows or swim for their own chosen shores.

It's quite enough to know that more and more people are making the effort to see not only with their eyes, but with their minds.

This exhibition provides Victorians with an entirely satisfactory and almost unanswerable conundrum. Which of these three artists, different in character as anyone could wish for, is producing works of art?

Each has a distinct line of approach inviting communication and each is practising what he believes. Inevitably each has faults, and when people ask for criticism they often mean that they wish those faults to be underscored.

Now this, in my opinion, is quite wrong.

Artists, if they are true and proved artists, are only too aware of their "faults"—the majority can spot them far quicker than any newspaper commentator. If an artist can't recognize his own limitations, then it is unfortunate. Where they all fail, invariably, is to understand what they do which is good.

Two-Way Guide

Where a critic can be of special service is to underscore the good, offering his service as guide both to artist and to spectator.

So on with the post-mortem.

One of three artists, Richard Cicciomarra is the most composed. His is a literary art, skillfully evoking the poetic image; a species of prose-poetry in delightfully colored studies. We look through windows into a patterned world; a sad, despairing world of loneliness. There are distortions (whether all of them intentional or not I would not care to say), making a tendency towards the grotesque which somehow manages to throw these small people into a sharper relief until only their queer, dreamlike beauty survives.

If anything, I find them at times rather overcontrived, but not often. Mr. Cicciomarra is an artist who has much to say to us and who should paint a great deal more than he does. In "The Tourist" (2) one sees a suggestion of early de Chirico.

And there is Paul Nash in "Landscape" (3). In the other works, however, Mr. Cicciomarra asserts himself boldly and well. He is an artist whose works should be bought; not only because they are modestly priced, but because such talents should not go unencouraged.

Unfortunate Limbs

Of Mr. Ness I wrote last week. Seeing the portraits which he has selected for this display of 23 works, I must add a rider to my earlier commentary.

In addition to the hardness in color and composition, a weakness no doubt the result of overconcern with technique, this artist shows that he has clearly not mastered the intricacies of painting arms and

AND PROMENADE HOME, by Agnes de Mille. Little, Brown & Co. (Canada). 293 Pages.

The author, Agnes de Mille, of course, is the choreographer of the dances that graced such Broadway hits as "Oklahoma!" "Bloomer Girl," "One Touch of Venus," and "Carousel."

Her very name is a trademark in her profession. Even as certain symbols stand for sterling silver or 14kt. gold so de Mille stands for the best in ballet, pinpointing excitement, enchantment, nostalgia, sadness and most other feelings of emotion as any of those who have had the good fortune to witness her work will gladly attest.

SECOND BOOK

Indeed, it might seem to many that nature has been unfair in visiting so many talents upon one person. For in addition to her very great art of invoking the dance, Miss de Mille can write, as she proved in her first book, "Dance to the Piper."

In this, her second, "And Promenade Home," she demonstrates the same remarkable agility of mood. She possesses the happy knack of making ordinary events of life appear interesting, even provocative.

But she does more than this. She makes her art interesting for those who care little about such things. So, in the end, "And Promenade Home" should win friends from all quarters of the reading public as well as those who are in the theatre and its allied fortresses, television and schools of dance.

NOT FOR FAINT HEARTS

This niece of the famous Hollywood producer Cecil B. de Mille is never more interesting than when she discusses in detail the obstacles, attendant upon a theatrical career. Certainly it is not the life for those of faint heart. For her work in "Oklahoma!" she received a salary of only $50 per week and this after

RODGERS-HAMMERSTEIN AGAIN

Latest Broadway Success Has 'Most Lovely Music'

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (AP)—A brilliant combination of talents in several fields make Flower Drum Song another intelligent and exciting success for Rodgers and Hammerstein.

The new musical had its Broadway premiere Monday night at the St. James Theatre. Flower Drum Song is a stage picture — painting, entirely separate in mood and story from their previous hits such as Oklahoma and South Pacific.

In this they have taken a story of a family of Orientals who have transplanted themselves in the Chinese section of San Francisco.

Based on novel The story is based on the novel Flower Drum Song by C. Y. Lee, a young newspaperman from China who now lives in San Francisco.

The title is taken from the fact that in San Francisco's Chinatown the lovely girls soothe their more ardent suitors by playing on small drums decorated with flowers.

In this particular family, Wang Chi Yang, a wealthy gentleman who still wears his Oriental robes, is disturbed because his young son, Wang Ta, has become invigorated by American ways. The son isn't sure that he wants his parents to pick out his bride for him. He wants to choose for himself.

STARRED IN SAYONARA

His father has brought over Mei Li, beautifully played by Myoshi Umeki, who won an Oscar for her performance in the film Sayonara.

Wang Ta is lured away by the more sexy Linda Low, as played with zest and exuberant singing by Pat Suzuki, who stopped the show twice with her singing of I Enjoy Being a Girl and Sunday.

But, Mei Li, with her quieter, more circumspect manners, wins back Wang Ta to his family and to herself.

Rodgers and Hammerstein have written in this some of their most lovely music, especially A Hundred Million Miracles and Don't Marry Me, the latter with ribbons of humor.

CAROL SERVICE AT FIRST UNITED

By AUDREY SLD. JOHNSON

Oratorio and folk song — the two genres are poles apart. One, the formal presentation of an epic subject, usually religious, in dramatic style; the other, the simple, often naive outpouring of basic human emotions.

Yet Christa Ortlepp, a new Canadian who has called Victoria home for a little over two years, is equally happy in both styles.

Not entirely unusual, certainly; but in Mrs. Ortlepp's case there is an unusual factor.

Those who will hear her sing as soprano soloist in the Victoria Choral Society's presentation of the "Messiah" Wednesday night at the Metropolitan Church will appreciate the exquisite purity of tone that bespeaks in part, her German choral background. They will marvel too at the fluency of her English, of which she spoke not a word when she first came to Canada with her husband, Reinhold, in 1956.

But what is not widely known as yet, is that in folk-song—a realm where word-significance is of prime importance—Mrs. Ortlepp presents vivid interpretations not only in her native tongue, but as well in English as in French or Italian.

Second Out of 700

Youthful and arresting both in appearance and personality, the mother of a six-year-old daughter and one of nine months, Mrs. Ortlepp first sang in public in her early teens in Hamburg and was for nine years a member and featured soloist of the radio choir of that city, where her well-known teacher was Karl Oskar Dittmer.

With a quartet she made records under Phillips and Paramount labels; just before coming to Canada she placed second out of 700 contestants in a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-sponsored competition. In Victoria she has started a nursery-baby-sitting service at her home on McGregor Avenue and has, since the birth of her Canadian-born daughter, continued voice study with Graham Steed, choral society conductor of the "Messiah." She has given recitals at Oak Bay Beach Hotel and been soloist on one or two other occasions as well as appearing successfully in Victoria festivals.

But Mrs. Ortlepp does not intend to extend her field; in fact, she plans to concentrate almost entirely on church music which she feels suits her voice best. So there will be no opera and very little in the way of secular song concerts in the future.

"Yes, I like opera," she admits; "but not light—Wagner, Beethoven — and Mozart, of course."

Still, when she sings on Wednesday night her audience will be hearing her in what she loves most and quite likely in what she really does do best.

In Appreciation

I would like to end this column on a Christmas greeting and salutation. A bit early perhaps, but in another sense, disgracefully late.

It is a salutation in three parts:

To organist-pianist Richard Proudman who on this occasion of the "Messiah" will be at the organ console; because in the pressure of soloists, chorus and orchestra he will inevitably get elbowed into a small corner and be deprived of his just deserts by the critics, both professional and amateur.

To pianist-accompanist Grace Timp, who created an ideal partnership with baritone Stanley Martin at the Musical Art recital two weeks ago; because her magnificent and artistic pianism went unacknowledged by this reviewer due to a last-minute, unavoidable story cut . . .

(BB PLUS) "HOUSEBOAT" (Royal): Thanks to the varied skills of veteran actor Cary Grant, the eye-filling assets of Sophia Loren and the antics of three engaging moppets Paramount's "Houseboat" manages to splash through as a reasonably entertaining comedy.

In the main, however, whatever bouquets are due the film must be handed to Grant whose adroit handling of rather a depthless role was a joy to watch. Without him the whole would have suffered immeasurably.

Actually the film suffers most from its skimpy plot that at some points rises to the incredible and then descends with the splat of a wet sponge to the humdrum. It offers little for the principles to sink their teeth into and that they do milk the play for all its worth is a credit to their tenacity and their art.

However "Houseboat" has its gay moments. It also has tender, moving scenes such as when Grant tries to explain to his eldest son the meaning of death and life everlasting. Certainly it must be chalked up as a family picture, one that all should enjoy in varying degrees. And this fact alone will recommend it for many who would like movie-going to be a weekly family affair.

The plot in brief:

After the death of his wife, from whom he has been estranged for some years, Grant returns to look after the children. One of the children becomes lost and is returned by Miss Loren, the rebellious daughter of symphony conductor Eduardo Ciannelli in America on a tour. Grant, acting on the children's wishes, offers her the job of maid which Loren gaily accepts.

The fact that she can't cook or wash or do anything that domestics should worries Grant for awhile—but only for awhile. Naturally.

A SILVER VOICE

MONTE ROBERTS

I was going to start this out with the rhetorical question: "What were you doing on Pearl Harbor Day?" And then I realized that only constituents of voting age or better are apt to remember anything about Pearl Harbor Day.

Which was 17 years tomorrow! It was a Sunday, of course—just as this year's Dec. 7 is a Sunday. I was living in Winnipeg at the time. I remember very vividly that I was at the Winnipeg Squash Club, enjoying a leisurely shower after a brisk workout, and looking forward to a cool bottle of sarsaparilla.

The club secretary stuck his head inside the shower room and said I was wanted on the phone.

Take a message, I said.

It's urgent, he told me.

So, with a towel around my middle and water dripping on the floor, I heard the urgent message:

Pearl Harbor had been bombed.

I wonder how many thousands of different ways there were for the news to be received—and how many thousand reactions.

I remember my own first, "panic station" reaction.

My mother was living, at that time, in Vancouver.

And I was convinced, in my own mind, that Vancouver would be next on the list of cities to be bombed by the Japanese.

So I wired mother to come at once to Winnipeg, which, I figured, was a fairly safe place to be.

Her answering wire was brief: "Am alright. Writing."

And her letter was very much to the point. She said there were quite a few people in Vancouver, and that if everyone went to Winnipeg, that would be too many people for Winnipeg.

"So I think we should all stay where we are," my mother wrote.

I have often thought about mother's attitude when I read of civil defence plans for mass evacuation.

I rather hope that, if there is another "Pearl Harbor Day," I can duplicate my mother's calm acceptance of the situation.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Hon. Gordon McG. Sloan, government forest adviser and former chief justice of B.C., is confined to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Members of the family said Mr. Sloan is run down and is having a complete rest.

A $4,000 federal government grant to encourage winter employment will be used for clearing work at Kinsmen Gorge Park, John McIlree, past president of Victoria Kinsmen Club, said today.

Another $4,000 will be contributed by the club.

James Bay Golden Age Club will meet Monday at 2 p.m. at the Niagara Street Hall for election of officers for the coming year.

George Mortimore, newspaperman, will address a public meeting of the Indian Arts and Welfare Society Thursday at 8 p.m., in the music room of the Victoria Public Library.

A nine-months-old baby received body burns when she tipped a container of hot water on herself shortly after 9 a.m. today.

Kathryn Cutler, of 3631 Cedar Hill, was in "satisfactory" condition at Jubilee Hospital at noon.

Deer hunters Frank Douglas Page, 842 Selkirk, and Hugh Thomson, 661 Beacon, each were fined $50 and $4 costs in Sooke RCMP court Friday for trespassing on national defence property at Rocky Point Arsenal.

Police said they apparently ignored a number of signs posting the area as restricted and one man fired a heavy rifle within range of high explosive magazines.

Police said the car skidded broadside across 200 feet of park lawn, demolished a bench and finally tore up a tree. Hanaka was uninjured.

Police said driver of the car was George R. Payne, 2192 Cubbon, who said Moody was running across the street when the accident happened.

Eighteen minutes earlier a car driven by Walter G. Hanaka, 810 Esquimalt, went out of control in Beacon Hill Park near Simcoe.

Police said the car skidded broadside across 200 feet of park lawn, demolished a bench and finally tore up a tree. Hanaka was uninjured.

'No Vacancies' For Overflow B.C. Engineers

55 Out of Work Convention Told

The "no help wanted" sign is out for professional engineers in B.C., the annual convention of the Association of Professional Engineers of B.C. was told in Empress Hotel Friday.

The two-day convention concludes today, following a luncheon address by Dr. Brock Chisholm.

Friday's session of the 2,000 member association heard a gloomy report from assistant registrar Howard Bennett that 55 engineers are now registered with the group's placement service, seeking work, and that a peak of 108 unemployed engineers was reached last May.

Mr. Bennett said 512 applications for employment were filed from Jan. 1 to Dec. 1 this year. "Of these, 408 were unemployed, or had been given notice," he said.

During the same period, he said, 234 positions became available.

FALSE IMPRESSION

"Letters came in from all over the world," Mr. Bennett told the convention, "and judging by comments in many of them the writers had previously obtained some highly optimistic news about engineering employment in B.C."

"Needless to say, I did my best to correct this false impression."

Mr. Bennett said the decrease in the number of unemployed engineers — from the 108 peak to the present 55 — has not been entirely due to better conditions in B.C.

"For example, several 1958 graduates and a few more senior men have gone to the Boeing plant in Seattle, and other engineers have left the province."

BRIGGS BEHIND SCENES

No figures on this exodus are available, he said, "but I believe more engineers have left the province in the last year than have come here."

The contentious question of support for H. Lee Briggs' stand on B.C. Power Commission financing has not come up on the floor of the convention, although it has been a hot subject at closed-door and corridor discussions.

Man Injured, Tree Torn Up By Traffic

A 12-foot tree was uprooted and a pedestrian went to hospital as a result of overnight traffic accidents in Victoria.

Roy Moody, about 25, of YMCA, is in fairly good condition with a head injury at Jubilee Hospital after being in collision with a car on St. Charles near Brooke at 9:50 p.m. Friday.

Police said driver of the car was George R. Payne, 2192 Cubbon, who said Moody was running across the street when the accident happened.

Experts' Post-Mortem Set on Chest Ailment

Directors of Victoria's Community Chest voted $1,000 out of campaign expenses Friday to hire a firm of consultants to find out whether future Chest drives should be placed in the hands of professional fund-raisers.

The consultants — to be chosen at an executive meeting Dec. 19 — will report the results of their independent survey to a Chest directors meeting in January.

THE TRAIN WAS EARLY TODAY

An early train nearly caused a late motorist in a level crossing accident at Colwood today.

Driver Harold Gordon Anderson, 43, of 440 Applegate, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital at 7:40 a.m. with shock, a cut lip, abrasions and chest injury after his car was in collision with a CNE diesel locomotive on Sooke Road at Royal Roads.

Anderson remarked at the hospital: "The... train was early today."

Fortunately both the train, consisting of the locomotive and a caboose travelling north, and Anderson's car heading toward Victoria, were going fairly slowly, an estimated 15 miles an hour.

A railway spokesman said the train, driven by engineer Pete Stemo, was an extra which normally would be at Colwood about 9 a.m.

Gym Color Bar Slaps Victorian

A Victoria native son had enjoyed every second of his 24 years in Victoria until this week, when he found a door closed to him because he is part Negro.

Richard Wood, 3944 Douglas Street, better known as "Dick" when he was an athlete at Victoria High School, and before that as a Boy Scout, tried to join a commercial physical fitness organization here which runs a chain of studios across the continent.

"Everything was fine until I turned up in person," he told The Times. "Then I was told that it was against policy to have Negroes, in that visitors from the United States might resent a colored man in the same gymnasium."

"It's the first time I've ever run into anything like this," he said.

He attended the YMCA here for four years, he said, and was interested in this new venture because he enjoys physical exercise.

He is employed at Victoria Machinery Depot, where he recently finished his apprenticeship as a machinist, and is a member of the Machinists, Fitters and Helpers' Union, Local 3.

Appointment of Stanley Hoban, a recent addition to Victoria music circles, as musical director for the spring production of "Die Fledermaus," by Johann Strauss, is announced by Victoria Gilbert and Sullivan Operatic Society executive.

Stage director is Times music-drama critic Audrey St. Denys Johnson; assistant director is Mrs. Mildred Allen.

There will be a general meeting of the society Monday at 8 p.m. in Studio "A" of radio station CJVL.

Prospective members for both chorus and principal roles ing, and it is hoped that former and present members will turn out in force.

Audition dates for principals will be announced at this time.

Mr. Hoban brings to the society the benefit of a distinguished career as baritone soloist, teacher and choir leader; a career which began in England and has taken him to many of the major centres on the North American continent, including Toronto, Winnipeg and Seattle.

He will be soloist at morning service in Metropolitan United Church Sunday accompanied by Mrs. Hoban.

TIMES CAROL SHEET APPEARS ON TUESDAY

The annual Times Christmas carol and song sheet will be printed in Tuesday's paper next week. Containing the words for 22 tunes, the sheet is useful for Christmas time gatherings and parties as well as for families at home.

A limited number of extra sheets will be printed and will be supplied free to groups who request them from Times circulation, EV 2-3131.

It is suggested that people wanting them for group singing should request only sufficient for 50 per cent of those attending, so that the supply will go around.

Amalgamation Forum

(The big issue to be decided at the Victoria and Saanich elections next week is that of amalgamation. In this column, as they are received, The Times will carry letters from readers pro and con.)

Let's Have Facts, Then Decide

As the one principally responsible, through the Chambers of Commerce, for the 1956 report on amalgamation by the Citizens Research Institute of Canada, which could possibly have sparked the more detailed Deutsch report, my views on this question may be of interest.

I am a native son. I live and pay taxes in Victoria. I call myself a Victorian as I do the people who reside in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt if they are asked where they come from.

What a pity our founding fathers did not open their dividers a few more inches when they placed one point on the city hall and drew a three-mile-circle designating the boundaries of Victoria. Would they not have shown greater vision by doing so? Would it not have been better for all concerned if we had grown up within an eight to ten-mile radius rather than being divided four ways?

In 1955, in connection with the C of C report mentioned above, I corresponded with cities such as Hamilton, London, Kingston, etc., who had undergone amalgamation some five to 15 years previously.

Toronto was then in the process of a partial amalgamation with, as is usual in such matters, some violent opposition. My correspondence took me also to several cities in the U.S. and as far away as England.

I was seeking "Before and After" opinions which I thought might be useful. In every case I found that while strong objections were quite common before, there was no case of any desire or agitation

He tells us that amalgamation is in the long-term interests of us all. Surely no one of us, trying to reach a decision on such complex issues as taxation probabilities and municipal debts, could do better than accept his judgment in areas where we are unsure of our own.

Surely none of us can be hurt by obtaining further information, therefore I urge all citizens to give their councils the authority to do just this.

AUBREY KENT. 742 Fort Street.

Accept the Advice of Experts

It is a bold layman who claims he can see both the wood and the trees in all the various amalgamation issues. The mass of statistics alone is intimidating enough. Yet in most public discussions so far, very few of us have admitted, or even referred to, this fact.

We need not automatically bow down to every passing expert. On the other hand, let us not ignore the expert when his qualifications are as impressive as those of the author of the amalgamation report. We know he is impartial. By common consent he has done a thorough job in previous public enquiries. All in all, he is respected as one of the most sound and brilliant men in his field in Canada.

He tells us that amalgamation is in the long-term interests of us all. Surely no one of us, trying to reach a decision on such complex issues as taxation probabilities and municipal debts, could do better than accept his judgment in areas where we are unsure of our own.

COLIN GRAHAM. 3800 Nancy Hanks.

The thought struck me: who supplies the money for the trips which Mr. Briggs is taking to reveal to the people of B.C. the terrible things which are going on in the provincial government.

"I don't think anyone is supplying his fares. I know what it is like to have the income of the breadwinner of the family stopped."

"I am therefore enclosing $2 from my family allowance cheque to give to him..."

"I would have sent it to his home but there are two H. L. Briggs in the telephone directory."

HONOR GUARD AT LAUNCHING

Centennial Year Blessing For Latest RCMP Vessel

The spanking new, blue-hulled RCMP patrol vessel Alert slid down the McKay-Cormack ways at 11 a.m. today, with the centennial year blessing of Mrs. Lawrie Wallace, wife of the general chairman of the centennial committee.

As an honor guard of red-coated Mounties stood at stiff attention, the 65-foot, twin-screw vessel slipped into the water in a perfect launch.

After builder's trials, the Alert will join the RCMP's west coast marine division, based at Esquimalt.

HEAD of the University of B.C. department of economics and political science, Dr. John J. Deutsch, who recently completed a survey of amalgamation between Victoria and Saanich, will address the University Extension Association at 8:15 p.m. Monday in Victoria College auditorium on "The Next 100 Years." Admission to the series of lectures is free.

3 B.C. Hydro Power Plans Move Ahead

Power-conscious British Columbia feasted today on federal-provincial announcements indicating that the rush is on to supply low-cost hydro power to the lush B.C. and Pacific Northwest markets.

In Ottawa, Acting Prime Minister Howard Green said "steps are to be taken at once to complete an agreement with the United States which will make possible development of the giant Columbia River."

In Prince George, Lands and Forest Minister Ray Williston said the provincial government plans to build two dams on the upper Fraser to provide power to be fed into the proposed Wenner-Green-hydro system.

Mr. Green said Columbia power could be provided to the Vancouver area at less than four mills a kilowatt hour — "far cheaper than power available in B.C. in similar large quantities."

In Kelowna Premier W. A. C. Bennett said that development of the Columbia-river would not mean cancellation of the Peace River plan.

"We want them both and the sooner the better," he said. "The more power we have in

Power Commission May Get Columbia

"The B.C. Power Commission will run it unless there are complications over downstream benefits," the premier said. "If there are complications, I will set up a separate authority to handle Columbia power."

Mr. Mainwaring, former vice-president of the B.C. Electric, and company president A. E. Grauer both claimed the Peace can produce power as cheaply as the Columbia.

While no cost-per-kilowatt had been worked out for the Peace River power, "we have no fears of a price battle," said Mr. Mainwaring.

He claimed Mr. Green's announcement means Columbia power wouldn't be available for at least 10 years since downstream benefits still have to be negotiated.

Mr. Grauer said Peace power will still be needed even

B.C. the more industries we will attract."

In other developments:

1. W. C. Mainwaring, president of Peace River Power Development, says the Ottawa announcement "adds nothing to what is known about B.C. power."

2. Mr. Green emphasized that the federal government stands ready to help B.C. in the Columbia power development task. He warned: "Postponement of such Columbia development in favor of some other power scheme could well result in making the development of the Columbia River in Canada impossible."

3. Premier Bennett greeted the Ottawa announcement enthusiastically because "we need a power surplus—we'll take the surplus to entice industry." He said the Columbia will be developed "as public power as opposed to private enterprise on the Peace."

if the Columbia is developed as soon as possible.

"By the time Columbia power became available, the electrical demands in the lower mainland and southern Vancouver Island will be rising at the rate of approximately 150,000 to 200,000 kilowatts. With this kind of load growth, B.C.'s share—in which BCE customers have a legitimate interest—would not last long."

He said even if Columbia development started first, "exploratory costs are warranted because if the Peace is feasible it will go ahead at some point."

B.C. Electric is taking part in the surveys. Mr. Grauer said, however, his firm would purchase Columbia power "if the price is satisfactory."

Some estimates of Peace River power range up to seven mills. BCE pays 5.9 mills for its power today.

More Snow Tonight—Mackie

First snowfall of the winter hit Victoria today, and more is promised for tonight and Sunday.

It was the first snow here since the winter of 1956-57, and left an inch of wet, soggy slush on the ground. There were minor flurries during the night, but until early this morning it melted when it reached the ground.

Although streets were sloppy. Greater Victoria police reported traffic was normal, and no accidents were blamed on either the weather or slippery streets.

The Malahat gave trouble at midnight, when a minor traffic jam developed, but it was cleared shortly after by highways department crews.

Later today travellers noted a three-car collision near the summit of the Malahat, and a car turned over near the Mill Bay cutoff. Duncan ambulance attended.

Other snowfalls reported on the island were four inches at Duncan, three inches at Nanaimo, four inches at Port Alberni, and anything from two to eight inches at isolated points along the highways.

Vancouver Island Coach Lines officials said bus drivers on all island routes found road conditions to be good.

"The highways are covered with slush in places, but it is soft and the tires cut right through to the pavement," a company spokesman said.

CAUTION ADVISED

Police suggested drivers should remain alert and show caution during the remainder of the poor weather.

Weatherman William Mackie predicted more snow for tonight because the city is in the middle of a battle between two weather systems.

Cold air is pressing westward from the mainland, he said, and disturbances from the Pacific Ocean are causing warm air to roll in from the west.

He said the snow will be wet, and mixed with rain, but that at night and at higher levels, with temperatures lower, it will be drier and more inclined to stay when it hits the ground.

Temperatures will range between 32 degrees tonight and 37 degrees Sunday.

Victorians Seek to Halt Shares Sale

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three

Victoria shareholders in Lucky Lager Brewing Co. have gone to court to prevent John Labatt Ltd., eastern brewers, from taking over their shares for $5.25 each.

Their case went before Mr. Justice A. M. Macfarlane, but was adjourned immediately.

Gerald Fitzpatrick Dunn, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, his wife, Joan, and Sooke Investments Ltd. are asking the B.C. Supreme Court to rule that Labatt's is not entitled to acquire their shares.

Manslaughter Verdict In Mudge Slaying Case

Sixteen-year-old Matthew John Till, charged with the murder of his foster father, Charles Mudge, flushed noticeably in the prisoner's dock but showed no other sign of emotion when an Assize Court jury Friday returned a reduced verdict of manslaughter.

The jury deliberated one hour and 43 minutes, from 4:07 p.m. to 5:50 p.m.

Till was remanded for sentence by Mr. Justice J. G. Rutland. He is being held in the city jail. It is not known when sentence will be pronounced; it may be next week or at the end of the assizes.

Jury foreman W. G. Lynch said "we find the accused not guilty of murder, but guilty of manslaughter."

A court official had warned spectators who crowded the main public benches and were scattered through the gallery that no public demonstration of emotion could be shown when the verdict was announced. They were quiet.

"You have demonstrated... a conscientiousness as citizens," Mr. Justice Rutland told members of the all-male jury following the verdict.

His charge to the jury, which started at 2:35 p.m., took 1½ hours.

FOUR CHOICES

He explained that the jury had four choices of verdict: Not guilty of murder; guilty of murder; guilty of manslaughter; or guilty of manslaughter.

Wings Win Hockey; Kelly Stars

CHICAGO (CP)—Red Kelly scored two goals 15 seconds apart in the third period today to give Detroit Red Wings a 4-3 victory over Chicago Black Hawks in a televised National Hockey League game in Chicago Stadium.

The third-place Wings were trailing the fifth-place Black Hawks 3-2 in the final frame when the former all-star rearguard cut loose with his two shots. Hawk goalie Glenn Hall saw neither shot.

Kelly's defence unit running mate Warren Godfrey accounted for the two other Detroit tallies—both screened—in the first period. Godfrey's markers were a minute and 40 seconds apart.

Chicago gained its short-lived 3-2 lead on a pair of first period goals by centre Kenny Wharram and one by defenceman Dollard St. Laurent in the middle frame.

Wharram's first marker — his fifth of the season — came on a rebound of a shot by Ron Murphy. No. 6 for the Buffalo graduate was scored after a solo dash from centre ice, during which he outskated wing defenceman Marcel Pronovost.

St. Laurent poked in a rebound of his own shot from directly in front of wing netminder Terry Sawchuk.

SUMMARY

First period: 1. Detroit, Godfrey (Ulman) 1-0; 2. Detroit, Godfrey (Howe, Ulman) 2-0; 3. Chicago, Wharram (Murphy, Lewicki) 3-0; 4. Chicago, Wharram (Lewicki) 3-1; 5. Penalties: Kennedy 5:08.

Defeats East 9-3 In All-Star Game

HAMILTON, Ont. (UPI)—The West All-Stars defeated the East All-Stars 9-3, in tundra-frozen Civic Stadium today, winning the fourth annual Shrine game on a second quarter touchdown by Kenny Ploen.

About 5,000 fans sat in the "deep freeze" stadium, watching coach Bud Grant complete a Western Conference sweep of the East begun a week ago in Vancouver when Winnipeg won the Grey Cup, 35-28, over Hamilton. Earlier the West had won the intermediate and junior national crowns.

The white-sweatered West team spotted coach Jim Trimble's Easterners a 3-0 first quarter lead on a conceded safety and Cam Fraser's 58-yard single.

Then Frank Tripucka, Saskatchewan's all-weather quarterback, found the range early in the second period. He steered his team 69 yards in five plays, highlighted by a 43-yard toss to teammate Jack Hill which carried play to the East 26.

Burly Johnny Bright of Edmonton, who rolled for 123 yards on the day, churned to the 11 in two cracks at the East line.

After Cookie Gilchrist was stopped cold by Vince Scott, Tripucka dropped back and passed to Ploen over defender Bill Sowalski for the only touchdown of the game. Jim Van Pelt's convert attempt was wide, but that proved to be enough to win the fourth annual charity game.

... his touchdown won

Lions' Star Kicks Three Points

With a 35-mile-an-hour wind whistling through the park, Vancouver's Vic Chapman booted two singles in the third quarter and punched a bouncing shot in for a third early in the fourth.

It was a crazy game, the ball bouncing high and wildly on the concrete-hard turf. Except for the bull-like rushes of Bright and Tripucka's odd pass to Hill, neither club could sustain any kind of an offense.

Trimble tried both Bernie Faloney, his regular pivot, and Montreal's Sam Etcheverry. Faloney did work his Eastern crew down to the West eight early in the game, but the march stalled when Pat Abbruzzi was stopped on the two on third down.

It was on the next sequence of plays that Jackie Parker conceded a safety, getting the ball out to the West 25 while surrendering the two points.

For Grant, it evened the score with his former head coach at Philadelphia. Last year, Trimble's Easterners swept both the Grey Cup and Shrine game. This year Grant reversed the order.

The Winnipeg coach used three of his quarterbacks, Van Pelt, Tripucka and Parker. Van Pelt saw more action, but he also ran from a half-back slot.

Statistically it was all the West. The winners rushed for 216 yards against the losers 172, and passed for 119 to 92.

The East had one last chance in the final minute, when tackle Dick Fouts flopped on Cookie Gilchrist's fumble at the West 46. Etcheverry passed to Red O'Quinn then to Howell to move the ball to the 24 when the gun sounded to end the game.

The win gave the West two victories against a defeat and tie in the four Shrine games.

Army Fails With First Space Shot

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The U.S. Army fired its first space probe thousands of miles into the sky today but hours later calculated that the gold-plated vehicle would travel barely a quarter of the distance to the moon.

Space scientists predicted the rocket will reach a height of 64,830 miles, then fall back and burn up in the earth's atmosphere Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Werhner von Braun, the army's missile expert, estimated that the probe would remain in flight for about 38 hours from the time it was launched at 12:45 a.m. EST (9:45 p.m., PST) at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Pioneer III had been equipped to send back a signal when it passed the moon. Had it been completely successful it would have gone on to slip into orbit around the sun.

Instead the Jupiter rocket that was the first stage of the launching vehicle cut out 3.7 seconds prematurely, and the probe failed by about 1,000 miles an hour to attain the 24,900 miles an hour velocity required to reach or go past the moon.

FIRST STEP TAKEN TOWARD A-TEST BAN

GENEVA (AP)—The United States, Britain and Russia today approved the first article of a treaty to suspend nuclear tests.

The article lays down the three nations' agreement to stop nuclear weapons tests. But it will have no effect until the treaty as a whole is approved and ratified.

The second article of the treaty which ties the suspension of tests inseparably to an international control organization, still is under discussion.

The two Western powers have repeatedly told Russia they will not subscribe to any treaty unless it spells out in detail a control and inspection system to prevent violations of a test ban.

Christmas Spirit Shows

Generous Victorians are tangibly showing that the approaching Christmas season is the time for blessed giving. Contributions to the "Milk for Hungry Children" fund, which has climbed past the $1,000 mark, will be used to help ward off starvation for thousands of "little ones" in Korea, India and Hong Kong. A donation, signed merely "J.E.W." had the following attached, exemplifying the spirit of charity in an often-cold and cold world: "It's not what we have, it's what we give. That fills the heart with joy to live. It's what we do, not what we say. That adds a blessing to each day." The Victoria Times is assisting the Unitarian Service Committee drive for $200,000 by Christmas, which will transport dried milk to starving children in a few of the East's hungry areas where the main consciousness among the needy is the overwhelming desire for food. Money sent either the Times office at 2631 Douglas or the Broad Street office is deductible for income tax purposes.

MANSLAUGHTER

ter, or not guilty by reason of insanity.

"There is a stage of drunkenness," he said, "when a person can't form the intent (to kill). Then the proper verdict is manslaughter."

Earlier evidence had disclosed, the justice said in his review of the nine-day trial, that the accused had consumed about 26 ounces of liquor the day Mudge was shot. His father-in-law, John Brand, 69, was also slain at the Mudge home, 3460 Metchisin Road, on Sept. 13.

On the witness stand Thursday, Till had said he remembered nothing about the tragic events.

"PECULIAR SAVAGERY"
Mr. Justice Rutman pointed out that the only evidence of a "blackout" was given by Till himself, and it was up to the jury to either accept or reject his testimony.

He indicated also there was grounds for an insanity verdict, due to the "peculiar savagery of the act," and "the lack of provocation for it."

Evidence pointed, he maintained, to a "savage" crime impelled probably "by some desire to have relations with Mrs. Mudge."

Mrs. Phyllis Mudge, 30, was beaten by Till the same terror-filled afternoon.

DRINK AT 6 WEEKS
Crown prosecutor Lloyd McKenzie said that Mudge was guilty of an error in judgment by allowing the youth to persuade the couple to give him alcohol in any quantity.

"Till," he said, "had been drinking for a long, long time. We heard the astonishing report that he had his first drink when he was six weeks old. That, we were told by his mother, was given him by his father."

No one, he maintained, would ever know exactly what happened that day, so an attempt only could be made to reconstruct.

"The boy formed an intention of being intimate with Mrs. Mudge. He could not accomplish this with any medium of persuasion. There were no intimate relations in a romantic sense."

MEN 'IN WAY"
"I suggest Till picked up a metal bar, went upstairs and hit Mrs. Mudge over the head from the back, causing a four-inch wound. This was the first of many wounds caused that afternoon."

Then, he continued, Mrs. Mudge either fell down the basement stairs or was dragged.

"He had a desire for the woman, but there were two men in the house sure to be opposed to that desire."

"I suggest Mudge came in from the garden and just as he was outside the doorway Till shot him with the .303 rifle through the breast. Either he fell inside or Johnny pulled him in, then shut the door."

"Johnny then went upstairs, picking up another rifle. The old man (Brand) may have been aroused from his sleep by the first shot. The accused stood in the den door, and fired."

"Johnny then went back to Mrs. Mudge, finding her coming back to some early stage of consciousness. The boy did not want her conscious in the basement, so she came to with him holding her by the arm and beating her."

"It was then she heard groans and saw Johnny walk over and fire into the prone body of Mudge with a shotgun."

The accused's actions Mr. McKenzie termed "an impulse to eliminate opposition."

Till's mother, immediately after the trial ended, was asked what she thought of the manslaughter verdict.

"It's okay, I guess," she said.

ARMY

Laboratory built the instrument-filled space cone, a 13-pound forerunner to future satellites. It was only 23 inches high, weighed 13 pounds, and was 10 inches in diameter at the base.

No one was wishing the army bad luck, but since its first space shot was less than perfect some air force officers could not conceal their relief that Pioneer III had not outperformed Pioneer I.

Meanwhile, space scientists also said today the air force's Oct. 11 moon probe reached only 71,300 miles into space instead of the previously announced 79,000 miles.

This recalculation means that the army's Pioneer III is expected to come within 6,470 miles of the air force effort instead of 14,170.

Von Braun guessed that the probe would re-enter the earth's atmosphere near Madagascar off the east coast of Africa Sunday afternoon, and he said it would disintegrate from air friction.

"No solid parts will hit the earth," Von Braun said.

Von Braun blamed a faulty setting of a small fuel valve in the first stage for the improper mixture that produced the shortened burning time.

At Cape Canaveral, Dr. John Froehlich, an associate of Pickering at JPL, said the next army space launching vehicle would have to have some "improvements" including better propellants.

ing report is ready March 1, the U.S. will be happy to oblige, he said.

Mr. Green said development of the Columbia will mean tremendous expansion

'Greatest Industrial Area'
In his familiar sweeping fashion, Premier Bennett predicted that B.C. will eventually become the "greatest industrial area in North America."

"We will entice new industry into B.C., both in the Kootenays and central B.C. from eastern Canada, U.S., England and continental Europe."

B.C. has the key location—south is the U.S., north is the Yukon, and north of that is the new U.S. state, Alaska."

The mighty Columbia rises in B.C. and flows through the power-hungry northwestern U.S. to the Pacific. The big issue is the splitting of the downstream power between the two countries.

What Canadian authorities

... POWER
in the Kootenay and Okanagan districts "which could not be equalled or so accelerated otherwise."

Estimates of Canada-U.S. expenditures on the Columbia run as high as $200,000,000 or more.

may suggest is that B.C. get half the additional electricity developed on the U.S. side in return for Canadian payment for administration and regulation of the year-round water flow.

This possibly would entail construction of a number of Canadian dams, with the federal government helping B.C. financially in the huge construction job. In addition, lower B.C. would also get power from the proposed Mica Creek project.

The scheme to build dams on the Upper Fraser was drawn following a report by the Fraser River Flood Control Board. The report will be published within 10 days.

Fraser Dams To Be Above Fish

Lands and Forests Minister Williston told a public meeting the dams will be beyond runs of "merchantable" fish and will produce two large lakes.

He said the main dam will be at the confluence of the McGregor River, east of Prince George. The second will be at the head of the Roche Valley, near McBride. The McGregor dam would back water up to Dome Creek and bring a flood plane to Aleza and Eagle Lakes.

Mr. Williston said the government proposes to put the program into high gear to ensure the dams are completed before recurrence of spring floods of 1894 and 1948.

Hydro power produced would be fed into the proposed Wenner-Gren transmission system to the lower mainland, he said.

The minister also said negotiations have been started by the Wenner-Gren organization for purchase of land north of Prince George as the site of a transformer to be used in transmitting power from its planned Peace River development.

The Peace River power would be converted to direct current for transmission to the lower mainland and also would go into Alberta and communities west of Prince George, he said.

City Man Accepts $70,000 For Wife's Death in Crash

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—The attorney for Charles Horace (Pete) Stoneham, son of the owner of the San Francisco Giants baseball club, has asked that misdemeanor manslaughter charges against his client be dismissed.

The motion for dismissal was made Friday after Stoneham's attorney announced a $70,000 out-of-court settlement had been made with William Leach, 63, of 686 Island Road, Victoria, whose wife was killed in an auto accident in which Stoneham was involved last Feb. 4 near here.

Earlier, the charge was reduced from felony to misdemeanor manslaughter when Stoneham agreed to plead guilty to the lesser count.

Judge E. R. Thurman took the motion for dismissal under advisement.

HEAD-ON CRASH
Leach abandoned a civil suit for $250,000 after he made the settlement.

The accident took place while Mr. and Mrs. Leach were on holidays.

According to evidence, Mr. Stoneham crossed a middle line in the highway and plowed head-on into the Leach car. Mrs. Leach, a well-known golfer, was killed and Mr. Leach hospitalized for some time.

THE MOST IMPORTANT DECISION YOU'LL EVER MAKE
When it comes to the future of Victoria, the most important decision you will ever make may well be your vote on December 11th. The Parking By-law vote will decide the entire future of Victoria and your Council feels, therefore, that it has a duty to put the facts squarely before the voters.

- Fact No. 1 The downtown area covered by the proposed plan represents 48% of the entire Victoria assessment. This high assessment area may be expanded when a proper plan of downtown Off-Street Parking is put into operation.
- Fact No. 2 Experience of other cities shows that either downtown must be revitalized, or residential taxes will increase.
- Fact No. 3 The proposed plan will be ENTIRELY PAID FOR BY PARKING FEES. Out-of-town residents who park will pay their share—Victoria residents without cars will pay NOTHING.
- Fact No. 4 Now is the time to start the plan—before traffic congestion worsens and business is driven away from the city.
- Fact No. 5 No city implementing a plan of this kind has regretted it—cities refusing such plans have had to return to them later, at higher costs.

READ Fact No. 3 again. Your Council feels that this is the fair and sensible way to solve a problem which must be solved if Victoria is to remain a prosperous, beautiful city. Think on these facts—make up your mind, then be sure to
